THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

Saturday, April 4th, 1857.

"BORN TO MASTER, OF NO SECT ARE WE."

THE OLD BUTTON WOOD TREE. This venerable relic which has stood for centuries on school street, was yesterday felled to the ground by the Woodman's axe. Many citizens of the town and neighborhood visited the locality from whence it took its departure, to pay the last respect to this old inhabitant of the town; the boys especially, who, for years gratified their patriotic ebullitions on the Nation's birth day, by snapping Fire Crackers in its capacious hollow trunk. The Button Wood being a native of this country, and this having remained at its present site beyond the memory of the oldest citizens, we should judge it some three centuries old. Its exact age, however, could not be correctly arrived at, owing to the extreme decay of its trunk, which had nearly consumed all the main branches. This species of the American Platanus Occidentalis was not introduced into England until 1765.

THE WEATHER. We seldom, if ever, witnessed so sudden an alteration in the weather, as we experienced, on Wednesday last. On that morning the air was soft and balmy—with the wind at the south. It was a lovely spring day; the precursor, as some seemed to think of an early season. A venerable friend of ours, who has a laudable ambition to lead in horticultural matters, had prepared his ground and was sowing his peas for an early crop. We saw him again on the following day—but under very different circumstances. He was then shovelling a passage way through snow drifts to his out-buildings, under a cheerless atmosphere, fifteen degrees below the freezing point. His bright visions of the day previous, of regaling himself on a fine dish of peas by the first of June, had been nipped in the bud. He seemed to think if those he had planted could stand such a freeze, and still germinate, they might be cultivated to advantage on an iceberg.

MR. BURRITT'S LECTURE at the Town Hall on Thursday evening last, we are sorry to say, was but poorly attended. The weather was cold and unfavorable for out-door amusements. His theory for the peaceful emancipation of the colored population, by purchasing their freedom from the sale of the public lands is not a new one; it has been unsuccessfully broached before. We think the most peaceable way to get rid of the evil is to let it alone; if agitation ceases, it will naturally die out of itself. Let us husband our resources, they will soon be needed at home, if the record of crime goes on increasing in the same ratio that it has for some time past.

THE ROTATORY PRINCIPLE is one of the most simple and beautiful laws of nature. It is as old as the Universe itself. Galileo drew his inferences from this hypothesis, to found his theory of the planetary order of our system. In political ethics, as well as in mechanics, it works out its problems to a charm, imparting a healthy tone of action wherever its influence is felt. The workings of the principle is but imperfectly understood; but in the hands of the government it will no doubt be used with caution—only called into requisition when a cleansing operation is required. To the uninitiated—those who may feel a desire to serve their country, we would caution them to beware, lest in their hot haste to obtain their object, they make a mistake, not to be recovered until another revolution of the wheel.

RE-ENGAGEMENT OF MISS GIBSON.—Miss N. N. Gibson, whose lecture a few weeks since was received with such favor by our citizens, will speak in the trance state, to-morrow afternoon, at Johnson's Hall. Two o'clock is the hour appointed.

ADAMS LITERARY ASSOCIATION. This Society whose labors the past season, have been so favorably received by the community, it will be seen intend giving an exhibition in elocution, singing, etc., at the Town Hall, on Fast Day evening, April 16. We have seen many a knotty question for debate, come before this Association, which has been analyzed in a most masterly manner. If not always disposed of by their own decisions, it invariably had the effect of giving a new train to thought, and renewed vigor to the mind, furnishing the material to deduce its own conclusions. The Association has much talent in its ranks, and many an able debater. A rich intellectual repast therefore may be expected.

DAGUERRETYPE. Mr. McElroy, the man of shadows, has opened his Daguerreotype Room, a few rods of the Stone Temple, where those of our citizens who would like a true reflection of themselves may be gratified.

For the Patriot. North District Schools.

MR. EDITOR: Presuming a line to you from this hitherto remote part of the town would not be unacceptable, I send you this brief epistle. If you do not see fit to publish, why burn it.

The North School District though small in population, numbering some five hundred inhabitants, is territorially the second largest in town. Formerly it used to pay yearly a quota of one seventh of all the taxes levied upon the polls and estates of the good people of Quincy. In this matter we are now dropping off; as our valuation does not keep progress with many of the other Districts. Still, there may be said to be a moderate degree of worldly prosperity in this rural corner of the town.

A new Depot is about to be completed at a cost of one thousand dollars, half of which was subscribed by voluntary contribution from the inhabitants of the District; and a pretty building it is too; located near the crossing of the Old Colony Railroad, under Neponset Turnpike.

This new and now permanent Station bids fair to meet with a fair patronage. A slight movement to building and an advancement in land sales. Several houses are in the progress of erection, a little west of the new Depot, on a wild and romantic tract of land, of some thirty acres, laid out in eligible house lots, amid its sylvan and quiet retreats, so much sought after in these days, as places of residence, in preference to locations on main thoroughfares. It is whispered that a new church of the Episcopal order may soon be erected here. The rumor by no means unpleasant, wants confirmation. The external features of Mount Hope, a large tract of land on the Piggy Branch, now owned by William Evans, Esq., is about to undergo a transformation, by way of being "cleared up," ploughed, &c. The ultimate plans of this enterprising gentleman with Mount Hope are not known, but whatever he undertakes he "puts through."

Among our agricultural community, several leasehold estates changed hands yesterday. The first of April generally kicks up quite a dust for removing, in most places throughout our State. In New York, the first day of May is the period of "moving." On the evening of the 13th ultimo, our worthy and popular teacher, Mr. L. P. Forbush, gave the inhabitants of this part of the town, a rich, and to us, a rare repast, by way of a school exhibition of his pupils, principally, exercises in declamation. The interest manifested by the parents of the children and others was clearly evinced in the full attendance, and though the night was stormy, every body from this quarter seemed to be there on hand. It is but just compliment to say the spectators were well pleased and entertained. The various exercises were not confined to the older scholars. The declamations were well selected, and spoken with animation, and eloquence. Many of them were humorous but just satires upon some of the follies and absurdities of the age. The declamations in single pieces were characterized by a proper spirit and correct enunciation. So that every word was clearly spoken and heard by the audience. While all did well, some spoke better than others; I shall call the names of those who excelled. We were favored with a few exercises in reading and arithmetic, which is just the thing that should be blended with declamatory performances of this character. Suffice it to say, the performances in these elementary branches, show that the school could compare favorably with the public schools of Quincy. Thoroughness is a cardinal feature in Mr. Forbush's manner of teaching.

The North District School is in a prosperous condition, bestowing great credit on its teacher, and also Edmund Pope, Esq. The School Committee to whom this District is assigned, who has never been excelled here, by the interest he takes in the School. In the last Report of the School Committee, the following notice is taken of the Instructor, Mr. Forbush:

"Mr. Forbush has acquitted himself as well through the year at the North School, as he gave promise of doing at the time of the last Report. The table of attendance making an average of nearly forty through the year in this District, where the citizens are scattered over so wide a distance around the School House, will show their increased confidence in the value of the instruction. It is believed no preceding time has been so good." We are glad to learn Mr. Forbush has been re-engaged for the ensuing year.

FASHIONABLE TAILORING EMPORIUM.—Mr. D. D. Ring, one of our most enterprising and fashionable tailors, it will be seen by his advertisement, has taken the room lately occupied by Mr. Dodd, in Johnson's building, where he will be happy to receive the orders of his friends, and the public, in any article in his line.

"BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS." A Counterfeit. A person pretending to have been a partner with W. P. Petridge in the above article is palming off a spurious preparation on the public. All are counterfeits unless the name Petridge & Co., is written on the side, and W. P. Petridge & Co., printed on the front of the label. The genuine article is for sale by all respectable Druggists, who frown down counterfeiters and impostors.

White Teeth, perfumed breath and beautiful complexion can be required by using the "Balm of a Thousand Flowers." What lady or gentleman would remain under the curse of a disagreeable breath, when by using the Balm of a Thousand Flowers would render it sweet.

MEDICATED INHALATION for the treatment and speedy cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, and Chronic Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, at the Boston Lung Institute, 69 1/2 Summer street. Medicated inhalation will cure consumption. Why? Because the remedy is applied directly to the seat of Disease. The Medicines being prepared in the form of Vapors, are conveyed in the air we breathe to the most minute air cells in the lungs. The first effect is to dissolve and render easily expectorated the secretions in the air cells. This relieves the lungs from the matter collected there, and the vapors being composed of healing gums and balsams, a new state of the parts at once takes place, the weak air cells are stimulated and strengthened, the ulcers and cavities healed and the patient rapidly passes from a state of disease to health.

This is the only means that can, with any certainty, be relied on to cure Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis or any case of Lung Disease. Proofs of its wondrous efficacy will be given on calling at Boston Lung Institute, No. 69 1/2 Summer street. Consumptives who apply personally, may confidently rely that their disease will be detected with unerring certainty, and treated with a success hitherto unknown.

Persons residing at a distance, and unable to visit the Institute, by sending a minute description of their cases in writing, can have suitable remedies, with full directions sent them.

DRS. MELCHER & MORSE,
Examining Physicians.

TO ENJOY SOUND HEALTH,

Use Dr. Spear's Indian Vegetable Medicines!

THESE medicines have now stood the test of twenty years trial. For twelve years Dr. Spear, the Indian Doctor, prescribed these remedies with extraordinary success, and during the past eight years they have made the name of E. D. SPEAR, the Indian Doctor, famous. With these great medicines thousands have been restored to health, even after eminent physicians had pronounced their case incurable.

E. D. SPEAR, M.D., THE INDIAN DOCTOR, So much celebrated for his many remarkable cures. May be consulted at his Office, No. 36 Beach street, Boston, from 9 A.M. to 4 P.M., upon all the various diseases and conditions of the human body. Special attention given to

CANCERS AND SCROFULA.

Humors in the Blood, Consumption, Dyspepsia, Female Diseases, Fits, Rheumatism and Liver Complaints. Dr. Spear's Indian Balm of Life, No. 1. This is a Syrup for the Lungs, cleansing, healing, strengthening. It cures all other preparations for Consumption, Dry Cough, Bronchitis and Throat Diseases.

Dr. Spear's Balm of Life, No. 2. This is a favorite old Indian remedy for Dyspepsia, Liver complaint, General Debility, Costiveness, Sour Stomach, Gastritis, or Inflammation of the Stomach, and also a sure cure for Boils. In all cases except when taken for Boils, to be used in connection with Dr. Spear's Jaundice Balm, and Dr. Spear's Liverwort Pills. Balm of Life, No. 3. A compound of No. 2 and Jaundice Bitters, prepared ready for immediate use.

Dr. Spear's Indian Scrofula Syrup, a powerful purifier of the blood; an excellent strengthener for old people. It is a specific for humors in children, especially running at the ears.

Nature's Grand Restorative Cordial, for pain in the bowels, constipation vomiting and wind. An excellent physic for children, also a good remedy for sick headache, nervousness, flatulency, weak Stomach, &c. The prices of each of the above are one dollar. Six bottles at one time, five dollars.

Dr. Spear's Vegetable Alternative. This remedy has never been before advertised. It is the only article ever yet discovered that will dissolve and eradicate from the system

CANCER AND SCROFULA. No use of the knife or plasters when this medicine is used. It directly enters into the blood, and by a chemical action dissolves the poison, rendering it inert and ineffective. Tumors gradually sink away; health returns; life is saved. Used in all cases of bad humors and skin diseases. One bottle, used as directed, will last one month. Price $5.

Dr. Spear's new remedy for Fits, Convulsions and Nervous Diseases. Price $10. Dr. Spear treats Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the womb, without instruments or supporters. He has never failed in a single case, and he has treated hundreds. His remedy can be obtained for $3 a package. It is also a good remedy for many female complaints. Prolapsus Uteri may be known by the pressing down pains, pains in the side and back across the hips, with heat and scalding. Bad cases are often accompanied with an inflammation of the liver, and it not infrequently happens that the physician treats the case as a liver complaint, with physic, &c., which only increases the trouble. It is always best to apply to a physician of large practice, and experience, and then no mistakes will be made. All letters containing one dollar will be immediately attended to.

Beware of unprincipled men who profess to have lived among the Indians, &c., who call themselves Indian physicians &c. They are impostors and ignorant men.

INDIAN REMEDIES.

IT will be remembered that the New England Medical Society was formed for the suppression of Quackery in the Indian System of practice, and to supply the public with Genuine Indian Remedies for all diseases. This object is fully realized at the

INDIAN MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 36 Bromfield Street, Boston.

Persons are cautioned against placing confidence in the long advertisements of those who have never had any practical knowledge or the System as used by the Indians themselves.

Dr. R. Greene, having acquired this knowledge by daily intercourse with the "Indian Medicine Men," for years knowing their true system, and in consequence of this superior knowledge was selected by the Society, as Superintending Physician of the "Institute," at No. 36 Bromfield street, hence the envy and bitterness of those who are excluded from the Society for want of proper attainments. Persons at a distance should not be deceived by long and wordy advertisements, but should send and get a copy of the

"Indian Arcana,"

A Newspaper Published at the Institute, which will give a list of the principal Indian Remedies, their prices and uses, and a full exposition of the merits of the practice and the imposture which is carried on by pretenders. A copy of this paper will be sent free of charge to any one requesting it.

Consultations, personally or by letter, free of charge. Address, DR. R. GREENE, No. 36 Bromfield street, Boston.

Money is All

That is what they say, I know, but that doesn't make it so. Money is an excellent thing, and has done a great work for the world—as the drunken sailor said water had for navigation; but sometimes it so happens that when a man secures all he aimed at, he is as discontented as before he had a dollar to his name.

The girls make the most of the mischief in this matter; for they will hardly look at anybody who is not "rich," and hence many a young fellow, who is competent to make a woman happy all her days, is obliged to take up with slavery bachelor's commons till he is either in luck or in his grave. And that is too often just about the same thing.

Sarah Storms was one of a family of seven daughters; and that family unfortunately came to be poor. Hence the mother kept a sharp eye on all the opportunities that offered for "matches." She grew as keen as an operator in State street, and didn't disguise it one half its much, either.

Sarah ought to have been married long ago, said her mother. She was—I am not going to guess how old; but old enough to take the prefix, Mrs., certainly. Her mother had been looking out for her, and she had been looking out for herself. Two or three energetic, enterprising and likely young men had bestowed their favors in vain, and two or three more had concluded it was of no use for them to try either. So there she was, pretty well to do as you can see for yourself.

What to do, she didn't know, till along came a rich old bachelor—both rich and old—who seemed to have moved into the place expressly for the sake of relieving the worthy Storms' family of their trouble. He was a stranger to everybody. All that was known of him was, that he was rich. And for Mrs. Storms, and Sarah, too, that was enough. It was enough for the rest of the money-hunters besides. To find a rich stranger come to settle among them, was like waking up some fine morning and finding the whole menagerie—elephant and all—right before their doors!

It would make a deacon laugh in meeting, to tell him the many little devices that were practised by the mother Storms, and the daughter Storms, to first enlist, and then engross the attention of Mr. Mulligan, the rich stranger. And they did it; of course they did it, though every other female in town cut them off from their friendship in consequence.

Then having secured his acquaintance, how they watched, and worked, and contrived, to win over his well-kept partiality. And they did that, too. All the world could not have stopped them. Other girls were jealous, and held back; this only gave the Storms a clearer field for operation.

What did Mrs. Storms know about Mr. Mulligan's disposition? Nothing. What did she care? Less. What did she think of, but the swiftest method of marrying off her darling daughter, and marrying her—so well!

And she succeeded in that, too. Sarah Storms had a pretty, infantile face, and showed a row of teeth as white as curds whenever she laughed. She had rather a tall, graceful figure too, and took pains to show a pretty foot as often as Mr. Mulligan was in the way of seeing it. And what did he know about women—or matrimony—or any of the finer and rarer qualities that are so essential to domestic felicity? Nothing—nothing—nothing. Sarah was a pretty girl—he liked her looks—she appeared to be very attentive to him, and his fancy bewildered and deluded him. So he stole over to her house one evening, and offered himself plump! She didn't refuse him, and you needn't think she did. Nor did her mother sit down after he had gone and Sarah had told him the story, and cry an hour or two about it. No, kind reader; you know better, as well as I do. They made a family Thanksgiving over the event, hoping that every other family in the place felt more like instituting a Fast.

They were married, Sarah Storms was straightway Mrs. Mulligan. Some of the girls said they never would own such a name; but it is fair to say of them that they were envious. How could they well help it, when Sarah had drawn the only prize, and they nothing but abominable blanks.

They made a great party on the occasion, and a great fuss. All the town and country was set in a uproar, just because an old man was going to marry a young girl. As if that would mend the matter at all, when there was no such thing as mending it in the world?

Mr. Mulligan moved his new young wife into a nice house, nicely furnished, and told her there she was, meaning, I suppose, that there was no help for her. But she thought he only meant that she was mistress. Everything was in order. Everything was fine. The rooms were newly furnished, but lacked the cozy look of home. The walls were high and chilly. The atmosphere was a strange atmosphere, and Sarah didn't know for a time whether she was going to get used to it.

But there she was, alone and thoughtful. Before this, she believed that as soon as she was married, all her old friends would flock in to see her and express their envy of her good luck. That would make her so much happier you know! But not a living soul came near her. A few middle-aged people, old housekeepers themselves, dropped in to make wedding calls; but as for the young folks, her schoolmates and playmates, they kept away from her, and looked askance at her in meeting.

Never mind! thought she to herself. At least, I can make up for it by having my sisters and my mother around me.

Yes, she tried that experiment, and tried it thoroughly. This was the way of it. She could not bear to be left alone so much—no young girl could. Therefore she sent for her family to come and share her good fortune freely. And they came.

Susan, and Julia, and Ellen, and Fanny, and Mary, they were all there, with their mother, and Elizabeth besides. They were there every day. Some of them stayed to dinner; some stayed to supper; some were there all through the evening. They took there all through the evening. They took short of a pun by a single letter; overhauled the kitchen, the parlor, and the pantry. In all her domestic arrangements, great and small, they had busy and energetic hands. They arranged the table, and hunted over Mrs. Mulligan's wardrobe. They wondered, and held up their hands and admired. In truth, they—the Storms family—and not Mr. Mulligan's wardrobe, because the occupants of this newly bought and furnished house.

Mr. Mulligan began to grow nettled. Sarah, said he one day, don't go to your mother's so much!

It did not sound like a request; it was an order. She looked up to him in surprise.

I think your friends are here altogether more than is for your good. And plunged his face into his newspaper.

The strangest feeling came over her. Did she ever stop to think that her husband would address such language to her as that—and so soon after marriage, too?

Not long after, Sarah's mother sent her a nice pudding for dinner.

See here, said the young wife to her husband. See what the folks have sent in!

A pudding, hey? Well, how many do they expect you to send back again?—and utterly refused to taste a bit of it.

Sarah's heart was cut again. A young girl like her never had thought of such a thing of her husband, especially as she knew beforehand how rich he was. He could have fed the Storms family the year round, and not felt it; the trouble was he wouldn't.

Christmas came along. Mr. Mulligan said she teasingly. He grunted a monosyllable at her, and listened.

I want to make mother a present, you know, she has been so kind to us since we were married.

Altogether too kind, he answered. Her eyes filled instantly.

But I can't help wanting to do something for my own mother, said she.

Then why don't you do it? but not with my money, let me tell you.

There it was. She had married his pile of money, without stopping to consider what kind of man she was likely to get along with it; and now she was learning at a terrible cost of her unhappiness.

Of course Mrs. Storms heard of his sentiments towards her. But she was satisfied for a time to ponder upon it by herself. There was ever so much pride in the way, to begin with; and how could she make a needless fuss before the public? Therefore she concluded to be silent, to see how matters would come out.

One evening again, Sarah made a little party, unknown to her husband; she thought that thus she could avoid irritating him. For he seemed to have grown so crabbed and cross of late there was no trying to do anything with him.

They were all assembled in one room, and having the gayest time of it you can think of. Susan, and Julia, and Ellen, and Fanny, and Elizabeth—they were there in the best of dress and the highest of spirits—together with Mrs. Storms, of course. She had engineered this little affair herself, all with her own hands and brain. This she meant for a sort of coup d'état to show Mr. Mulligan, the husband of her daughter Sarah, that some things could be done just as well as others, and that she knew how to do them too. So there she was with her whole family, except Mr. Storms, but he was nobody.

Such a time as they were having! The "best lamps" were lighted, and made day of the darkest corners. The fire glowed in a mass of living coals warming every hand and heart there was there. Sarah looked as composed and courageous as she possibly could, while her mother kept one eye on the rest, and the other—the better one—on the door. If Mr. Mulligan came in, she was to assume responsibility, authority, everything else. Sarah was to go just for nothing.

I'll break him of this habit of growling! thought Mrs. Storms; and the sooner it's done the better for him and for us! I'll let him know that I am still my daughter's mother, and that I never throw her away when I consented to let her marry him. We shall see who rules, and see pretty soon, I'm thinking!

The fun went on—games, plays, romps, chat and laughter. The room was a little world of life and happiness. Mrs. Storms pretended to take a part with them herself, but still she was uneasy, not to say uncomfortable. Sarah didn't exactly know how she did feel. She felt like anybody but the mistress, or even the viceregent of her own house. She was thinking about her lord—thinking timidly about him; thinking she had a great deal rather he would stay out awhile than come in.

But her thinking about it made but little difference, for before even mother Storms herself was aware of it, the door opened, and in he bolted.

He stood stock still surveying them all. Then he marched straight to his chair by the fire, and thumped down into it with a rich man's emphasis.

Mrs. Storms ventured to accost him first. I'd like to know whose house you think this is, he replied to her.

Mrs. Mulligan, she assuming a vast deal of dignity, your wife is my daughter!

And that's all the relationship! I wish you'd remember it! I didn't marry the whole family!

The mother grew red, and lost her temper. Do you mean to say, sir, she asked, that we are not at liberty to come into her house?

This is my house.

And as much her's as yours. Never! I just recollect that if you please, I own my own property. I promised only to support her. And here I find I have a whole family on my shoulders. It appears too much like beggars.

Beggars, sir? demanded Mrs. Storms. Do you mean to call us beggars, sir?

It's getting to be not much better, I can assure you.

Sarah, do you hear that? Do you intend to sit and hear your mother and your own sisters insulted before your face, in your own house too? Will you submit to that, my daughter?

You have no authority here, madam, said Mr. Mulligan. You had better leave, I am the master here!

Upon which she got in a rage and bade her daughters all follow her, Sarah included. I command you to stay here with me! said the husband to his wife.

Sarah set up to cry.

Come along with your mother, said the latter, going forward and taking a persuasive hold of her.

If you go, I forbid you this house forever! said he. You leave at your own peril!

The mother was too much for her. Even she, designing as she was, forgot the consequences, and trooped her off with the rest. She hoped that Mr. Mulligan would come round in the morning, and be sorry for it.

So in the morning, she sent for some of her daughter's clothes. But the determined husband would not let a single rag go. He said he knew his rights, and he intended to maintain them. And he did.

The consequence of it was that a separation took place; the matter became public scandal; Sarah was a poor broken down woman; her mother fretted her own and Mr. Mulligan moved off to other and distant quarters. And so this bubble of Mrs. Storms' own blowing, had broken, and fallen a mere tear drop to the ground! But not a girl in all that town has thought to give away her heart or hand since, without first making particular inquiry in relation to the temper as well as the pocket of her future husband.

All other young ladies would do well to take a hint or two from their example.—Portland Transcript.

Rather Strong.

"Why is it, my son, that when you drop your bread and butter, it is always the butter side down."

"I don't know. It hadn't ought to, had it? The strongest side ought to be uppermost, hadn't it, ma? and this yere is some of the strongest butter I ever seed."

Hush up; it's some of your aunt's churning."

Did she churn it? The great lazy thing."

"What, your aunt?"

"No; this yere butter. To make that poor old woman churn it, when it is strong enough to churn itself!"

"Be still, Ziba; it only wants working over."

"Well, marm, if I's you, when I did it, I'd put in lots of lasses!"

"You good-for-nothing! I've ate a great deal worse butter in the most aristocratic New York boarding houses."

"Well, people of rank ought to eat it."

"Cause it's rank butter."

"You varmint, you! What makes you talk so smart?"

"The butter's taken the skin off my tongue, mother!"

"Ziba, don't lie! I can't throw away the butter. It don't signify."

"I tell you what I'd do with it, marm. I'd keep it to draw blisters. You ought to see the flies keel over and die as soon as they touch it."

Ziba, don't exaggerate; but here's twenty-five cents, go to the store, and buy a pound of fresh."

Swearing.

Of all the detestable practices with which we are acquainted, that of swearing is the most odious, and at the same time the most senseless. We call it a practice, for such it certainly is. Notwithstanding man's natural depravity, profanity is not an element of his nature; it is acquired by association, and in this fast age it is almost reduced to a science, for we have seen individuals who were proud of their proficiency in swearing. Not only this, but some have gone so far as to vie with each other in conjuring up their blackest conception of an oath, and giving it vivacy of expression. We have said that this is a senseless vice, for we have never yet heard a satisfactory apology for it.

The habitual swearer has no excuse whatever for the exercise of his filthy habit. Those who in the heat of passion give loose rein to that unruly member, the tongue, may with some show of consistency, urge the blindness of their passion as an apology for their rashness of expression, but he who enjoys the proper exercise of all his mental faculties, whose mind is not disturbed with anger, and who has no motive to pollute his mouth with the venom of profanity, is certainly, highly reprehensible for giving indulgence to such a pernicious vice.

So corrupt is the present generation, that almost every grade of society is infected more or less with the pestiferous breath of profanity. Man is a creature of imitation, he is an apt scholar, clings with tenacity to his learning, and rarely forgets impressions taught by association and observation. Hence it is that, improper thoughts and profane expressions become contagious when caught up from the cess pools of corrupt association and reiterated in more elevated circles.

It is an old saying that "evil communications corrupt good manners," and its correctness is surely verified by the avidity with which the young untutored mind grasps the obscene ideas, vulgar words and profane expression with which the unwritten vocabulary of our language is surfeited. Here then is one objection to the practice of swearing; if indulged in by adults, the young will hear, and having heard they will repeat.

The profane may be in every other respect a gentleman; he may be possessed of courteous address, bland manners, affable disposition, but if he has contracted this base propensity, it alone is sufficient to stigmatize his character, and counterbalance all his virtues. A strict observance of nine precepts of the divine decalogue does not justify a wilful disregard of the tenth, and third in the order of priority and importance, it is written, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."

Hoops and Concerts.

At a fashionable concert, lately, benches were used instead of chairs. When the doors were thrown open, the audience commenced to pour in briskly; and in a short time the ushers announced to the manager that the house was full.

Impossible! said the manager, who was at the time acting as ticket seller.

It's a fact, sir, replied the usher, and you'd better stop the sale of tickets, for no more can get in; there are no seats left.

I'll go and see, and suiting the action to the word, he slipped from the ticket office to the door of the hall, looked in, and beheld a sight that filled him with dismay. The immense benches extending across the hall served only to seat, each, about six ladies—and their hoops! The hall was completely "jammed," but with an audience whose numbers were anything but large.

Determined to make up for losses, he inserted on the next night the following line conspicuously in his posters:—

Ladies, wearing hoops, will be charged double price for seats.

Strange to say, the demand was readily complied with, the hall being well filled by persons who yielded to the novelty of the thing themselves, in order to enjoy the fun of seeing how it would operate on others.

Mummies.

Mummification, is, without doubt, the most extraordinary of all the known means, of disposal of the dead. Ancient Egypt is peculiarly celebrated for this process. It was there determined by religious consideration. It was commenced at periods beyond the farthest verge of authentic history, and remained in vogue till the sixth century of the Christian era. Not only was the process of mummification applied in Egypt to man, but to animals, the varieties and the number of which thus preserved baffled all comprehension. The Grotto of Samoun contains a number of chambers which cannot be traversed in less than five hours, yet they are so filled with mummified animals, that they may not be inaptly regarded as a museum of Egyptian natural history. At Thebes, again, the mummified bodies of apes, serpents, and crocodiles mingle, thousands upon thousands, with the mortal remains, similarly preserved tion. On the other hand, the girl who works for her living, earning it by her honest labor, who does not deign to encourage the address of a laboring man; who would set her cap for a gentleman, forsooth. The mechanic's daughter educated on her father's earnings to be a fine lady, encourages the attentions of a set of fops and dandies, who drive honest men away from her in disgust, and she becomes the victim of some sorry sharper or shallow fool. Now this is all wrong—deplorably, wretchedly wrong. Girls should know that men, superior to themselves in education and position, do not always associate with them for good. Men should know that by marrying girls educated in habits of life above their fortunes, they are not likely to have good wives. A little sound sense will enable any man to see that it is better to have a wife grateful for more than she expected than grumbling at less. It is delightful going up the hill of fortune; but horrible, jolting, aggravating work to come down.

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

"BORN TO NO MASTER, OF NO SECT ARE WE."

ADVERTISEMENTS, ETC. We feel thankful to our friends for their favors, but we do hope they will hand them in before 10 o'clock, on Friday forenoon, if they wish to see them appear in the next day's paper; as it is impossible to ensure their insertion if they are not given to us previous to that time.

ARREST OF A SUPPOSED HORSE THIEF. A man, giving his name as George Howe, was arrested yesterday morning, by Charles E. French, at the store of Elbridge Clapp, of this town, where he was refreshing himself with an early breakfast on crackers and cheese. He appeared no way disconcerted at the charge brought against him, and gave vague and unsatisfactory answers to the principal enquiries made. He admitted however that he had recently been an inmate of Plymouth Jail, but for what offence he did not seem disposed to tell; his liberation from its gloomy walls he attributed to the kindness of a man and woman, who had taken quite an interest in his situation. He had in his possession when arrested, a horse and wagon, various agricultural implements, corn, hay, etc., the property no doubt of some honest farmer, who had been thus summarily relieved of it by this freebooter. He was taken back to Hingham by Mr. F. for recognition and commitment.

We have since learned from Mr. French that his man has been fully identified as George Howe, the notorious horse thief, whose deeds have won him no enviable reputation: He was fully committed, and ere this is reaping the fruits of his folly in the County Jail.

He is a German by birth; apparently about thirty-five years of age, and from his general appearance, few would suppose him capable of committing such crimes.

LECTURE AT JOHNSON'S HALL. Mr. Squire, who is favorably known to our citizens as a "Trance Medium," will speak in that state, at the above named place, to-morrow afternoon, commencing at a quarter past 2 o'clock.

ADAMS LITERARY ASSOCIATION. We were rather premature in our notice of this Association's intentions on Fast Day evening, in our issue of last week. Their communication was not then in type, much less in the paper. It required therefore a long stretch of our readers' imagination to discover its merits. It will, however, be found in our columns to-day, for which we bespeak a kind reception.

DAQUERRETYPE SALOON. Mr. McElroy, it will be seen by his advertisement has again re-visited us, and selected a favorite site for his operations, where he will be happy to wait on those who may honor him with a call. As an artist, Mr. E. has but few equals. He has made the art a study for years, and brought it to great perfection. His likenesses are executed in the most faithful manner, and are true reflections of the original. His success with those of children, (which are the most difficult to be taken,) has gained him a well-merited reputation. We therefore cheerfully recommend him to the favorable notice of our citizens.

DANCING SCHOOL. We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. Walker. He comes with written recommendations from Judge Hon. Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson, Rev. B. Froet, and from many other of the best families in New England. We think he is deserving a liberal patronage, and learn that he has secured a large number of scholars from many of our first families.

WE would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of rich and desirable dry goods, by our old friends Meers, Chandler & Co., 6 and 8 Summer street, Boston.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT. Reports were in circulation in our streets on Monday last, that a most serious accident had happened on the Old Colony Railroad; that some score or so of human lives had been sacrificed by a crash of cars, caused by collision; but later accounts gave us the facts of the case; it appears that a short distance this side of North Ridgewater, some rails had been placed upon the road, either by design or otherwise, throwing the cars from the track, smashing a few of them, and producing slight personal injuries. We sympathize with the Company in their misfortune, and would cheerfully assist them in again moving on in the even tenor of their way, provided, however, that they will promise in future to be a little more accommodating.

RAILROAD TIME ALTERED. See advertisement in another column. We congratulate the public on this important change, and would here tender our humble respects to the Directors of the Old Colony, for their timely consideration of our wants, in furnishing a new train, which the accommodation of the community has long required. The smallest favors always thankfully received.

FAST DAY. Governor Gardner, by and with the consent of his Executive Councilors, has set apart Thursday next, for the special purposes of a Fast. He recommends many good things; among others, the observance of the day for our spiritual advancement; the adjustment of past omissions, and the opening of new accounts on a clean ledger.

NORFOLK AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY. This society held its annual meeting at Dedham in the absence of Hon. Marshall P. Wilder, Rev. Ralph Sanger of Dover was chosen Chairman. The following list of officers was elected for the ensuing year:

President—Hon. Marshall P. Wilder of Dorchester.

Vice President—Benjamin V. French of Braintree, John Gardner of Dedham, Ralph Sanger of Dover, Charles C. Sewell of Medford, Josiah Brigham of Quincy, Arthur W. Austin of West Roxbury.

Recording Secretary—Henry O. Hildreth of Dedham.

Corresponding Secretary—Charles C. Sewall of Dedham.

Treasurer—Henry W. Richards of Dedham.

Executive Committee—Marshall P. Wilder of Dorchester, Ous Carey of Foxboro', Aaron D. Weld of West Roxbury, Joseph H. Billings of West Roxbury, Truman Clarke of Walspole.

Finance Committee and Auditors—Charles B. Shaw of Dedham, Martin B. Inches of Dedham, Eben Wight of Dedham.

PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC DENTISTRY. No place in this country has done more for the promotion of this difficult branch of science than Boston, and we believe our indefatigable friends, Drs. Cummings & Flagg, stand before all others for their public spirit and enterprise in making so many desirable improvements in their profession.

The present popular methods of preparing and inserting artificial teeth, plates and fillings, have been introduced by them; in fact, there are hardly any improvements now in use, but what are largely indebted to their practical skill and experience. Their preparations, such as Nerve Anodyne for the toothache, Powder for cleansing the teeth, Wash for hardening the gums and purifying the breath, are all well known to the public, and in general use. By analytical examination, they are declared from any and all ingredients injurious to the teeth, while as a cleanser and purifier, they are superior to any in use.

We have before spoken of the establishment of Drs. Cummings & Flagg, and alluded to the beauty of their specimens, the extent of their business, and the polite attentions all receive, who call on them at their elegant apartments, 25 Tremont street, and it is therefore gratifying to us to notice their increasing prosperity and success, for we believe a discriminating public is always ready to encourage true merit, especially when accompanied by industry, intelligence and perseverance.—Boston Traveller.

MR. F. HAY DEN offers for sale the finest lot of Flower Seeds, ever offered in Quincy, both imported and grown here; in New Ham, Sh. and Massachusetts. Some in boxes of 4, 6, and 22 varieties; and single packages of fine kinds. Also—Garden Seeds from different seed establishments; and a few perennial garden plants. Quincy, Apr 11 2m Incidents in the Life of Richard Dowdell.

Richard Dowdell, the subject of the following notice, was born in Ireland, and came to this country about twenty years ago. His age is not exactly known, but he is supposed, by his friends, who knew him in Ireland, to be about ninety-two years.

When first known to the writer of this notice, he resided with Mr. Matthew Carroll, in the West District, in Quincy. He had then the marks of old age. He assisted Mr. Carroll in the cultivation of a lot of land about his house, and was remarkable for industry, and neat cultivation; but received no compensation except his board.

On the removal of Mr. Carroll from the District, Mr. Dowdell went to live with Mr. Daniel Knox, who found him in board, and gave him five dollars per month for his work. He remained with Mr. Knox about two years, and when Mr. K. retired from the granite business to the farm, Mr. Dowdell went to live with his son-in-law, Mr. Patrick Reynolds, where he now resides. Mr. Reynolds owns a lot of upland, with about half of an acre of peat meadow. He has a garden neatly cultivated by Mr. Dowdell, and keeps a cow, a pig and fowls. These Mr. Dowdell has had the care of the past season. He has also worked on the roads and peat meadows, about forty days, at a dollar per day, and has the promise of having his wages raised, should he live to be a hundred years old, and retains his health and strength unimpaired.

Mr. Dowdell is a temperance man; makes no use of intoxicating liquors, and very little tobacco. He is remarkable for strength and endurance. He will wheel gravel all day without complaint, and with little appearance of fatigue. He is often seen at work when younger men are loafing about the grog shops; and judging from his actions, he thinks labor essential to life and health, and not a curse entailed on the human race.

Mr. Dowdell is an early riser, and fond of animals. He may be seen in the morning leading or driving his cow to pasture, with his staff and two terrier dogs, and at night returning in the same manner. He is also an owner of real estate, and presumed to be a man of consideration, as a conspicuous place in the District has taken the name of Dowdell Place.

Mr. Dowdell's advantages for an education do not appear to have been great; but his address at the laying of the corner stone of the new Lyceum, and his charge to the Architect, indicate an order of mind, which under more favorable circumstances, might have left its mark on the age.

But notwithstanding the disadvantages of education, he may still be looked upon as a model of temperance and industry, and a rare example of a vigorous old age.

A CARD.

R. H. Fletcher acknowledges the reception, on Tuesday evening last, from the pupils of the Coddington Grammar School, of the works of the late Dr. Kane's Arctic Explorations, together with a liberal amount of Gold, to be used at his discretion, for further additions. For these tokens of regard, as well as for the uniform kindness, respect and generosity manifested during the past year, these worthy pupils have his most hearty thanks, and best wishes for their present and future prosperity and happiness. Quincy, April 11. 1w

"BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS." A Counterfeit. A person pretending to have been a partner with W. P. Pettridge in the above article is palming off a spurious preparation on the public. All are counterfeits unless the name Pettridge & Co. is written on the side, and W. P. Pettridge & Co. printed on the front of the label. The genuine article is for sale by all respectable Druggists, who frown down counterfeits and impostors.

White Teeth, perfumed breath and beautiful complexion can be required by using the "Balm of a Thousand Flowers." What lady or gentleman would remain under the curse of a disagreeable breath, when by using the Balm of a Thousand Flowers would render it sweet. Quincy, March 28. 1m FEAST DAY NOT FAST DAY. Mr. French, the gentlemanly proprietor of the Granite Saloon, has just received from a friend in Virginia, as one of a lot of oysters, as we ever before recollect seeing. They are from a Mr. Zanzinger, whose plantation lays on the Potomac river, twenty-five miles north of the Rip Raps. Served up in Mr. F's peculiar manner, they will furnish a treat that would make an epicure's mouth water.—Drop in this afternoon and test the truth of our assertion.

Poetry.

Look on the Bright Side.

Old man, I prethee tell me why
You always smile so merrily
Though others oft look wan and sad;
How do you care beguile?
Though doom'd to toil and penury
And bowing down with age;
Yet still light-hearted, blithe and gay
You tread life's weary stage.

I'll tell you, my youthful friend,
The good old man replied,
"What'er my hap I always look
Upon the brightest side.
O'er all the land there's not a man
How hard so e'er his lot,
But if he will, can often find
A bright and sunny spot."

I've lived and toiled for many a year
Beneath the summer's sun,
And in the winter cold and drear
My labor still went on;
And in that varied course of years
Died much of my feeble tongue,
But still I always strove to look
Upon the brightest side.

When sickness came, and hours of pain
Dragged wearily along,
And mourning sad and mournful rings vain
Dropt from my feeble tongue,
Kind hearts were there and kindly words
Fell softly on mine ear,
And loving ones were always nigh
My fainting heart to cheer.

And through a long and varied life,
I've learned this lesson well,
That in this world of care and strife
There's more of good than ill,
And even in poverty and woe
Peace with us will abide;
Man may be happy if he will
But see the brightest side.

A Dream of Summer.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.

Blind as the morning breath of June
The South-west breeze blew;
And through its haze the winter noon
Seems warm as summer's dew.

The snow-placed Angel of the North
Has dropped his icy spear;
Again the mossy earth looms forth,
Again the streams gush clear.

The fox his hill-side call forsakes,
The musk-tail leaves his nook,
The blue bird in the meadow brakes
Is singing with the brook.

"Bear up, O mother Nature!" cry
Bird, breeze, and streamlet free;
"Our winter voices prophesy
Of summer days to thee!"

So in those winters of the soul,
By bitter blasts and drear
O'erstep from Memory's frozen pole,
Will sunny days appear.

Revering Hope and Faith, they show
The soul its living powers,
And how beneath the winter's snow
Lie germs of summer flowers!

The Night is mother of the Day,
The winter of the Spring;
And ever upon old Decay
The greenest mosses cling.

Behind the cloud the star-light lurks,
Through shrouds the sunbeams fall;
For God who loveth all his works,
Has left this hope with all!

Bee Economy.

So work the honey bees:
Creatures that by a rule in Nature, teach
The art of order to a peopled kingdom.
They have a king, and officers of sorts,
Where some, like magistrates, out-reach at home;
Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad;
Others, like soldiers, armed in their stings,
Make boot upon the summer's velvet buds;
Which pillage they with merry marching bring home;
To thee royal of thine empire;
The sting is in the stinger, sure;
The civil citizens kneading up the honey;
The poor mechanic porters crowding in
Their heavy burdens at the narrow gate;
The bee-eyed justice, with his surly hum,
Delivering o'er to executors pale
The lazy yawning drone.

Anecdotes.

At a party a bachelor made the astounding assertion that every lady in the room made a practice of taking off her left stocking last.
One half denied the fact, the others declared that it was so he had no right to know it, and with one voice they pronounced him "a gentleman." He was so buffeted that he was glad of an opportunity to give the following explanation:

Which ever stocking a lady takes off first,
the other is necessarily left, which chapter of course be taken off last.

A Frenchman, stopping at a tavern, asked for Jacob.
There is no such person here, said the landlord.
"Is not a person I want, said, but the beer warned with the poker.
Well, answered mine host, that is flip.
Ah, yes, said you are in de right; I mean Philip.

I presume, said Jim Horn, on entering a hardware store, you deal in all sorts of nails?
Certainly, replied the clerk in attendance.
Then I will trouble you for a pound of toe nails.

Who are the meek? was a question put by a missionary in Jamaica, when questioning some little black boys on the fifth chapter of Matthew.
One of them patiently answered, those who give soft answers to rough questions.

whatever be its cause, natural or supernatural is worthy of investigation. There is no mistake about the effects or the facts. The cause in some cases can be accounted for through the workings of nature, but most of them, particularly the intelligence connected with them, remain as yet a mystery.

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

Saturday, April 18th, 1857.

ADVERTISEMENTS, ETC. We feel thankful to our friends for their favors, but we do hope they will hand them in before 10 o'clock, on Friday forenoon, if they wish to see them appear in the next day's paper; as it is impossible to ensure their insertion if they are not given to us previous to that time.

George L. Gill, Esq.

In a recent number of the Hingham Journal, under the head of "Glimpses of the Legislature," we find the following sketch of one of our Representatives:—

"George L. Gill, Representative from Quincy, is about 34 years of age, and a very estimable citizen. He is a book-binder by trade, but keeps a bookstore in connection with his business, and is a thriving business man. We are glad to see his industry and perseverance rewarded, for he is a native of our town, and we like to have its young men, as they locate elsewhere, act well and do well, and establish for the old town a character for enterprise and go-ahead-ness. Mr. Gill is a new member of the House, but an attentive and intelligent one. He is ever true to his appointment there, and will give a good account of himself. He sees clearly, judges accurately, and is an excellent member of the Committee on printing, of which Hon. A. J. Wright is Chairman. Under their supervision, the printing should be done, and fairly paid for. We have known Mr. Gill for a few years, and know that he is worthy the esteem he enjoys of the citizens of Quincy, and of a large circle of attached friends. We have no idea that he is disposed to be a brawling politician, for he is discreet in every other matter. He has heretofore been elected Town Clerk, and filled the office with honor to himself, and gave perfect satisfaction to the inhabitants of the town. He will not talk loud nor long in the House, but he will work faithfully and truly,—work not more for party than he will for such measures as are promotive of the general good. He is a candid, affable man, and very highly respected."

ANNUAL MEETING. At a meeting of the Quincy Fire Insurance Company the following Directors were chosen:—

William S. Morton, Israel W. Munroe, Thomas C. Webb, Whitcomb Porter, Stephen Bates, William B. Duggan and Thomas Curtis of Quincy.

Gideon F. Thayer and Albert Thompson of Boston.

Alfred Loring of Hingham.

Apollis Randall of Braintree.

George Marston of Barnstable.

H. W. Blanchard of Dorchester.

Sumner A. Hayward, of N. Bridgewater.

Royal W. Turner of Randolph.

Solomon J. Deal of Cohasset.

Charles Breck of Milton.

Jonathan H. Cobb of Dedham.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors the following officers were chosen:—

President—William S. Morton.

Treasurer—Israel W. Munroe.

Secretary—Stephen Bates.

Solicitor—George White.

THE BEST OF CLOTHING. We take pleasure in calling the attention of the public to the advertisements of Mr. Dodds. He has just received a most rich and choice variety of Spring Goods, and is ready to furnish Gentlemen with Clothing made in the most thorough manner, and the latest and most genteel styles. It will give our readers enjoyment, we think, to call at his Clothing Establishment, and view his goods, even if they do not wish to buy.

SINGLE SENATORIAL DISTRICTS. By the Act amending the Constitution of this State, in the matter of Senators, recently passed, the people will be called on, by proclamation, to accept or reject the amendment, early in May. If the amendment is accepted, a census will be taken, and the State divided into Senatorial Districts by the Legislature.

INDEPENDENCE. John Quincy Adams, Esq., of this town, has been engaged to read the Declaration of Independence before the City Authorities of Boston, on the coming 4th of July.

NAVAL OFFICER. Col. Charles G. Greene, editor of the Post, has been re-appointed Naval Officer of the Port of Boston. This is a high and deserved compliment to a faithful public officer; and we rejoice that his labors efforts to advance correct political principles have been appreciated.

ARREST OF GEORGE HOWE, alias HOUSE. The press, without a single exception, have been misled in their statements in regard to the arrest of this notorious culprit. The Boston Herald has it that he was arrested in Pawtucket while the Plymouth Rock, that he was taken by sheriff Hersey, of Hingham; neither of which statements are true. The simple version of the affair is this: Howe turned up in Quincy on Thursday morning, of last week, and was at once recognized by Mr. Charles E. French, a citizen of this town, who had met with him before. He was told that he was known, and demanded to surrender, which summons he reluctantly obeyed; and, under the special escort of Mr. F. was marched off to the Lock-Up without further trouble. After being safely secured, with the assistance of an officer, Mr. French took him to Hingham, and delivered him over to sheriff Hersey.

We are all more or less indebted to Mr. French for the interest he has taken in this affair. To his individual exertions the community has been relieved of a desperate character, and many a soul has had his property restored to him.

THE WEATHER FOR APRIL has been thus far very unsettled; changeable in the extreme; with snow, sleet and rain; winter truly may be said to linger in the lap of spring, with a prospect of its continuing so until mid-summer. The New Orleans are tantalizing us almost daily with an array of the good things which they are enjoying—strawberries, green corn, peas, etc., as if our situation was not uncomfortable enough without such invidious comparisons.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT. With pleasure we refer our readers to the advertisement of Mr. Lombard, whom it will be seen has reopened under the most favorable auspices, that old and centrally located stand, formerly kept by M. B. Beckford, over Mr. Elbridge Clapp's store.

Mr. L. has been well schooled in his profession, having for quite a number of years been the principal in the large tailoring establishment of George Savil & Co.

It requires a practical eye, and an experienced hand, to furnish, as it is termed, a neat fit—one that will not disgrace the symmetry of the form, under a slovenly waste of material, and that will not give more pain than pleasure in wearing. But to a practical tailor, one who is master of his business, success invariably crowns his labors; to this class, we are happy to include Mr. Lombard. If economy and neatness is an object in replenishing your wardrobe, give him a call.

An article on the Banking system of this country, from the pen of a most able financier, which was intended for this day's paper, is unavoidably crowded out. It gives a full and succinct history of this institution, and we bespeak for it in advance an attentive perusal.

RECOLLECT. Mr. Walker commences his Dancing School to-day at the Hancock House.

THE ADAMS LITERARY ASSOCIATION. had a fine time on Thursday Evening. Town Hall was crowded to excess. Our young people acquitted themselves with great credit.

NO FRESH CLOTHING DEFECTION since our last—Kallcock, Farrington, etc. The opening of the next mail however may reveal something new.

Summary of Intelligence.

ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

In Illinois they have discovered, twenty-five feet under ground, the skeleton of a man who must have been twenty-three feet long. A learned professor has measured the bones. This chap must have been a relative of Longfellow's savage, who flung his grand-mother up into the moon.

An idea of the amount of letter writing in the United States may be inferred by the number of the postage stamps sold, which, during the last year, was one hundred and fifty millions.

Seven is said to be the number that expresses perfection, because it contains the triangle which is three, and the square, which is four,—measures by which all others are gauged.

Australia produced one hundred and twenty tons of gold during the year 1856.

It appears that the coal extracted from the mines of Pennsylvania last year, has been equal to the sum of fifty millions of dollars, which is well up to the yield of the gold mines in California.

CHURCHILL & BROWN. Having taken the Shop at the corner of Hancock and Granite streets, are now ready to execute Painting, Marbling, Gilding, Washing, Paper Hanging and White Washing, in the most thorough manner.

All orders left at Dr. Marient's Shop will be promptly attended to.

N. B. They will also continue at their Old Stand, at Quincy Point.

CLAUDE'S CHURCHILL. FOSTER BROWN.

THE DAGUERTYPE ROOMS of Mr. McElroy continue to be visited by our citizens with evident satisfaction. Mr. E. will remain here but a short time longer; those therefore wishing a good likeness should improve their opportunity.

Special Notices.

ADAMS LITERARY ASSOCIATION. There will be a meeting of this Association, in the hall over C. Gill & Co's Bookstore, on MONDAY EVENING next, at 7 o'clock precisely.

Question for Debate. Ought the Banking Capital of Massachusetts to be increased?

H. LUNT, Secretary.

"BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS"—A Counterfeit. A person pretending to have been a partner with W. P. Pettigree in the above article is palming off a spurious preparation on the public. All are counterfeits unless the name Pettigree & Co. is written on the side, and W. P. Pettigree & Co. is printed on the front of the label. The genuine article is for sale by all respectable Druggists, who frown down counterfeits and impostors.

White Teeth, perfumed breath and beautiful complexion can be required by using the "Balm of a Thousand Flowers." What lady or gentleman would remain under the curse of a disagreeable breath, when by using the Balm of a Thousand Flowers would render it sweet.

Marriages.

In this town, on the 12th inst., by Rev. G. M. Bradley, Mr. William J. Vinal to Miss Martha A. Brown.

It is so long since we have received any mark of sympathy from the votaries of Hy-men, that we scarcely know in this instance, how to express ourselves. Our friends however will please accept our thanks for their kind remembrance of us, with the sincere wish that all their bright hopes and pleasing anticipations may be more than realized.

Deaths.

In this town, on the 14th inst., Mrs. Rhoda Nightingale, aged 81 years and 11 days.

On the 13th inst., Ruth S., daughter of Mr. Samuel and Mrs. Mary Clay, aged 1 year and 7 months.

On the 14th inst., Lydia Ellen, only daughter of Mr. Edward and Mrs. Caroline L. Goodale.

On board of the United States Schooner, Col. Bliss, of Cape Sable, on the 15th ult., Capt. James Spear of Baltimore, formerly of this town, aged fifty years. [Baltimore papers please copy.]

Capt. Spear was a son of the late Jedediah Spear of this town. At the age of eighteen years, he was compelled to leave home and go to sea, by the advice of his physician; since that time he has followed the sea, and for the last five years he has been commander of the United States Schooner, Col. Bliss, and died at his post. He leaves a wife and children in Tampa, Florida, and a large circle of relatives in this town; among whom is an aged mother, who feels deeply the loss of her long absent son. May she be comforted by the thought that she shall soon meet him in Heaven, to be separated no more forever.

Poetry.

The Workman's Sabbath.

Respite from the shop and loom,
Respite from the toiler's doom,
From the ceaseless whirl of wheels,
From the anvil's iron peals,
From the fierce unkindly strife,
From the bonds of week-day life.

Now the engine stays its roar,
The machinery's whirl is o'er,
Now no mill-bell tolls and deep,
Wakes the little ones from sleep,
And no crowd of workmen waits
Shivering at the factory gates.

Why a change one day has made!
All the teeming hosts of trade
Are deserted by the crowd;
And the week-day tumult loud,
From the market and the square,
Troubles not the Sabbath air.

From the tower and steeple tall,
The sweet bells to worship call;
Through the porch, and open door
Go the rich and poor;
Sublime the hymns sung by side,
Whom the week has scattered wide.

Health.

Health is a rose maiden,
That revels in sun and flowers,
And always blossoms laden,
Laughs out in the darkest hours;
Life glows in her finger tips,
Lurks in the starry eyes,
Hangs on the glow of her ruby lips,
And deep in her blushes lies.

She loves the cottage children,
That gambol on the lawn,
And the woe-one presiding baby,
Asleep on its mother's knee,
She loves to see cheeks with cherries,
And binds their brows with pearls,
And prets, though brown as berries,
She maketh the grey eyes.

This nymph is Nature's daughter,
Delights in the morning dew,
Drinks deep from the crystal water,
That mirrors the bending knee,
Rooms over the breezy mountain,
The prairie wild and wide,
And is found by the limpid fountain,
That graces the valley side.

Without her, hills are desolate,
And palace gardens plain,
And the life of a monarch weary,
And power and riches vain,
But with her, joy and gladness,
Springs from the clover up,
And a world of grace lies hidden
In the depths of her purplish cup.

The Truth Doth Never Die

Though kingdoms, states and empires fall,
And dynasties decay;
Though cities crumble into dust,
And nations decay;
Though gorgeous towers and palaces
In heaps of ruin lie,
Which once was proudest of the proud,
The Truth doth never die!

We'll mourn o'er the silent past,
Its glories are not dead;
Although its men of high renown
Be numbered with the dead,
We'll grieve not o'er what earth has lost,
It cannot claim a sigh,
For the wrong alone both perished,
The Truth doth never die.

All of the past is living still—
All that is good and true;
The rest hath perished, and it did
Deceive to prove too;
The world rolls ever round and round,
And time rolls ever by,
And the wrong is ever ranted up,
But the Truth doth never die!

What Makes the Man

A truthful soul, a loving mind,
Full of affection for his kind,
A spirit firm, erect and free,
That never basely bends the knee,
That will not bear a feather's weight
Of slavery's chain, for small or great,
That truly speaks from God within,
That never makes a league with sin;
That loves the fetters despots make,
And saves the truth for its own sake;
That worships God and him alone,
And bows to where he sits his throne;
That trembles at no tyrant's nod,
A soul that fears no man or god;
And thus can smile at curse or ban,
This is the soul that makes a man.

Anecdotes.

Madam, said a doctor to the mother of a sweet, healthy babe, the ladies have deputed me to inquire what you do to have such a lovely, happy, uniformly good child.

The mother smiled for a moment over the strangeness of the question, and then replied, simply and beautifully:

Why God has given me a healthy child, and I let it alone.

How long did Adam remain in Paradise, before he sinned? asked an amiable wife of her husband.

Till he got a wife, he replied.

Well, how long did he remain after committing that sin? she again asked.

Till he was "snaked" out, to be sure, he replied.

I see in the papers, said Mrs. Partington, looking over her specs at Lee, that the Judge says the Fugitive Slave Bill is a statute.

I know'd the Fugitive Slave was a statute, but I thought the slave Bill, who ran away to be a fugitive, was flesh and blood like other people.

In a church there was a christening. After the ceremony, and while the minister was making out the certificate, he happened to say, Let me see, this is the 30th?

Thirtieth! exclaimed the indignant mother, indeed, it's only the eleventh!

The minister was alluding to the day of the month.

The Unfashionable Furs.

Now, father, I'll thank you for that five hundred dollars, you promised to give me this morning.

Yes, child, but I have not so much here now; ride to my office at twelve o'clock, and you shall have the money; I expect some tenants to pay their quarter's rent to-day, and can make up the sum for you by that time.

Five hundred, and not a dollar less; and you may as well say six hundred, said the gay laughing girl; she knew her father's fond indulgence.

"O! extravagant! exclaimed he, but whatever of reproach the remark implied, it was completely mollified by the caresses given at the same time.

Five hundred dollars, too much for a set of furs! no, indeed. Why Clara Morgan's coat is eight hundred, and mother thinks those she selected for me very cheap.

The man of business smiled upon his darling daughter, then left his elegant and comfortable house for the cheerless office in Wall street. At noon, Alice was in Wall street, too. Springing lightly from the carriage, she tripped up stairs, and was at Mr. Durand's desk just as a young female turned from it to go out. Having received the six hundred dollars, Alice left immediately, and was soon at Smith's bazaar, clattering gaily, with a young friend whom she met there.

Both were looking at the handsome cape and muff which Mrs. Durand had fixed upon for her daughter the day before. They were beautiful indeed, and the young ladies having exhausted the usual vocabulary of epithets in praising them turned to look at others. Just then a hollow, suppressed cough close by her, caused Alice to turn, as a young girl passed on her way to the sewing room. Thither, too, she went, a few moments after to see if a dress she had making was finished. The superintendent of work had it in her hand, and was reprimanding some one for coming so late.

I am sorry to disappoint you, Miss Durand, she said, seeing the young lady approach, but Jane Lester, who is embroidering your dress, did not get here till just now, and it is not yet finished. Then turning, she said, — Here, Jane, you must work fast, and make up for lost time.

As the sewing-girl took the garment she coughed again. Oh, that dismal sound! It touched the heart of Alice, for she recognized in Jane Lester, the one that passed her in the office and show-room. She looked at her a moment and thought, is it by the labor of such as she that my parents are paid, and I obtain money to lavish on costly clothes? She went up to the girl, who, by this time, was diligently at work, and said, in a kind, low tone:

Don't hurry at all; I'm not in the least need of the dress.

Thank you, ma'am, but I will soon have it done; if I am not at work on this, it will be on something else.

But why do you work at all? With that cough you ought not to come out in such weather as this.

What would become of us—of father, I mean, and the children—if I were idle?

Do you have to support them? asked Alice, with eager curiosity.

Not when father is well, but he has been sick all winter, and I paid out the last of his savings this morning; so I must try and earn more than ever. Again that cough.

Well, if that is the case you must consult a doctor, and do something for yourself, or you will be unable to work at all.

Jane shook her head sadly. No, indeed, we cannot afford to have a doctor for father, and I could not think of such a thing for myself.

There was a moment's pause—then Alice spoke. Give me your address and I will send a kind physician there who will not charge you anything. But he must prescribe for both, and you must follow his directions.

Never mind me, Miss, I'm not so bad as you think, and shall be better in a little while. I cough more than usual this morning, from having walked so fast.

Miss Durand returned to the store more thoughtful than when she left it. She did not get near the five hundred dollars furs, but took a set at one-fifth of that price, and departed—leaving her friend and the clerks astonished at her sudden change of taste.

Great was the indignation of her fashionable mother, when she learned the result of her daughter's shopping.

Why, that is not the set I chose? said she, when the boxes were opened.

I know it, mother, but I preferred these.

You have a strange taste, I must confess. Anybody can get Stone Martin.

Then I shall be a la mode, replied her daughter with a smile.

Yes, with the vulgar herd, said the lady, scornfully.

They are pretty, equally comfortable, and did not cost near as much as the Sable, answered Alice, in extenuation. But the mother was not to be mollified.

What had you to do with the cost? Didn't your father give you enough to pay for the others.

Yes, ma'am and more too.

How Clara Morgan will laugh when she sees those old fashioned things! And well she may.

I care not for that, and shall enjoy mine none the less for seeing her with more costly ones.

To avoid further remonstrances, Alice retired to the library, and addressed a note to Dr. Weston, the family physician. She begged him to call that evening at No. 14, Ann street, and prescribe for the two invalids there. Enclosed was a one hundred dollar bill from which she wished him to deduct his fee and appropriate the remainder to the necessities of the family. There was also a request for him to keep the matter secret.

He understood and appreciated this, for more than once he had been the almoner of Miss Durand's bounty, and he would not abuse her confidence.

A few days afterwards the dress came home. It was neatly made and beautifully embroidered.

As Alice examined the beautiful design and elaborate needlework, she thought of the trembling fingers that wrought it.

Yielding to the impulse of her heart, she set out immediately for the residence of Mr. Lester. Something told her that she would find Jane at home; and sure enough, she had become so much worse that it was impossible for her to leave the house, yet she was trying to sew, that the family might not starve. The doctor had found Jane and her father extremely ill; but as they were in a comfortable house, barely furnished with necessities, it is true, for not a superfluous article was there, he feared to wound their pride by offering more than his professional services. It is needless to say he returned the money sent by Alice, on the first opportunity.

Alice, to whom the contrast between her own luxurious home and the cheerless apartment she was in, suggested real poverty, which the feeble efforts of Jane to continue at work confirmed, felt that something more was needed.

This, surely, is disobedience to the doctor's orders, she said, gently taking the work from the invalid.

Now you must not plead necessity, she continued, for here is a reply in advance to that argument, and she slipped her purse into Jane's trembling hand.

No word of thanks fell from the poor girl's quivering lips, for the generous and so delicately given; but her glistening eyes and silent pressure of the hand that bestowed it, told her gratitude.

Many visits, after this, did the child of luxury and wealth make to the dwelling of the sick girl, whom neither her loving care nor physician's skill could save. Gradually she paled away, very gradually her strength failed, but her heart grew stronger all the while—strong to endure the sundering of sweet ties that bound her to earth, so near. Her father was recovering, so the meek daughter was resigned, since the little ones would have him to provide for them.

Alice was returning home from visiting the Lester family one day, and had just emerged from the cross street into Broadway, when a gayly decorated sleigh passed, filled with ladies and gentlemen of her acquaintance. She did not observe them, but Clara Morgan caught sight of her, and said to a young man by her side—

Well, if there isn't Alice Durand coming out of Ann street, and on foot, too! What in the world can she be doing there?

There's no knowing; she takes very curious freaks sometimes. Only think of her purchasing a set of cheap furs, when, to my certain knowledge, her mother wanted her to have some like mine.

She certainly could afford the most fashionable and expensive.

Of course, and that's what makes it appear so strange.

It seemed somewhat strange to George Benton, too, for he had heard the circumstances of the purchase from his sister, who was with Alice at the time; but still he believed that she must have had a good motive for the act—Miss Durand did not act unreasonably.

So, thought he, she has been to see some one in Ann street, where only poor people live. That is fact number two, and he began to make deductions, yet reserved the final inference to be drawn from further premises.

Fact number three was furnished not long after. It was on this wise. He was at a large party, and searching through the crowded rooms for Alice, whom he presumed to be there, his attention was arrested by the conversation of two young ladies.

Yes, Bell, it is, as you say, a beautiful dress. You know that elegant embroidered robe of Alice Durand's? Well, I determined to have one like it, but the only person I know of, who does that kind of work, had to get just such as I wanted her.

How provoking! That's always the way with these needle women; they think nothing of disappointing us. I would never employ her again if I were you.

Nor shall I; Jane Lester has done her last work for me, said the speaker—no other than Clara Morgan.

Yes, Miss Lester has done her last work of that kind. You are quite right, Miss Clara. They both started—it was Dr. Weston who spoke; he had heard their heartless remarks, and there was unusual seriousness in his tone.

Why, what do you know of her? asked one of them.

That she is very ill, and will not recover. Indeed, I think she would have been in her grave before now, but for the kindest of care.

I am glad she is so fortunate, said Miss Morgan, with a sense of relief. It is not every one in her situation that can afford a good nurse.

Nor could she, but for the goodness of one in similar circumstances to yours.

Indeed! but you do not mean that any one of our circle, is exercising such uncalled for condescension?

I do mean that there is one young lady of my acquaintance of our circle, that can both devise and perform generous deeds, however lowly the object.

Of whom are you speaking, doctor? now inquired Mr. Benton, who had been an observant listener.

I must mention no name, replied Dr. Weston with a smile. She would not thank me for making public her private charities.

Yet you have actually done it, said one of the young ladies.

I have commended the action without giving to the actor a notoriety she would shun; and let me add, my dear girls, her conduct is worthy of imitation.

It's plain to be seen some one is to be canonized as a "saint," or "sister of mercy," to say the least, said Clara, as soon as the doctor passed on.

It must be Alice, mused George Benton. I know of none other to whom Dr. Weston's words can apply, and I half suspect it is some charitable mission that keeps her from here to night.

It was a spring morning in April. Jane Lester's couch had been drawn to the window, that she might share in the sweet influence of that glorious morning. She lay there, calmly thinking of the present and the future, when Alice Durand entered the room.

To her kind inquiries how she had passed the night, and how she felt this morning, Jane replied:

O, comfortably—quite comfortably; much pain, but patience to bear it; little sleep, but many pleasant thoughts.

I have brought you the first spring flowers from our garden. Are they not beautiful?

They are, indeed. I thank you for them, and O, much more, for the flowers of peace and hope with which your kindness has cheered my pathway.

Think not of that, dear girl, said Alice, with much feeling; I have been far happier for the little I have done than it could possibly render you.

I will tax your kindness with but one more request; it is that your father will permit us to remain in this house until I am gone. You know that next week we should move as father must take a smaller dwelling now.

That is all arranged; he will not move at all, but stay here free of rent; and I will come sometimes to see the children. They shall not want.

God bless you—he will bless you. But they will not long be dependent on your charity; as soon as father is able—

Call it not charity; it is only help which the stronger should give the weak in time of need.

A look of grateful satisfaction overspread Jane's pale face. She clasped her hands, and closed her eyes a moment, as if in silent prayer, and then whispered, now you will read to me.

Alice had already taken from her pocket the little Bible, whose precious contents had long been the sewing girl's solace, and which she had requested Miss Durand to keep as a memorial of her.

Is there any particular chapter you would like to hear? she asked.

This morning reminded me of the resurrection; read if you please, the fifteenth of 1st Corinthians.

Alice complied, and while she was reading that sublime argument of the doctrine of a future life, Mr. Lester and children had quietly entered the room. When she came to the words,—Oh, death, where is thy sting! Oh grave, where is thy victory!—the dying girl repeated after her those exulting words with such an energy as to cause all to turn their attention to her, and lo! with that triumphant exclamation on her lips, the breath had left her mortal body! Her freed spirit had "put on immortality."

The first of May came. Jane Lester's father and bereaved sister remained in the same dwelling; her, whose only anxiety had been for them was removed to her heavenly mansion.

Her last days on earth had been rendered comfortable and happy, by her whose still active and self-denying benevolence continued to relieve the sufferings of many who yet remained in our midst; to impress, as it were, the hearts of those who have the means, with the God-given truth, "that it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Advertising.

It is a difficult task to persuade some men of the value of advertising. Although immense fortunes have been made by it, both in this country and in Europe, during the last century, our business men still toil on unknown, until they sink into bankruptcy or oblivion. We have known men who have in Boston made large sums of money during the year by advertising, where, without the aid of the press, nothing could have been done. Some seem contented that as they are established, and have their regular custom, that for them to advertise would be useless. This is a great mistake; from the moment that a house ceases to advertise, no matter how large its trade, how high its reputation or standing, from that moment it begins to decline. The changes in this country are so rapid, and the public mind so constantly filled with new applications for its favors, that to be out of the newspapers, where everybody seeks for information, is to be forgotten. The press is becoming more of a necessity, and its usefulness as an advertising medium is as constantly increasing.—Boston Bee.

The Better—and Worse.

There is. Want to BET on it? Again. You don't do it. What'll you BET?

How many such phrases are uttered daily! What will you bet? Want to bet on it? Bet you five dollars. Bet you a bottle of wine. Bet you a hat. A "bet" the regular proceeding at horse-races, and in the sweet circles of "the fancy" and "sporting men;" it is a very common practice in politics and business. But that's not all. With a large number of mistaken people, a "bet" is a final argument even in ordinary conversation or discussion. They have more money than brains, and so they look to their money to do their reasoning. They think that if they are only ready to "back their opinion," they are pretty sure to be right.

We have in mind a wealthy gentleman who used to discuss horticultural questions, and clinch his argument by offering to deposit five hundred or a thousand dollars, if his opponents would do as much, the total stakes to go to the one decided to be right. This was usually unanswerable, if not conclusive; for few writers on gardening have such a "little amount" by them to risk on the name of a pear or the sex of a strawberry.

As if a man's money made any difference about his being right! It does, however, by the betting argument, for that takes it for granted that no man will decline to gamble on his opinion unless he is conscious of being wrong. Or the only alternative is a con-session—supposed to be humiliating—of poverty.

For the Patriot.

Currency.

MR. EDITOR: We see by the Legislative proceedings that they have reported favorably to a great increase of capital to our now overdone banking system in Massachusetts. We also see that they have reported an increase of $100,000 to our banks in this town. Why is this? Is business in such a prosperous condition as to demand it? We say no! for it is well known by every one that business has not been at so low an ebb since 1837 in this vicinity. A few years ago one bank answered all the requirements of our citizens, when trade was in a far better condition than at present. Then about four years since our speculating and borrowing citizens thought they required more money to transact their business with, and petitioned the Legislature for another bank charter; it was granted, and by the unworthy expansion of this increase of capital they have become involved in overtrading speculations; and now have the effrontery to ask the State for more assistance. The amount they ask for would establish another bank of equal capital as the others, and if capital is to be granted by the Legislature, we think an other bank would be more prudent, by keeping up a healthy competition. We hope, however, that neither will be granted.

Let us look for a moment and see how many of our banks are managed with regard to a special deposit. A merchant wants a line of discount of thirty or forty thousand dollars. This bank will allow him provided he will leave four or eight thousand of it on a special deposit. The bank then is induced to an unhealthy expansion on this surreptitious deposit; while it may be profitable, but endangering the safety of the institution.

Then again concerning discounts: A and B. make application to the bank for money. A. is not willing to pay for his money more than legal interest—but B. being in greater want of it, is willing to date his note back thirty days and by doing so, receive the discount, and increase the interest of the bank one third. By this means, and the unlawful rate of per cent. charged for exchange, they are enabled to pay their large dividend, regardless of losses, for one of our banks we have understood lost some eight hundred dollars by the Greener's Bank, still they were able to increase their surplus fund and declare their usual annual dividend.

How do the country banks now stand? According to the last official account, their circulation was sixteen millions, and their specie for redemption of bills, amounted to four millions eight hundred thousand dollars. So if these insolvent banks were obliged to close up their affairs, they could only pay off twenty-five per cent, or in other words, one silver dollar would be worth four dollars in paper. Now for instance, supposing the mercantile and commercial community were in the same position, with regard to stock in trade, and that they were not able to pay but twenty-five per cent, and should call on the banks for assistance in the shape of discount, do you suppose their notes would be acceptable? Most assuredly not. Still these insolvent banks are issuing daily their notes to the public, for value received; (the actual worth of which is not more than one quarter per cent, on the dollar,) with the same guarantee would gold or silver. And under all these circumstances they have the audacity to call upon the State for an increase of capital, to enable them to continue on in their unjustifiable speculations; the consequences of which are the increased price of all consumable articles, and reducing the wages of the producer, and their own insecurity to the public. We think it more proper that the Legislature should pass an act, that every bank should be obliged to keep on deposit specie equal to its debts. We should say that would not be asking too much of the government, as the specie is so easy of access, for since the acquisition of California, the amount of gold received at the mint has been the large sum of 467,772,651. This enormous sum ought to be enough to place all the banks in the country on a specie basis, independent of the small amount exported. We shall now endeavor to show some of the advantages of a specie currency.

The use of the precious metals, are the safest and cheapest manner in which a nation may invest its surplus money. It is ready for all contingencies of war or otherwise, for we are not of that class of economists, who consider the specie of a country as dead capital, and who, to prevent the loss of interest, as they imagine, displace the specie, with paper. The specie then goes abroad in payment of silks and wines, which are consumed by bank customers, who in their turn, take the benefit of the bankrupt law, and thus extinguish all remains of the specie of the country.

We have said that the use of specie for money relieves the people from a tax which they otherwise would have to pay to the issuers of bank paper. We will endeavor to make this position clear. The above table will show from the best sources, the comparative currencies of France, England, and the United States. We have here for the purpose of comparison, taken the quantity of the currency of each nation. It thus appears, that in the article of money alone, the wealth of England is double that of the United States, while that of France is four times as great as England. If we assume that the rate of interest in France and England was 4 per cent., and in the United States 6 per cent., we shall find that the inhabitants of each nation paid the following sums as tax to the issuers of paper money.

PAPER MONEY TAX IN FRANCE.

Amount of paper.	Interest on loans.
50,000,000 at 4 per cent.	2,000,000

PAPER MONEY TAX IN ENGLAND.

PAPER MONEY TAX IN THE U. STATES.

----------------------------	-----------

This is independent of the losses by the destruction of the paper, which greatly exceeds that of the abrasion of a metallic currency. The expense of a paper currency is estimated at half per cent, while that of a metallic one is one tenth per cent per annum. Thus the expense of the 500,000,000 of metallic currency in France, is 500,000 per annum, while that of the 50,000,000 of paper money is 250,000. Again, the actual expense of 150,000,000 paper money in the United States is 7,500,000 per annum, while that of metallic currency is 75,000,000. This is the actual loss, file of only. Now when paper money is created, a charge of six per cent, is made upon the community in the act of uttering it, and this is the only instance in the history of commerce where the borrower receives interest from the lender for that which he borrows of him. The more the public debtor, which is the bank, multiplies its debts, and the longer it refuses to redeem them, the more it increases its income. This monstrous anomaly in mercantile operations, against all reason and common sense, is thrust upon the people as a blessing in time of peace, and strangely enough, when a government does the same thing it is called a "Necessary Tax." This was the case with the famous Designats of France, and the Continental Paper of the United States. In the first instance, the creators of the famous bubble advocated it on the ground that, "It was the best way of taxing the people;" because, issued of all denominations, it fell into the hands of all classes in proportion to their means. He who was rich received more money than he who was poor. Consequently the depreciation and ultimate loss fell upon each individual according to his means, and therefore each paid a just share towards the expenditures of the government. In time of peace and general prosperity, the several State governments in this country authorized corporations to issue similar money; they then authorized them to refuse to redeem it, and finally stopped, throwing the loss upon the people. This loss from this source during the five years previous to 1842, was in amount 150,000,000. For whose benefit was this tax imposed, and why should it be continued? It may be urged that interest charged by the issuers of paper money, cannot be called a tax on the circulation, because the issuing of the paper is an exchange of obligations between the bank and the person whose note is discounted, and the charge is a fair rate for the superior credit of the institution. The operation is different, however, in the use of their credits as a currency. For instance, an employer owes his workmen at the end of the week twenty dollars, for their wages. He gives them in payment the promises of the bank. By this operation the bank assumes the debt of the employer to the employed, and it becomes a direct debt from the bank to the workmen, and as long as those bills remain out of the bank, the institution draws interest on the debts which it owes to the operatives, and which the latter pay in the enhanced price of all they consume. This enormous impost bears heavily upon the resources of the industrious many, for the sole benefit of the banking few.

ADVERTISEMENTS, ETC. We feel thankful to our friends for their favors, but we do hope they will hand them in before 10 o'clock, on Friday forenoon, if they wish to see them appear in the next day's paper; as it is impossible to ensure their insertion if they are not given to us previous to that time.

Constitutional Amendment

The following are the Articles of Amendment of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, upon which the voters of Quincy are called upon to vote in Town Meeting, to be held on Friday, May 1st, a warrant for which has been issued.

FIRST ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT.

No person shall have the right to vote, or be eligible to office under the Constitution of this Commonwealth, who shall not be able to read the Constitution in the English language, and write his name.

Provided, however, that the provisions of this amendment shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any persons who shall be sixty years of age and upwards at the time this amendment shall take effect.

SECOND ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT.

A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven; and a census of the inhabitants of each city or town in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-five; and every tenth year thereafter. In the census aforesaid a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters, and in each city said enumeration shall specify the number of such legal voters aforesaid, residing in each ward of such city. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of representatives for the periods between the taking of the census.

The house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members, which shall be apportioned by the Legislature at its first session after the return of each enumeration as aforesaid, to the several counties of the Commonwealth equally as nearly as may be, according to their relative numbers of legal voters, as ascertained by the next preceding special enumeration; and the town of Cohasset, in the county of Norfolk, shall, for this purpose, as well as in the formation of districts as hereinafter provided, be considered a part of the county of Plymouth; and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to certify, as soon as it may be after it is determined by the Legislature, the number of representatives to which each county shall be entitled, to the board authorized to divide each county into representative districts. The Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Boston, the county commissioners of other counties than Suffolk, each board of special commissioners in each county to be elected by the people of the county, or of the towns therein, as may for that purpose be provided by law, shall on the first Tuesday of August next after each assignment of representatives to each county, assemble at a shire town of their respective counties, and proceed, as soon as may be, to divide the same into representative districts of contiguous territory, so as to apportion the representation assigned to each county equally, as nearly as may be, according to the number of legal voters in the several districts of each county; and such districts shall be so formed that no town or ward of a city shall be divided therefor, nor shall any district be made which shall be entitled to elect more than three representatives. Every representative, for one year at least next preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district from which he is chosen, and shall cease to represent such district when he shall cease to be an inhabitant of the Commonwealth. The districts in each county shall be numbered by the board creating the same, and a description of each, with the numbers thereof, and the number of legal voters therein, shall be returned by the board to the secretary of the Commonwealth, the county treasurer of each county, and to the clerk of every town in each district, to be filed and kept in their respective offices. The manner of calling and conducting the meetings for the choice of representatives, and of ascertaining their election, shall be prescribed by law.

Not less than one hundred members of the house of representatives shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less number may organize temporarily, adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.

THIRD ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT.

A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven, and a census of the inhabitants of each city or town in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-five; and every tenth year thereafter. In the census aforesaid a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters, and in each city said enumeration shall specify the number of such legal voters aforesaid, residing in each ward of such city. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of representatives for the periods between the taking of the census.

The house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members, which shall be apportioned by the Legislature at its first session after the return of each enumeration as aforesaid, to the several counties of the Commonwealth equally as nearly as may be, according to their relative numbers of legal voters, as ascertained by the next preceding special enumeration; and the town of Cohasset, in the county of Norfolk, shall, for this purpose, as well as in the formation of districts as hereinafter provided, be considered a part of the county of Plymouth; and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to certify, as soon as it may be after it is determined by the Legislature, the number of representatives to which each county shall be entitled, to the board authorized to divide each county into representative districts. The Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Boston, the county commissioners of other counties than Suffolk, each board of special commissioners in each county to be elected by the people of the county, or of the towns therein, as may for that purpose be provided by law, shall on the first Tuesday of August next after each assignment of representatives to each county, assemble at a shire town of their respective counties, and proceed, as soon as may be, to divide the same into representative districts of contiguous territory, so as to apportion the representation assigned to each county equally, as nearly as may be, according to the number of legal voters in the several districts of each county; and such districts shall be so formed that no town or ward of a city shall be divided therefor, nor shall any district be made which shall be entitled to elect more than three representatives. Every representative, for one year at least next preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district from which he is chosen, and shall cease to represent such district when he shall cease to be an inhabitant of the Commonwealth. The districts in each county shall be numbered by the board creating the same, and a description of each, with the numbers thereof, and the number of legal voters therein, shall be returned by the board to the secretary of the Commonwealth, the county treasurer of each county, and to the clerk of every town in each district, to be filed and kept in their respective offices. The manner of calling and conducting the meetings for the choice of representatives, and of ascertaining their election, shall be prescribed by law.

Not less than one hundred members of the house of representatives shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less number may organize temporarily, adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.

THIRD ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT.

A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven, and a census of the inhabitants of each city or town in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-five; and every tenth year thereafter. In the census aforesaid a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters, and in each city said enumeration shall specify the number of such legal voters aforesaid, residing in each ward of such city. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of representatives for the periods between the taking of the census.

Rev. Jonas Perkins.

This venerable pastor of the Church at Weymouth Landing, has recently, by the unanimous vote of his society, had his salary raised one hundred dollars a year. This testimony of his people to his worth must be grateful to the patriarch, who for more than forty years has proclaimed the Word of Life to his religious flock, and it reflects honor on those who know how to estimate a sincere and faithful preacher.

Mr. Perkins was preceded in his ministry at Weymouth Landing by a clergyman, who was of an arbitrary disposition, and more disposed to rule than to instruct his people; mistaking the character of the age and the inbred principles of liberty of thought and action of those around him, his career though turbulent, was short, and the mild course of his successor softened the zeal of bigotry and won the confidence and faith of the enquiring.

A characteristic of Mr. Perkins is his deep humility and conscientious discharge of duty; in the long course of his ministerial labors he has been blessed with the affection of his people, a heavenly boon which clergymen do not always sufficiently appreciate, but without which the best preaching makes but little impression on the heart—for sincerity and love are powerful aids in disseminating truth.

There are parts of Goldsmith's celebrated description of a "Country Clergyman," that applies as justly to Mr. Perkins, as to the brother of the poet; like his prototype, "he never has changed or wished to change his place;" and from the contentment of his peaceful home, he has never sought to escape to a more worldly and busy sphere, which might possess more magnificence, but less purity.

"Far other aims his heart has learned to prize, More skilled to raise the wretched than to rise."

And in this course he has secured his own temporal happiness and we trust his everlasting good, for an immortal crown is the promised reward of the faithful servant on earth.

The Shoe Trade.

These facts concerning the boot, shoe, hide and leather trade have been taken from the able and interesting report of the Secretary of the Boston Board of Trade, recently published, making a volume of some seven hundred pages.

The year of 1856 has been one of the most prosperous ever known in the hide and leather trade. The imports into the principal ports of the country, have been as follows:

New York 1,751,912; Boston 527,071; Salem 235,670; Baltimore 234,177; Philadelphia 162,400. Total 2,851,230, against 2,423,864, in 1855. In addition to the number given above, there were received last year from Catecutta and other East India ports 7,999 bales, amounting in prices to nearly 600,000. This kind of hides are less than one half the weight and value of those of Buenos Ayres, and other kinds. Notwithstanding the heavy import, the demand has constantly pressed upon the supply, and the advance in both hides and leather the last year, is full twenty-five per cent. Hides, which in 1849 were selling freely at nine cents per pound, are now worth thirty-two; and leather which five years ago was selling at thirteen cents, is also worth thirty-two.

The number of hides and leather imported in Boston the past year, was 476,573. The number of hides received here, chiefly from New York, was 1,792,292. This does not show all consumed in the State, as a very large additional quantity is received direct from New York and other Southern cities by the manufacturers in the different parts of the State.

The value of the shoe trade of Massachusetts, most of which is manufactured within her borders, is estimated in amount between forty-five to fifty millions of dollars the past year. The wholesale jobbing houses have done a full average business, while the profits of the manufacturers have been small, and the large body of the operatives have worked on low wages, notwithstanding the high price of food.

The manufacture of women's work has been fairly remunerated, while profits on men's heavy goods have been quite small. The collection at the South has been fair, but the interior trade of the Western States has not paid as promptly as usual.

The California trade has been overdone, and it is feared the worst has not been seen. The shipments from Boston to San Francisco for 1856, were 42,258 cases; value $2,100,000. The value shipped from New York and Philadelphia during the same period was not less than $800,000. The sale of goods there have realized from cost to ten and twenty per cent less, and the stock unsold is forty thousand cases, while large quantities are on the way.

GRANITE SALOON. The proprietor of the Granite Saloon has received from Virginia, another supply of those inestimable oysters, which evidently made their impression at his last banquet. This he expects will be the last preparatory to a grand feast, which is to be given by our worthy Representatives on the final passage of the Kansas Appropriation Bill in which they took so active a part.

"BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS"—A Counterfeit. A person pretending to have been a partner with W. P. Petridge in the above article is palming off a spurious preparation on the public. All are cautioned unless the name Petridge & Co. is printed on the side, and W. P. Petridge & Co., printed on the front of the label. The genuine article is for sale by all respectable Druggists, who frown down counterfeiters and impostors.

White Teeth, perfumed breath and beautiful complexion can be required by using the "Balm of a Thousand Flowers." What lady or gentleman would remain under the curse of a disagreeable breath, who by using the Balm of a Thousand Flowers would render it sweet. Quincy, March 28. 1m

MEDICATED INHALATION for the treatment and speedy cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, and Chronic Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, at the
Boston Lung Institute, 69 1/2 Summer street.

Medicated inhalation will cure consumption. Why? Because the remedy is applied directly to the seat of Disease. The Medicines being prepared in the form of Vapors, are conveyed in the air we breathe to the most minute air cells in the lungs. The first effect is to dissolve and render easily expectorated the secretions in the air cells. This relieves the lungs from the matter collected there, and the vapors being composed of healing gums and balsams, a new state of the parts at once takes place, the weak air cells are stimulated and strengthened, the ulcers and cavities healed and the patient rapidly passes from a state of disease to health.

This is the only remedy that can, with any certainty, be relied on to cure Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis or any case of Lung Disease.

Proofs of its wondrous efficacy will be given on calling at Boston Lung Institute, No. 69 1/2 Summer street.

Consumptives who apply personally, may confidently rely that their disease will be detected with unerring certainty, and treated with a success hitherto unknown.

Persons residing at a distance, and unable to visit the Institute, by sending a minute description of their cases in writing, can have suitable remedies, with full directions sent them.

Dr. Spear's Indian Balm of Life, No. 1. This is a Syrup for the Lungs, clearing, healing, strengthening. It exceeds all other preparations for Consumption, Dry Cough, Bronchitis and Throat Diseases.

Dr. Spear's Balm of Life, No. 2. This is a favorite old Indian remedy for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, General Debility, Constipation, Stomachic, Gastritis, or Indigestion of the Stomach, and also a sure cure for Boils. In all cases except when taken for Boils, to be used in connection with Dr. Spear's Jaundice Balm and Dr. Spear's Liver and Stomach Balm of Life, No. 3. A compound of No. 2 and Jaundice Bitters, prepared ready for immediate use.

Dr. Spear's Indian Scrofula Syrup, a powerful purifier of the blood; an excellent strengthening medicine for old people. It is a specific for humors in children, especially running at the ears.

Nature's Grand Restorative Cordial, for pain in the bowels, constipation vomiting and wind. An excellent physic for children, also a good remedy for sea-sickness.

Dr. Spear's Tonic Cordial, for female irregularities and weaknesses. This is the most wonderful medicine ever yet discovered to prevent consumption in females, from colds and suppressions. Young females should always be required to make use of this Syrup at the time of development to prevent imperfect and painful menstruation. The Liverwort Pills should be used, a dose or two a week, while taking the Cordial.

Dr. Spear's Golden Bitters. (In papers.) A favorable remedy for barrenness, weakness, flaccid, weak Stomach, &c.

The prices of each of the above are one dollar. Six bottles at one time, five dollars.

Dr. Spear's Vegetable Alternative.

This remedy has never before advertised. It is the only article ever yet discovered that will dissolve and eradicate from the system

CANCER AND SCROFULA.
No use of the knife or plasters. When this medicine is used, it directs the action of the blood, and by a chemical action dissolves the poison, rendering it inert and ineffective. Tumors gradually sink away; health returns; skin is saved. Used in all cases of bad humors and skin diseases. One bottle, used as directed, will last one month. Price $5.

Dr. Spear's new remedy for Fits, Convulsions and Nervous Diseases. Price $10.

Dr. Spear treats Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the womb, without instruments or supporters. He has never failed in a single case, and he has treated hundreds. His remedy can be obtained for $3 a package. It is also a good remedy for many female complaints. Prolapsus Uteri may be known by the pressing down pains, pains in the side and back across the hips, with heat and scalding. Bad cases are often accompanied with an affection of the liver, and it is not infrequently happens that the physician treats the case as a liver complaint, with physic, &c., which only increases the trouble. It is always best to apply to a physician of large practice, and experience, and then no mistakes will be made. All letters containing one dollar will be immediately attended to.

Beware of unprincipled men who profess to have lived among the Indians, &c., who call themselves Indian physicians &c. They are impostors and ignorant men.

Orders for Shipping, promptly attended to.

INDIAN REMEDIES.
IT will be remembered that the New England Medical Society was formed for the suppression of Quackery in the Indian System of practice, and to supply the public with Genuine Indian Remedies for all diseases. This object is fully realized at the

INDIAN MEDICAL INSTITUTE,
No. 36 Bromfield Street, Boston.
Persons are cautioned against placing confidence in the long advertisements of those who have never had any practical knowledge or the System as used by the Indians themselves.

Dr. R. Greene, having acquired the knowledge by daily intercourse with the "Indian Medicine Men," for years knowing their true system, and in consequence of this superior knowledge was selected by the Society, as Superintending Physician of the Institute, at No. 36 Bromfield street, hence the envy and bitterness of those who are excluded from the Society for want of proper attainments. Persons at a distance should not be deceived by long and wordy advertisements, but should send and get a copy of the

"Indian Arcana,"
A Newspaper Published at the Institute, which will give a list of the principal Indian Remedies, their prices and uses, and a full exposition of the merits of the practice and also the imposition which is created on by pretenses. A copy of this paper will be sent free of charge to any one requesting it.

Consultations, personally or by letter, free of charge. Address,
Dr. R. GREENE,
No. 36 Bromfield street, Boston.

"THERE is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood lead on to fortune." But it is not every one who understands when or how to take advantage of this "tide." By calling upon the Great Boston Banker, AL-JAM JENKINS, Esq., No. 106 Southbury Street, Boston, any one can find out how this plus ultra of all conceived human happiness can be obtained. He is ready to assist every one who, from a small beginning, wishes to rise to wealth and opulence. He has done it himself, and is willing to impart to every one the secret of his success.

Poetry.

The Streamlet!

BY C. E. BRIGGS.

Sweet Streamlet! by thy murmurs led,
I oft have sought thy rocky bed;
Where the tall trees, their branches raise
To shield thee from the Sun's bright gaze:
Save where a ray of sparkling light,
Doth gladden on thy bosom bright;
A moment on thy ripples seen,
Or, lighten up thy pathway green.

The worldling gaze, I fain would shun,
Its stripes and glories—lost and won—
Unknown, alone, like the sweet stream,
Life, then, would be a soothing dream;
Save, when a ray of friendship true,
Life's cold and chilly vale broke through;
To gleam along life's lonely way,
Like stray beams of a better day.

The Wonders of the Age.

I saw a pigeon making bread;
I saw a girl composed of thread;
I saw a towel one mile square;
I saw a meadow in the air;
I saw a rocket walk a mile;
I saw a pony make a mile;
I saw a blacksmith in a box;
I saw an orange kill an ox;
I saw a butcher made of steel;
I saw a penknife dance a reel;
I saw a ladder in a pie;
I saw an apple fly away;
I saw a sparrow making hay;
I saw a farmer like a dog;
I saw a puppy making grow;
I saw three men who saw these too;
And will confirm what I tell you.

NOTE.—To make this read right, shift the point at the end of each line to the SOUTH in the same line.

Discouragement

O soul! have all thy glorious dreams,
Thine aspirations proud and high,
Faded as faded moon's pale gleams,
When dark clouds obscure the sky?
Art thou content to fold, inert,
Those pinions once so prompt to soar,
And 'mid Earth's wayside pilgrims lurk
And lag unnoted evermore?

O soul! wilt quench thine early thirst
For spring of purest Pheasant flow,
At streams polluted, whence the worst
Of worldly gossamers quaff also?
Wilt fling in reckless away
The talisman so prized of yore,
Or dim, or interpose with clay,
The brightest of his native ore?

O soul! dost thou no longer thrill
At noble words and deeds sublime,
Such as were wont to grandly fill
The halls of Thought in olden time?
Do post-lays which erewhile rang
Like clarions in a temple place,
Make now but a discordant clang,
When Memory, wandering, jars the space?

Soul! hast thou sought responsive now
To nature's myriad sweet appeals:
The sunshine on the mountain's brow,
The shade that o'er the soft grass steals,
The birds, the brooks, the budding flowers,
The meadows bright in summer's green,
The purple charm in twilight hours,
The hallow'd moonlight's chaste 'n' beaute?

The wind that softly, grandly swells
Its heavenward diapason high,
The mist, slow climbing from the dells,
The bark, swift springing to the sky,
The scents, that born in dingle slow,
Far in the depths of either die;
Seem they no longer guides to show
The path to immortality?

No, soul! the weary march of life
Is all too full of ev'ning cares,
The records of ignoble strife
Thy changed and tarnished aspect bears!
The steps of time thy failing powers
May never more essay to climb;
One laurel from those deathless bowers
May never, never, soul, be thine!

A Knell.

We are born, we laugh, we weep,
We love, we droop, we die!
Ah! wherefore do we laugh or weep?
Why do we love or die?
Who knows that secret deep?
Alas!—not I!

Why doth the violet spring
Unseen by human eye?
Why do the radiant seasons bring
Sweet thoughts—thine quickly fly?
Why do our fond hearts cling
To things that die?

We toil, thro' pain and wrong;
We fight, we fly!
We love, we lose; and then, ere long,
Stone dead we lie!
Oh! Life! is all thy song
Endure—and die?

Anecdotes.

A professor of Mathematics, in a college, who is not famous for the prompt settlement of his pecuniary obligations, recently asked one who was passing an examination—
What is a note on six months?
Don't know, sir.
Happy man, said the Professor, in a low tone.

O, me! said a juvenile to an elderly dame, there goes pa, with a yoke of steers hitched to a bob sled.
Hush, my child, said the mother, it is very common to say so; you should say, a pair of gentleman cows attached to a Robert sleigh!

A gentleman once asked a lady of his acquaintance. What are you making Miss Knapp?
Knapp-sacks, was the young lady's reply.

JOSEPH T. FRENCH, AUCTIONEER.

MR. FRENCH takes this opportunity to remind his friends and fellow citizens that he still continues in the Auction Business, and would be happy to receive their favors in the sale of property of every description.

Hall's Great
SCROFULAR REMEDY.

THIS Purely Vegetable Preparation is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, and simple in its action, causing neither vomiting nor purging. It acts directly upon the primary cause of disease, regulates the Bowels, removes all vitiated secretions, giving a healthy action to the Liver and a correct tone to the Stomach. It overcomes that feeling of Languor which is often experienced in the Spring and Summer, and renovates and restores the vital energy and Physical Strength.

In thousands of cases of Scrofula and Scrofulous Humors, such as Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Tumors, Ulcers, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Inflammatory Rheumatism, Fever, Sores, White Swelling, Dropsy, Boils, Barber's Itch, Piles, Old Sores, and all diseases which manifest themselves by Eczema or Eruptions on the Skin, it has been used with the most gratifying success, after every other known remedy has been tried and failed to afford relief.

It is also an effective cure for Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Flatulency, Costiveness and Derangement of the Urinary Organs.

It is an infallible remedy for irregularities and other diseases peculiar to FEMALES, such as Weakness and Pain in the Back, Strangury, Affections of the Kidneys, Palpitation of the Heart, Dizziness and Headache.

It can be given with perfect safety and most desirable results in all cases, to any person from infancy to old age.

Made and sold by WM. SMITH HALL, Sole Proprietor, Quincy, Mass., to whom all orders must be addressed. Sold also by Redding & Co. No. 8 State Street; Geo. C. Goodnow, No. 99 Union Street, Boston, and all Druggists and Medicine Dealers throughout the United States.

Boston Lung Institute, 69 1/2 Summer Street.

Medicated inhalation will cure consumption. Why? Because the remedy is applied directly to the seat of the disease. The medicine being prepared in the form of Vapors, are inhaled in the air we breathe to the lungs, and are absorbed in the blood. The first effect is to dissolve and render easily expectorated the secretions in the air cells. This relieves the lungs from the matter collected there, and the vapors being composed of healing gases and balsams, a new state of the parts is at once taken place, the weak air cells are stimulated and strengthened, the ulcers and cavities healed and the patient rapidly passes from a state of disease to health.

This is the only means that can, with any certainty, be relied on to cure Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis or any case of Lung Disease.

Proved its wonderful efficacy will be given on calling at Boston Lung Institute, No. 69 1/2 Summer Street.

Consumptives who apply personally, may confidently rely that their disease will be treated with unerring certainty, and treated with a success hitherto unknown.

Persons residing at a distance, and unable to visit the Institute, by sending a minute description of their cases in writing, can have suitable remedies, with full directions sent them.

DR. MELCHER & MORSE,
Examining Physicians.

Use Dr. Spear's Indian Vegetable Medicine!

These medicines have now stood the test of twenty years trial. For twelve years J. Spear, the Indian Doctor, presented his remedies with extraordinary success, and during the past eight years they have made the name of E. D. SPEAR, the Indian Doctor, famous. INDIAN REMEDIES.

It will be remembered that the New England Medical Society was formed for the suppression of Quackery in the Indian System of practice, and to supply the public with Genuine Indian Remedies for all diseases. This object is fully realized at the

INDIAN MEDICAL INSTITUTE,
No. 36 Bromfield Street, Boston.

Persons are cautioned against placing confidence in the long advertisements of those who have never had any practical knowledge of the System as used by the Indians themselves.

Dr. R. Greene, having acquired this knowledge by daily intercourse with the "Indian Medicine Men," for years knowing their true system, and in consequence of this superior knowledge was selected by the Society, as Superintending Physician of the "Institute" at No. 36 Bromfield Street, hence the easy and bitterness of those who are excluded from the Society for want of proper attainments. Persons at a distance should not be deceived by long and wordy advertisements, but should send and get a copy of the

New Tailoring Goods.

JOHN A. HOLDEN,
WOULD inform the inhabitants of Quincy and vicinity, that he has Just replenished his Stock, with a choice selection of Goods, suitable for FALL & WINTER.

He invites the attention of such as expect punctuality and good workmanship, for each only, such being his rule of business, and the reduced rates at which he sells, rendering any other mode of doing business impracticable.

His clothes will always be made with all his care and skill, of which he boasts not, leaving the garments made by his hands to ADVERTISE THEMSELVES. Those students to combine elegance with economy, will do well and wisely to favor him with a call.

Remember he is not to be undersold by any other establishment, style, quality and finish considered.

Poetry.

Slander.

She comes bright home to darken,
To sever friendship's hand;
The weary to dishearten,
The hopeful to withstand.
The friendly hand she scorneth
With words of bitter hate;
The power she wields so fiendish,
The merry heart will break.

She comes with falsehood's canker,
To blight love's fairest rose;
Nor can the charms of virtue
Her dreaded march oppose;
She tramples reputation
Neath her unblinded feet;
And hurls the poisoned arrow
No earthly power may meet.

She comes—the serpent guileful,
With deep, envenomed sting,
While her confiding victim
To charm, the siren sings.
An asp, concealed in foliage,
An adder in the path—
The blight and midday breathing,
Hope's fairest flowers blast.

She comes, a fearful vision,
And dearest earthly ties,
Sundered, and torn, and bleeding,
Along her pathway lie.
She feasts on the heart's core,
Drinks its sorrow-brainy tear,
And triumphs in destruction
Of all that man holds dear.

She comes—and oh, what is she,
But man's polluted breath,
Sent forth in words of malice,
To scatter seeds of death?
The curse of God is on her,
O, quickly turn away,
And live in truth and friendship,
Heaven's high command obey.

The Old Mill Wheel

There's music in the glen,
Where the bright water tosses,
As the rocky shelf it crosses,
With never ending noise,
That the echoing hills prolong,
And give back again and again,
From the dam on the hill,
But the old mill wheel stands still.

There's a rushing in the glen—
A movement of life
In the wild water's strife,
In the tossing of the breeze,
In the arms of the breeze,
That shakes them again and again;
There's life and there's will,
The deep gorge to fill
But the old mill wheel stands still.

There's sunshine in the glen—
It glitters on the branches,
On the white wave as it launches
Like an arrow from the bow,
Or an avalanche of snow,
Ever falling, falling, falling,—but then
Through the pleasant sunbeams fill,
The ragged gorge beneath the hill,
Black and cold stands the wheel of the mill.

It stands a thing apart—
A shadow on the brightness,
A spectre in the lightness,
Amidst the music dumb,
In the sunbeams black and numb
Like a sorrow-stricken heart,
That no pulses ever thrill,
That no joys of life can fill,
So the old mill wheel stands still.

Anecdotes.

An old gentleman was once joking a lady acquaintance, who had passed her four-score years, in regard to her eligibility to the married state.
O, said she, I have no longer a desire to get married.
Now, said her gallant, suppose a very smart rich young man should come and offer himself, don't you think you could accept?
O, I don't know, said she, we are changeable creatures!

A lady at sea, full of apprehension in a gale of wind, among other pretty exclamations, cried out:
We shall go to the bottom? mercy on us!
how my head swims!
Zounds! madam, never fear, said one of the sailors, you can never go to the bottom while your head swims!

Come, here, my little Eddy said a gentleman to a young man of seven years of age, while sitting in the parlor where a company was assembled, do you know me?
Yes, sir, I think I do.
Who am I, I then let me hear?
You are the gentleman who kissed sister Angeline, last night in the parlor.

What is the reason, said one Irishman to another, that you and your wife are always disagreeing?
Because, replied Pat, we are both of one mind—she wants to be master and so do I.

An Athenian, who was lame in one foot, joining the army, was laughed at by the soldiery, on account of his lameness.
I am here to fight, said the hero, not to run.

Sal, cried a good looking girl out of the upper story window of a small grocery, and addressing another girl who was trying to enter at the front door, we've all been converted; so when you want milk on Sundays, you will have to come in the back way.

Mother this book tells of the "angry waves of the ocean;" what makes the ocean get angry?

Is there old fellows alive now? said an uncle to his teacher.
What old persons do you mean.
Why Paul and Luke and Duteronomy and them.

Poetry.

Never Court but One

I have finished it, the letter,
That will tell him he is free;
From this hour, and forever,
He is nothing more to me!
And my heart feels lighter, gay,
Since the deed at last is done—
I will teach him that when courting,
He should never court but one!

Everybody in the village
Knows he has been wooing me,
And this morning he was riding
With that saucy Anna Lee.
They say he smiled upon her,
As he came to her side,
And I'll warrant you he's promised
To make her soon his bride.

But I've finished it, the letter,
From this moment he is free—
He may have if he wants her,
If he loves her more than me.
He may go—it will not kill me—
I would say the same, so there,
If I knew it would, for living,
It is more than I can bear.

It is twilight, and the evening
That he said he'd visit me—
But no doubt he's now with Anna,
He may say there, too, for sue.
And as true as I'm a living,
If he ever comes here more,
I'll act as if I never,
Never, never met before.

It is time he should be coming,
And I wonder if he will;
What's the shadow on the hill?
I declare, out in the twilight,
There is some one coming near—
Can it be—yes 'tis a figure,
Just as true as I am here?

Now, I almost wish I'd written
Not to him that he was free,
For perhaps 'twas but a story
That he rode with Anna Lee.
There, he's coming through the gateway,
I will meet him at the door,
And I'll tell him still I love him,
If he'll court Miss Lee no more!

Sabbath Evening.

'Tis holy time. The evening shade
Steals with a soft control
O'er nature, as a thought of Heaven
Steals o'er the human soul;
And every ray from yonder blue,
And every drop of falling dew,
Seems to bring down to human woes
From heaven a message of repose;

O'er yon tall rock the solemn trees,
A shadowy group incline;
Like giant sentinels in rowed bow
Around their holy shrine;
And o'er them now the night winds blow—
So calm and still, the music low Seems the mysterious voice of prayer,
Soft echoed on the evening air.

The gentle sisterhood of flowers
Bend low their lovely eyes,
Or grazed through trembling tresses of dew
Up to the heavenly spheres;
And the pure stars come out above,
Like sweet and blessed things of love,
Bright signals in the ethereal dome
To guide the parted spirit home.

There is a spirit of blessedness
In air and earth and Heaven,
And nature wears the blessed look
Of a young saint forgiven;
O, who, at such an hour of love,
Can gaze on all around, above,
And not kneel down upon the sod
With Nature's self to worship God?

Words and Hearts.

Fond words do not ensure fond hearts,
Nor glances hold prove love;
The tongue that deepest truth imparts,
May often faltering prove.
Love's ways, 'tis known, are different ways,
In different tempers found;
But give me the truest guide,
'Tis that, 'tis that, 'tis that, 'tis that!

Anecdotes.

A thief went into the hall of a boarding-house, in New York, while the boarders were at supper, and gathered up all the hats on the table. He was snaking his way out with his booty, when a boarder, a little behind time, came, and asked him what he was about.

O, says the thief, I'm taking the gentleman's hats to get smoothed.
Well, replied the boarder, take my hat, too.
Certainly, sir, said the accommodating loafer, and vanished.

Well, said a soft-hearted Jonathan, Suke him the sack, by gravity I've lost her.
Lost her, how? inquired a sympathizing friend.
I laid the soft soap on to her so thick that the critter got so proud she wouldn't speak to me.

There was a great comfort to a desponding man in the answer he got from a friend to whom he was confiding his gloomy apprehensions of the future.
I don't see, said Mr. Blues to Bright, how I shall ever get through the world.
Did you ever hear, asked Mr. Bright, of one who got stuck by the way?

Labor-Saving Washing Fluid.

BY OSSIAN E. DODGE.

Riding through the interior of Maine in 1849, in a rough stage, we happened on one occasion to have a fellow traveller, a tall, raw-boned, broad-shouldered, long-haired countryman, whose large features and fearless expression revealed him at once to be from the Green Mountains.

As the stage was about leaving Farmington—every seat crowded—it was hailed by a small, thin, consumptive-looking individual, who begged the driver to take him on board as a passenger, for a few miles, even if he had to be stowed away on the boot, as his baggage demanded that he should be in the very town that evening.

Says I can't accommodate you, replied the driver, but every seat is occupied, inside and out.

The stranger here thrust his head out of the window and exclaimed—

Hold on driver! The man ain't well. I'll hold him in my lap 'fore I'll have him left behind.

All right, says the driver, so much made extra, if you'll hold him. Jump in my man, and make yourself as comfortable as you can, for his stinging cold this morning.

The man got in, seated himself on the knees of the big Vermont, and in pulling about him his old candle clock, revealed a black quart jug bottle.

Thinking that it contained spirits—one of the passengers, a sailor, remarked, can't you treat Captain?

That's nothing to treat with, smilingly replied the thin man. My bottle contains washing fluid, which though excellent for cleaning clothes is far from palatable as a beverage.

Thunder! exclaimed the Vermont, raising the new comer from his knees as he would a kitten. You said washing fluid, didn't you?

Yes, sir; grasped the thin man, but I—I—hope I don't give offence.

The Vermont remained silent for a few moments, then burst out into a loud, ringing, boisterous laugh and exclaimed—

I beg pardon gentlemen for my momentary anger, I'll tell you a little incident in my life, and if you don't then say I have a reason to hate washing fluid, I'll pay for the dinner at dinner.

To a grateful, convulsed, and attentive audience, the Vermont now related his experience, but as no language but his own can convey an idea of its richness, we'll give his own words.

Well, gentlemen, I live in the State of Vermont, and in the village of—well I don't particular matter where I live, the story is just as good without being located; so as I before stated, I live in good old glorious Vermont, in one of the handsomest little villages that ever stood out of doors. I have a wife and little baby, live in a comfortable story and a half house, and for the past year have boarded a young physician who will probably sometime or other be master of his profession—like he ever does—but a more careless fellow about stowing away his drugs and stuff, never lived, that's certain.

Howsoever, that's neither here nor there at this part of the story; so I was going to say, about a year ago, my wife didn't enjoy her bad health, neither very well, as far as that's concerned, but it came mighty hard for her to do the work of the family, such as doing up the kitchen work and such things, and washing all the clothes beside; for you see her child wasn't born then, and the washin' allers made my wife sick for a day or two.

So you see I was hoppin' mad cause I could not find a good girl to do the work, and the washin' particularly, and one day I was talking about it in the store hard by, and the merchant says to me,—

There's no necessity for having a washer-woman now, for I have got a dozen bottles of Patent Labor-Saving Washing Fluid, that'll make your clothes just as clean as new, by just stirring them up in a tub with a stick, and letting 'em hang on a line to dry.

What do you charge for a bottle full of it? says I.

Well, seen' it's you, says he, you may have it for seventy-five cents, though I calculate to sell them generally for a dollar a bottle.

If sixty-two and a half cents will pay for a bottle of it, I'll take one home and say nothing more about it.

Well, seen' it's you says he, take it along, but don't tell anybody what you paid for it, for I wouldn't run my business with the neighbors.

But, says he, winkin' with his left eye kind o' slyly, after you've used it once or twice, and find that it starts the dirt as I tell you 'twill, I'd like for you to give me a recommendation to put in the newspapers—and I'll make it all right at the end of the quarter.

Certainly, says I, if the fluid comes up to the scratch I'll do the handsome thing by you.

Well, gentlemen, this was on Saturday afternoon, about four o'clock, and I took my big bottle of fluid, put it in my overcoat pocket and started for home. Now, says I to myself, wife always picks up her clothes Sunday night, put them in a heap, and does up the washing Monday morning after breakfast, and it would be a capital joke for me to say nothing about the fluid, but get up early Monday morning while she is asleep, put the clothes in the tub, pour on the fluid, stir 'em up with a stick, and then hang 'em up to dry.

Lord! says I to myself right in the street, loud as I am talkin' now; I'll do it by ginger if I have to get up at two o'clock in the morning.

So when I got home I just takes the bottle of fluid out in the wood-shed, and pokes it up on a high shelf among a lot of old beer bottles and black'n' boxes, and went whistling around the house just if nothing hadn't happened.

Saturday night I went to market just the same as usual; and Sunday we both went to church in the forenoon, and staid at home and talked about our future prospects in the afternoon, but I kept up a terrible thinking about that fluid, but didn't let on but what I expected she would do the washin' the next morning—same's ever. Well, after a while we went to bed, I didn't sleep much that night. I kept a thinking all the time about stirrin' up that tub of clothes, and gettin' 'em dry before daylight. Once I got a short sleep and dreamed I was swimming across a deep of washing fluid, and the rocks at the bottom and both sides were all petrified shirt boxes and pillow cases; and I thought there was an old woman standing on the banks, who kept stirring on us up with a long pole.

I reckon I woke up about five o'clock; for 'twas about half way between daylight and dark, and I could just see a little streak of light on the top of Green Mountains. I turns over and looks at my sweet little wife, and she was sleeping as sound as dead salmon; so I carefully slid out of bed, hurries on my clothes, and in less than ten minutes had the old wash tub filled clear to the top with all my wife's white clothes, and all I could find of my own. I pours in about a pail full and a half of clean rain water, and then goes into the wood-shed, takes down the bottle of fluid, walk back to the tub and pours her all in. Lord! but it would a done you good to hear it sizzle for about a minute.

Well, says I, to myself, if that's the dirt count out, it makes a good deal of noise about it anyhow, and I guess it's doing the thing up handsomely. So after letting it sizzle for about a minute, I takes up an old broom-handle, that was standin' in the corner and wallops the things about like a lamb's tail in fly time for about three minutes, and then takes hold of them, with my hands, to string 'em out on the fence to dry.

But, gentlemen, you'd better b'lieve I dropped that ere pile o' duds mighty sudden. Billin' water wasn't a circumstance to them, and afore I could get my hands into a pail of fresh water I thought 'pon my soul, I should lose 'em both. For about a minute I was as mad as a scratched kitten, but I finally thought I wouldn't wake up my wife with my bolloring, but hang out the bling duds with the old broom-handle, and let them drench on the fence. But the plucky thing never cooled to the last minute, and every time a drop of the pesky fluid spattered on my hands, face or legs, it burnt worse than melted sealing wax. Why, gentlemen, you hain't no idee how the infernal stuff did burn! Fire wasn't a shudder to it.

Well, I soon got tired of that sport, and 'fore I'd half of the mornin' mention 'em on the fence, I just washed off my hands and face and legs, for I wasn't dressed you know, and streaked it off to bed like a scared weasel. But I couldn't sleep a wink; my hands pained me so that I had to keep a blowin' on 'em to keep from bellowing like a lost calf, so I says to my wife.

Susan, dear, hadn't you better get up and put your clothes to soak!

Ho, h-n-m, says she rubbing her eyes with her thumb-joint, and kind of winkin' as if she was half asleep, yes, John, I guess I had, but how long have you been awase, John?

O, sometime, says I—blowin' my hands and digging my legs with my toe nails all the time to keep from growin'—but get up now, Susan; do, dear, or you will be late with your breakfast, and I've got to go out of town this morning on important business.

If that's the case, said she, I'll certainly hurry. Well, gentlemen, I was in a mighty uncomfortable fix about that time; you can bet your life on that and not lose a hair. I wanted to groom like a dying horse, and have something cooling wrapt around my fingers; and then again I didn't want to make no noise till wife had seen how nice I'd fixed things.

Well, wife she flew around and got on her things, and went out in the kitchen to chuck the clothes into a tub; and in about three minutes, I heard her say to herself,—

Good heavens and earth! What does this mean? I never put things to soak.—John! John! get up and come here; do.

Certainly says I, certainly, and, gentlemen, I'm under a powerful impression that this customer wasn't very slow in his movements about that time, for in less than forty seconds I was there, and says I, scratching my legs at the same time.

What's the matter my dear? What's up?

What's up, says she, why, look here, somebody has put all my clothes—and some little things that I had just been making—in this tub, and then thrown something on them that's entirely ruined them.

Ha, ha, ha, says I, trying mighty hard to laugh, but my voice sounded as dry as a load of tan bark going over a bridge. Well, Susan, ha, ha, ha, I suppose I might as well own up to the joke, at once, for my hands ache so, that I can't hold in any longer. It's nothing but washing fluid, and it cleans the clothes without rubbing, and its well it does, for no pair of hands in this world could stand it to do the rubbing, but you see the joke of it is, my dear, I got up this morning while you were asleep, and done up the washing sick and clean, and hung part of them out on the fence to dry.

While I was saying this, wife she took a little stick, and in trying to lift out one of her—well, as there's ladies present, tain't no matter what it was—one of her garments, by ginger, the darned thing bust in two! right through the middle; one half holdin' on to the stick and the other falling back into the tub.

Although I was suffering from burnt hands and was as mad as a green mountain catamount at what the infernal fluid had done, I couldn't keep from laughing to see that garment bust in too, if I died for it, so I just give a yell, 'twould a done justice to a one horse earthquake.

Wife looks through the window at the white things hangin' on the fence, and it was too much for the poor critter; her heart was broke, and she sits down to cry it out. I was now about as mad as a man could be without spilling, and my hands and legs pained me so that I routed the Doctor as if there were fourteen murders going on in the house.

The doctor rushed down stairs with his pantaloons in one hand, and his night cap wrong-side before; and seeing wife crying, and one a walkin' the room, groaning like a fall wind in a grave yard, says he,—

In the name of colonel and hotjulp what's the matter now?

What's the matter? says I, O, nothin' very particular is the matter, only I have burnt up all the clothes in the house, and sent both my hands and legs with a thundering washing fluid that I've been experimenting with.

The Doctor looked at my hands a minute, then smelt of the tub of clothes, and says he, where's the bottle you took the fluid out of?

Out on the door-step said I.

The Doctor went out and looked at the bottle, went into the wood-shed and took a peep at the blacking bottles and beer bottles, and after swearing a little to himself to keep me from rarin' I 'pose on him, says he, peepin' into the room,—

Well, you have immortalized yourself to-day and no mistake, and you shall hereafter be known as the Washing-fluid Experiment-er!

What in thunder are you laughing at? says I.

Why, says he, your bottle of washing-fluid stands out on the shelf, where you put it, and you have used up a quart and a half of the very best quality of Oil of Vitriol; so some of I bought last week for chemical purposes.

Gentlemen, I ain't a man 'dicted to profane language only on 'straordinary cases, but if I didn't make the atmosphere in that room blue for a few minutes, then I didn't know how—that's so. I was so mad for a minute to think that I had played a joke on myself that I didn't feel the pain on my hands a bit, and I just goes into the shed, smashes the uncorked bottle of fluid over a box of old iron, swore eternal enmity to every thing in the washing improvement, and we've washed our clothes in the good old-fashioned way ever since.

And, gentlemen, as this man hain't offered to sell his fluid to this party I'll forgive him; but if any man ever asks me to buy another bottle of washing fluid—either he or I have got to take a licking.

R—'s Corners, exclaimed the driver, and the little man slid out of the coach like a frightened mouse, truly grateful no doubt, that he had escaped the capacious jaws of the gigantic Green Mountainer.

The Toll Gate of Life.

We are all on our journey. The world through which we are passing is in some respects like a turnpike—all along which vice and folly have erected toll gates for the accommodation of those who choose to call as they go—and there are very few of all the hosts of travellers, who do not occasionally stop a little at some one or another of them—and consequently pay more or less to the toll-gatherers. Pay more or less, I say, because there is a great variety as well in the amount, as in the kind of toll exacted at these different stopping places.

Pride and Fashion take heavy tolls of the purse—many a man has become a beggar, by paying at their gates—the ordinary rates they charge are heavy, and the road that way is none of the best.

Pleasure affords a very smooth, delightful road in the outset; she tempts the traveller with many fair promises, and wins thousands—but she takes without mercy like an artful robber, she allures until she gets her victim in her power, and then strips him of health and money, and turns him off a miserable object, into the worst and most rugged road of life.

Intemperance plays the part of a sturdy villain. He's the very worst toll gatherer on the road, for he not only gets from his customers their money and their health, but he robs them of their very brains. The men who meet on the road, ragged and ruined in frame and fortune, are his visitors.

And so I might go enumerating many others who gather toll of the unwary. Accidents sometimes happen, it is true, along the road, but those who do not get through at least tolerably well, you may be sure have been stopping by the way at some of these places. The plain, common sense men, who travel straight forward, get through the journey without much difficulty.

This being the state of things, it becomes every one, in the outset, if he intends to make a comfortable journey, to take care what kind of company they keep in with. We are all apt to do a great deal as companies do—stop where they stop, pay toll where they pay. Then the chances are one to ten, but our choice in this particular decides our fate.

Having paid due respect to a choice of companions, the next important thing is closely to observe how others manage; to mark the good or evil that is produced by every course of life—see how those who manage well; by those means you learn.

Be careful of your habits; these make the man. And they require long and careful culture, ere they grow to a second nature. Good habits I speak of. Bad ones are easily acquired—they are spontaneous weeds, that flourish rapidly and rankly without care or culture.

About the Sponge.

The natural history of the sponge is very obscure. The contradictory assertions of naturalists forbid any degree of precision, even in its classification. Some regard it as a vegetable, others as an animal, others again as a union of both in the polyp. All agree in admitting that two substances are found in the sponge: one in the interior, consisting of a fibrous cornea, forming a tissue more or less compact, to the centre of which adheres a marine body; the other, on the exterior, is of a soft, gelatinous consistency, and appears to be the seat of sensibility and life. But little is known as to the origin or duration of the life or sponge. It is conjectured that its growth must be very rapid, as two years suffice to re-peopple the rock despoiled by the gatherers or fishers. The sponge presents on its exterior variable forms, without any degree of regularity, though it bears a close analogy to the stony polyp. The fibrous tissue is the only part that can be studied with attention, but such examination reveals irregularities so numerous, and differences so great, that it is most difficult to assign a general character to the interior. The fibrous network, the fine elastic tissue, are solely the index by which the quality of the sponge may be ascertained without furnishing data on which to establish whether these properties are natural or accidental.

The sponge is common to all seas; but differences exist as to its quality. The best sponges are undoubtedly those which are brought from the coast of Turkey, and among these the Syrian sponges are the most highly esteemed for toilet use. They are of a finer grain, a greater flexibility, and are more porous—that is to say, they have a greater capacity for absorption. In commerce they are divided into three classes—color, delicacy and elasticity of tissue, together with compactness of material. The white, delicate, formed sponge are reckoned the best; there is a second class, stronger, and of a more yellowish tint; and a common class, known as Venice sponge, and only employed for the most ordinary purposes.

Sponge gathering, or, as it is very commonly called, the sponge-fishery, commences in June, and terminates in August; on the coast of Syria it is sometimes prolonged to September. At the beginning of the season the fishermen of Beyrout, Tripoli and Latta-kieh prepare for work, and either enter on the undertaking on their own account, or in the service of some enterprising speculator. Those who fish on their own account, or in the employment of others, form into parties of five or six, under the command of a reis. The boats employed are small, but admirably adapted for the purpose.

The fishermen coasting for a considerable distance in their frail barks—the sea generally in such a state as to permit them to see the bottom—when they observe a piece of sponge rock, rise in sail, cast anchor, and each man in turn plunges into the water.

The diver places his feet on a large stone attached to a cord which he holds in his hands. When he reaches the rock he tears away the sponge, and places it in a bag before him. Having gathered as much as he possibly can, he re-ascends, and the second diver plunges and carries on the work. The divers who sometimes descend thirty fathoms, (one hundred and eighty feet) in search of the sponge.

The sponge is submitted to the necessary manipulation as soon as possible after it has been gathered. When they arrive on shore, the divers dig a hole in the sand, and fill it with water. Into this the sponge is plunged, and the men tread it with their feet until the whole of the outer gelatinous coating is removed. When it has been thoroughly denuded of this membrane, and presents to the eye nothing but its own natural color, the process is complete.

Sponge thus prepared, contains a quantity more or less, of the sand in which it is pressed; and as the divers are paid by weight, it does not answer their purpose to wash the sponge scrupulously clean. But sharp dealers require a couple of days to ascertain how much sand is mixed with the sponge, and to pay accordingly; and it is but the third or fourth day that the sponge is ready for use.

Our Schools.

MR. EDITOR: As the School Committee's Report for the Primary School in the High School House the last year—to be written and verbal—has been the subject of much conversation, permit me to state a few facts in connection with it. In 1851 the schools in this town were graded through the successful efforts of some of our most efficient members of the Order of School Committee. Consequently, in all the Grammar and Intermediate Schools, were found many scholars, unqualified for the respective departments, and they were sent "down." Now this school the three preceding years, registered over one hundred names of scholars each year; and as the number was likely to be increased, by the new movement, a division was deemed necessary, and was accordingly made. Those scholars residing within the prescribed limits, were sent to a room on sue more or less compact, to the centre of which adheres a marine body; the other, on the exterior, is of a soft, gelatinous consistency, and appears to be the seat of sensibility and life. But little is known as to the origin or duration of the life or sponge. It is conjectured that its growth must be very rapid, as two years suffice to re-peopple the rock despoiled by the gatherers or fishers. The sponge presents on its exterior variable forms, without any degree of regularity, though it bears a close analogy to the stony polyp. The fibrous tissue is the only part that can be studied with attention, but such division was made; and one portion under the care of Mrs. Burrell was placed in the airy and agreeable room under the High School, which had been put at the disposal of the Committee by the town, whilst the other continued at the old place under the direction of Miss Beal. The Committee regret to say that, owing to the smallness of their number, and the engrossing nature of the private business of several of them, they have not been able to give every scholar an equal share of attention. In selecting some in preference to others, they have paid regard to the circumstances of the respective scholars. The long experience and approved fidelity of Mrs. Burrell give them confidence that her mode of instruction might be depended on, without the need of frequent supervision. Neither have they been deceived. The proficiency of her scholars, in arithmetic, surpasses that of any other school of the same grade. Those who were left under care of Miss Beal, it says, "appeared quite young, but during the whole year presented the uniform aspect of a model of its kind." This speaks well for the condition in which it was left. As the subsequent reports are before us, and are coming true links, we will add what they say. Reports for 1854, contains the following brief summary:

"The Committee would speak with the highest approbation of those kept in the South District, in all the departments."

1855. "Both of those in the South District need no other remark from us, than that they are highly creditable to their respective teachers. It would be difficult to find any where better schools of this grade either with regard to learning or discipline."

1856. After commenting at some length the crowded state of the other school—the number having very much increased, since it was equally divided four years before; and it was relieved of a large number in the early part of the summer, they being sent by the Committee to the High School House, and at this time it is to be divided again, and another Primary formed. Our apology for deviation is, that the relative position of the two schools, as they now stand, deserve some consideration; as "a frequent similar effect suggests a constant cause." To return to the Report:

"The other Primary remains under the care of Mrs. Burrell, who, while she regulates it on a system peculiarly her own, perhaps to object to this, never fails in practice, to bring out a class every year that will compare favorably with any other school, of the same grade in town."

The practical result proves the theory not to be utopian.

The Report of 1857 is still fresh in the minds of all interested in it. To some it is somewhat problematical; to others, an ingenious prelude to an intended squall. To those who from long continued experience, have borne the heat and burden of the day in laboring incessantly to raise the low standard of these schools, to their present position, "The difficulty of overrating the importance of having them well kept," is no enigma.

We pass from general to sectional remarks. "The character which formerly distinguished these schools, in the South District, have been well sustained." The schools at the Centre and Point have risen rapidly to the first rank, and no better evidence of the progress can be given than in the fact, that the school so long kept by Mrs. Burrell now begins to lag behind the rest." Lag! does it? It lags in the number of scholars transferred to the Intermediate.

The aggregate for the last five years, is ninety-one. Is it in the attainments requisite for further promotion? It has been ascertained that two from this Primary to one from the other was sent from the Intermediate to the Grammar last year; and now it is said that a large part of a class, sent to the Intermediate about one month since, have been promoted to the first class.

"The Committee regret that the discipline is less uniform, yet the progress made in their studies shows that their time has not been mispent!" The clause, "numerous complaints made by parents of the severity of punishments." This assertion is sufficiently annulled by the names of parents annexed to a paper, drawn up by the friends of the teachers as soon as it was known that it had been said, that "the District was dissatisfied." One communication of complaints, in all that was ever made to the teacher by any Committee for twelve consecutive years.

On all occasions, there is plenty of idle gossip, blown about the streets like straw; but what honorable minded person, would stoop to gather them to make levers, to build up any thing very substantial? Still, they may sometimes serve as a subterfuge, to move some credulous candidate to the consummation of a desired end, by a bombastic dictator.

Of those who signed the Report, very few visited the school after April, at which time, no class was heard except the first, which was examined, and sent to the Intermediate.

Mr. B. B. Newcomb, made two short visits and Mr. W. W. Baxter the same. Mr. Bradford was in at the closing examination for the first and only time, or any other year. Mr. Pope never. Hon. C. F. Adams, has not visited it since 1853; whose kind and courteous acts in co-operation with other gentlemen of the Board that year is still remembered with gratitude and esteem.

Lectures on Crims.

Last Sabbath our citizens were favored with two very interesting discourses on Crims from the Rev. Charles Spear, well-known in this country by the very appropriate title of Prisoner's Friend. The Universalist Society and Pastor, very kindly opened their church.

In the morning, Mr. Spear presented the various objects of his mission: which was to visit the courts and prisons, to relieve the discharged prisoner, to publish a periodical, &c. He spoke of the number confined.

In the United States, about 40,000
In England, 30,000
In France, 50,000

There were discharged annually from the prisons in the United States, about 20,000 convicts: most of them without character, without friends, and without employment.

In the afternoon, Mr. Spear presented the various objects of his mission: which was to visit the courts and prisons, to relieve the discharged prisoner, to publish a periodical, &c. He spoke of the number confined.

1st. That poverty did not co-operate in the work.

2d. That but few were interested.

3d. That the Church itself, often stood in the way.

It was shown that our present mode of imprisonment was wholly inadequate to effect a reform of the prisoner.

Mr. Spear illustrated his subject by a great variety of facts; one of which, was extremely interesting—that of the communion scene in prison.

He intended to have had a third service in the Town Hall, Mrs. Spear was intending to give some facts in relation to her experience in visiting prisons, and in affording relief to the discharged convict.

We trust that before long we shall have another lecture in our town, as we find there is much interest in the whole subject.

ANNUAL MEETING. At the Annual Meeting of the Niagara Engine Company, No. 1, on the 2d inst., the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Foreman—Charles N. Hunt.
First Assistant—Edward B. Southern.
Second Assistant—John T. Ripley.
Clerk and Treasurer—Charles H. Kimball.
Standing Committee—Norton Q. Pope, F. A. Lapham, Harvey French.

Leading Hosemen—William Faxon, John S. Southern, Francis W. French, Francis Southern, Perez Chubbuck, Jr.
Suction Hosemen—Deater Faxon, Andrew Atkinson, Charles Smith, Thomas Brooks, Perry Pope.

OFFICERS. At a recent meeting of the Hook and Ladder Company, the following person were chosen:

Captain—Richard Newcomb.
Assistant—H. G. Pratt, Jr.
Clerk and Treasurer—S. Morse, Jr.
Foreman of the Hook—William C. Chubbuck.

Assistants—A. Fernald, Joshua H. Spear.
Foreman of the Ladder—J. G. Brackett.
Assistants—Perez Chubbuck, Joshua Jones.
Assessors—George Savil, C. P. Tirrell.

ORANGES. At this season of the year, when all the choice fruits of this climate are out of the market, what gives us more pleasure and enjoyment, than to partake of the sweet from the tropics; and particularly the sweet, juicy orange? And we would say to our readers if they wish for rich and sweet oranges, call on our friend, Mr. Howard Vinal.

SMALL ADVANCES ON COST DO NOT INFLUENCE SMALL PROFITS.—On the contrary, the essential basis of the largest success, is:—first, to supply the public demand on more favorable terms than any one else; secondly, universal knowledge of the fact, and assurance that it may be relied on.

Acting on the principles embodied in the above phrase, a large and extensive trade is carried on in the sale of carpets, at the warehouse of the New England Carpet Company, 75 Hanover street, on terms and with results satisfactory with all parties.—Boston Herald.

The firm alluded to above have an advertisement in our paper of to-day, to which we would refer those of our readers who may be in want of carpets.

THE WHEAT CROP. C. W. Webster, President of the Illinois State Agricultural Society, says that the early sown wheat in Southern Illinois, never looked better in any season; apples and peaches will also be plenty.

FROST IN MAY. The Northampton Gazette reports that a slight frost was visible in that vicinity on Tuesday last. It was not severe enough to do any material injury to the crops.

Our own vicinity was likewise visited on the same morning with a slight touch from the frosty monarch, but we have not heard of its doing any damage.

Mrs. Cunningham. This female who was so intimately connected with the Burdell tragedy, in New York, although acquitted on account of the jury failing to agree, has not succeeded so well with public opinion. Women and boys continue to gather in front of the house of Mrs. Cunningham, 31 Bond street, ring the bell, stone the windows, and call her a murderer, until the police disperse them.

Sing Sing State Prison. Forty of the prisoners who tried to escape from Sing Sing State Prison, New York, were subjected to the shower bath punishment; and in addition to the showering, the ringleaders were placed upon the bread and water diet, in a dark cell or dungeon. Dunn, the ringleader, received the infliction twice with the Colton hose, in his face.

This cold water punishment appears to be as old as custom itself. In former times it was the practice to shave the heads of criminals, place them in an upright position, with a pad of water suspended over them, which by its constant dripping upon the shaved part of the head produced the most intense agony.

LAST CHANCE. Mr. McElroy will remain here but a few days longer—not beyond Tuesday next. Those of our citizens, therefore, who desire a good likeness, from the hands of this distinguished artist, should avail themselves of this, their last opportunity.

REDUCTION OF FARE. We are gratified in being able to state that the Directors of the Old Colony Railroad intend on and after —, to reduce the price of fare to the same rates as paid on other roads. It was an unintentional error in the first place in placing it so high—but we now have the assurance that at the earliest opportunity the mistake will be rectified.

CIVILITY OF A SCHOOL TEACHER.—A boy in one of the public schools in Newark, (N. J.) was whipped a few days since by the teacher, who held his head downward between his knees while he inflicted the punishment. The holding the head downward created a rush of blood to the head, causing brain fever, and death a few days afterwards.

Remonstrance.
To the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled:

The undersigned, a Committee chosen by the Town of Quincy, at a legal meeting held for the purpose, on the first day of May, Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-Seven, in behalf of said Town respectfully request,—

That the Bill reported by the Joint Standing Committee on Roads and Bridges, on the Petition of N. F. Suffolk and others, County Commissioners of Norfolk, (Senate Bill, 154,) may not be enacted, for the following reasons, viz:

The Commissioners are not limited in said Bill, as to the sum to be paid for the franchises, bridges, and turnpikes:—the towns in which said bridges and turnpikes lie are not exempted from reimbursing to the county a part of the sum paid for franchises, bridges and turnpikes, nor from maintaining said turnpikes; and in the third section of said Bill, it is provided that tolls may be taken on the turnpikes where the tolls are now taken, thus subjecting the town of Quincy to buy a road, maintain and at the same time its inhabitants are required to pay toll when they pass over it with carriages:—because towns are made liable for the defects of the turnpikes, and they are not to be indemnified for the legal costs incurred by reason of suits brought to recover damages for defects in bridges; because Commissioners are not required by said Bill to abate tolls, even after the income of said fund shall, in their judgment, suffice for the future maintenance of said bridges:—because the tolls taken on the bridge and turnpike of the Bantree and Weymouth Corporation will hardly suffice to maintain the bridge; and if said bridge at some remote period, should become free under the provisions of this Bill, the fund must accrue mainly from tolls at the Neponset Bridge; because said Commissioners and trustees are not required by said Bill to make a report under oath to the general court, annually, of all moneys received by them in the execution of their trusts, and of all expenditures for repairs, sums paid, toll-gatherers and draw tenders, trustees, including travelling fees, and all other expenditures for or on account of said trusts.

APPOINTMENT. Charles A. Perkins, publisher of the Rock, has been appointed Postmaster of Plymouth.

MILITARY. At a meeting of the Hancock Light Guards, held at their armory on the 24th ult., Lieut. Colonel Packard presiding the following officers were elected, viz:

1st Lieut., T. H. Newcomb, captain; (vice) Capt. William S. Glover discharged; 1st Lieut. William Nash (vice) Newcomb promoted; 2d Lieut. Franklin Curtis (vice) Nash promoted; 3d Lieut. B. C. White (vice) Curtis promoted; 4th Lieut. Sergeant Charles Holmes (vice) White promoted.

On this occasion we cheerfully add our testimony of the prosperous and thriving condition of this highly popular corps of volunteers. From its first rally to the present time, it has been gradually growing in the public esteem, and under its new organization of officers we predict for it a triumphant career.

The Lost Nellie.

Two short months ago, death came creeping into our happy household, and it chilled the rich blood in Nellie's veins, and laid its icy touch on its fair brow. Then the warm fragrant breath was gone; the white rounded cheek and blue veined forehead grew white and more marble-like. The pale statue-like face gleamed out between the clustering ringlets, which lay so motionless on the alabaster forehead. The beating heart ceased its tremulous fluttering, and the music of that voice was hushed forever. The pallid lips moved not, and the blue-veined eyelids lay silent on the fair cheek. Nellie slept and no more did her light footstep echo through the silent rooms, or the patter of her tiny feet pass up and down the broad stairway. Everything was hushed, and Nellie's pet canary refusing food, drooped its golden head and sang no more.

"There was a desolate hearthstone and silent rooms in the large old mansion." In the lofty parlor lay a white robed silent form. The beautiful casket was empty, and nought of life or love was left here. Over the carved marble shelf hangs a picture. Nellie's eyes look down upon me, from its richly carved frame, and Nellie's face, as when rosy with beautiful life and health, is before me. But that picture is veiled now, and the spiders weave their shining meshes o'er its face and carved frame.

Nellie was young, gay and thoughtless; beautiful as a flower, and winning love as an innocent child; and when the tempter came, with his wooing words of eloquence and love, what wonder Nellie fell! Angels bowed their bright heads and wept at her fall.

Nellie fell! Blame her not, for her pure spirit breathed its last on my bosom, and yet remains and looks at me through Nellie's eyes. Her child, my child, our darling Nellie slept and they laid her away; and the young and tender grass grows green over Nellie's golden head.

The sun beams bright, yet all is night; No love, no joy, no hope, no light. Can pierce this gloom, or throw 't aside, For Nellie now, is cold Death's bride.

Though in the grave Nellie's lying, I'll cease to weep, I'll cease to sigh; For Nellie now is more than lost, For with her God she is at rest.

Then weep not, and cease repining; Nellie's where there's no more dying.

Hardware, &c.
BEG leave to inform my Friends and the public generally that I have just returned from a tour among the manufacturers of Hardware in the State of New York, and that I have purchased a large stock of

Hardware and Tools,
as low as cash could buy them, and I am determined to sell low or LOWEST than the same can be bought in Boston.

My store will now contain as large an assortment of hardware and tools as can be found in most of our hardware stores in Boston, besides my usual stock of

Doors, Sashes, Blinds, Glass, Pumps,
And other Building Materials, being perhaps as large a collection of goods of various kinds as can be found in the state.

walk; and, to the astonishment of myself and all, she did so—walked back and forth, several times, the length of the stage; descended the steps of the stage; walked back and forth over the Hall; returned to the stage; declared herself free from pain and weakness and took her seat and remained till my lecture closed. She arose and tho' it stormed, without any covering except a shawl, left the Hall, ran down stairs as light as a bird, and got home as soon as her husband. Next morning she took a walk of a quarter of a mile, spent the day at my daughter's, and has been walking the streets, visiting her neighbors, and about her house, ever since. The whole town was excited, as though in a hornet's nest. The most of my opponents were struck dumb.

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

"BORN TO MASTER, OF NO SERVANT WE."

MAN FOUND. Picked up at the beach on Haugh's Neck, on Thursday morning last, the body of a man which had been driven on shore during the late storm. From appearances, it was judged that it must have been in the water from four to six weeks.—

OLD SOL. After an absence of weeks is out again in all his glory. Dame Nature in a fretful mood has been scouring us with her tears. But a smile has again come over her countenance, and with the return of the fugitive, like a blooming spouse, has decorated herself in her most gorgeous attire. We think we never saw her look more lovely. And trust that no treacherous cloud will again intervene to disturb the harmony.—

But that in his rounds, peace and prosperity may follow in his train. That he will restore new life to the lagging energies of our servants at the State House, in order to facilitate and bring their long and painful duties to a happy conclusion; soften the hearts of the greedy and voracious speculator;—and illuminate the understandings of the Directors of the Old Colony Railroad, that they may see the error of their way;—relax their exorbitant demands, and end us on our way rejoicing.

Dr. Moody's Physiological Lectures which were to have taken place the present week, are postponed on account of the weather, until Monday evening next. These lectures commend themselves strongly to the attention of all classes, for the fund of useful and interesting truths revealed. "Man know thyself," is an injunction which has been rung in our ears from time immemorial. Here is an opportunity. Let none disregard it. Mr. M's perfect knowledge of his subject, and his fine Anatomical apparatus for the purposes of illustration, are strong recommendations in his favor. Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to ladies—commencing at half past two o'clock. For particulars see bills.

Mr. McElroy, Daguerreotypist, being unable on account of the stormy weather to get through with his engagements, will remain a few days longer. Those in want of good likenesses should call soon.

NORFOLK COUNTY JOURNAL. This heretofore hebdomadal is now issued semi-weekly by its enterprising proprietors, Messrs. L. B. & O. E. Weston. It is still published in the city of Roxbury, but has portions separately assigned to Dorchester, West Roxbury and Brookline. Our worthy friend Dr. O. Putnam Bacon, occupies the "chair editorial" of the Dorchester department with that tact and ability which so eminently distinguished his past duties as an editor. The Messrs. Westons were fortunate in securing the services of the "Dr." as an increase in the circulation and character of their journal by this movement will satisfy them. Abundant success attend all engaged.

THE FAR WEST. The article in our paper to-day, relative to Madison City (Wis.) was sent to us by a prominent member of our General Court, who intends to make it his future home. We hope to hear often from him in his new location, in the land of promise.

NEW FIRM. Wiley & Co., successors to Russell & Co., at the old and popular Clothing Establishment, Town Hall, have opened their spring business on a scale commensurate with the wants of the community. Their stock in trade is large, well selected, of the best and finest fabrics, and adapted to the season. The latest fashions adopted. Clothing of all descriptions cut and made to order. Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods of every variety constantly on hand. Those who study economy we would advise to give them a call.

CARPETS AT LOW PRICES. Those who are about re-decorating or furnishing their houses with Carpets, are referred to the advertisement of the New England Carpet Company of Boston, in another column of our paper.

TIFFIN ENGINE COMPANY. At the annual meeting of this Company, the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:

Foreman, Wm. Parker, Jr.
1st Assistant Foreman, Wm. Curtis
2d Assistant do. Gilbert Blaisdell.
Clerk and Treasurer, Franklin Curtis.
Suction Hosemen, Thos. Newcomb, John Jacobs, Henry Curtis.

Leading Hosemen, H. A. C. Adams, Geo. Turner, William Wilson, Freeman Blaisdell, John F. Dwyer, Lorenzo Hayden.
Standing Committee, John Crane, Lake Rideout, Thomas Curtis.

CITY HOTEL, ROXBURY. Col. N. Y. Culbertson, the "mine host" of this popular hotel is renovating his establishment in season to entertain his multitude of friends, who always visit him during the warm season from Boston and vicinity. The "Col." knows and desires to serve patrons in a satisfactory manner. He never fails to win laurels.

TO WRITERS. We welcome "Fannie" to our columns, and shall esteem it a favor to publish her promised story; but in reference to other contributors, she must waive her objections and leave us untrammelled.

ERRATA. In the communication, signed B., in our last paper, the following errors occurred:—

To make room for the "remainder," not materials.
"Lag! Does it lag in the number of scholars transferred to the Intermediate per year?" Of those who signed the Report very few "except Rev. N. Clark," visited the school, &c.

For the Patriot.
The Return of Spring.

Yes, Spring is with us again—so beautiful, so pleasant, so bright. The sweet south wind comes to us fragrant with the breath of the dearest flowers. It cools our heated bosoms and fills the heart with joy and love, to meet again the smiling face of the beautiful Spring; and we humbly bow our knees in adoration to Him who is the Creator of all things.

The long line of meadows, with the rippling stream glancing here and there, between the mossy banks, like a silvery thread, are green with the young grass. They flow-ers cover their soft bosom, on whose delicate leaves, and stems, and blades of grass, sparkle like diamonds the morning dew-drops.

Since Spring last withdrew her bowery mantle from the beautiful world, and Time, as ever, flown onward, what changes have been born upon its wings! A dear friend has laid his young head low beneath the sod of the valley, and though she sleeps the sleep which knew no waking, though her motionless form lies mouldering to dust in the quiet grave-yard, with the young grass springing over her low bed, yet she will not be forgotten.

Sixteen summers with their blossoms, soft winds, and gentle showers have passed over her head; sixteen winters with their cold snows and wintry winds have played with the curls of her hair; but she sleeps in the gloomy tomb now, and there will sleep in peace until called by her Saviour above. The Spring has returned laden with its delicate perfumes, its south winds, and lovely May-flowers, and then art not with us. Thy smiling face greets us now, nor wakens into a look of love at our approach. But we will mourn thee not, for thou art happier than us all.

"For 'tis a beautiful thing to live,
A more beautiful thing to die;
To exchange our short-lived earthly souls,
For the fiery of the sky."

The trees are putting forth their bright blossoms, and the brown bark is covered with green glassy leaves. The grass is springing, and soon Spring will pass away to be with us no more, or until her sisters have performed their duty here on earth. Some she will never again greet with her beautiful face, for on all things are written the words, "passing away!" It is on the leaves of the trees, on the sweet breathed flowers, and on the distant south, laden with the breath of the magnolia and orange blossoms, and which fans the pale brow of the poor consumptive, as she sits at her open window.

When next Spring comes, the green grass will be growing green over a new mound in the quiet grave-yard, and the pale sweet face looking from the vine wreathed window frame will be gone; and the flowers beneath the window sill, (that her hands trained,) will droop and wither. Spring will again return but some of us shall have passed away, to that distant bourne from which no traveler returns. The sun will shine again as brightly, the flowers bloom as beautifully, but God will have called some earthly blossoms to bloom in that garden above.

We are all mortal, and must die. On all our brows is written the words, "Passing away! Passing away!" The old man, three score years and ten, bends low his head, as the wind stirs the silvery hair on his furrowed temple, and whispers softly to himself,—"All things are passing away!" and from the distant hills, clothed in a purple haze, comes back the echo,—"Passing away! Passing away!"

For the Patriot.

A Wisconsin City.

The following facts taken from the Wisconsin Patriot indicate the growth and prosperity of the State Capital.

The settlement of Madison, the present Capital of Wisconsin, was commenced in 1837 by the erection of a single log hut. The population of the city in 1850 was twelve hundred, and it has since increased to between ten and twelve thousand. Madison is situated on a beautiful elevated isthmus about a mile wide, between two charming lakes which diversify and adorn the surrounding scenery. The State University is located here and affords the best facilities to parents for educating their children.

"The City is now erecting a spacious City Hall, four first class schools, and other public buildings.

The State Legislature at its last session, made large appropriations for the enlargement of the State House, the erection of a State Lunatic Asylum, and to complete the State University buildings on the magnificent plan heretofore adopted.

Congress has made an appropriation for the erection of a United States Court House and Post Office; and made the latter a distinguishing office.

Railroads. Four separate Railroads will be completed to this place the coming season, and will erect expensive buildings for their convenience and business.

Local Improvements. In addition to all these, there are now being erected Churches, Stores, Private Residences, &c., most of which are built of the beautiful cream-colored stone from the Madison quarries.

These improvements will give employment to hundreds of mechanics and laborers, at a point where they will find a healthy location for a home, educational, and other advantages unsurpassed.

Madison lies in the centre of one of the most fertile counties in the State, whose resources are now being rapidly developed, and it has not a competing city to limit its growth for forty miles in any direction.

Pure Potash

IN TIN CANS.
B. T. BABBITT,
68 & 70 Washington street, N. Y.,
And 38 India street, Boston.

The Proprietor of this POTASH has for many years seen the necessity of having a reliable standard for the strength of POTASH. The adulteration they did not have good, that it was, notwithstanding its valuable properties, gone nearly out of use. The Proprietor has taken the responsibility of ascertaining his name to every barrel, and warranting the strength to be a uniform, and when used always producing the same results. Potash many times is adulterated with salt, which is destructive in making soap; it makes the laundry very difficult to have good in it. One other reason that Potash has gone out of use, is, it is so unpleasant to handle, being put in wooden casks, and becoming a liquid in many cases, and very troublesome to the retailers.

Now the Proprietor first obtains pure Potashes, always being the same strength, and producing the same results, and warranting the strength to be a uniform, and when used always producing the same results. NORFOLK, SS.

At a Meeting of the County Commissioners for said County held at Dedham, on the twenty-first day of April, A. D. 1857.

UPON the petition of J. W. Wolcott and others, representing that common convenience and necessity require that a highway should be laid out from the northerly line of the City of Roxbury, commencing at a point near the end of Shawmut Avenue in the City of Boston, thence running in a southerly direction to Dudley Street, and thence over the way known as the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike to the new Street leading from the said Turnpike to Walk Hill Street in West Roxbury, thence over said new Street to Walk Hill Street, and through land of Patrick G. Brien, and through lands of Franklin Weld, and others to said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike, and then over the residue of said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike, in the Town of West Roxbury, and thence over the residue of said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike, in the Town of Dedham, and requesting that a view may be had, and that a public highway may be laid out between the termini aforesaid, or over such portion thereof as common convenience and necessity may require, notice having been first given to all persons and corporations interested, the Commissioners (one of the Special Commissioners acting in this behalf instead of B. S. Farrington, then of Dedham) met at the City Hall in the City of Roxbury, on the 10th day of September, A. D. 1856, at 9 o'clock, A. M., and viewed the route and premises, and the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, and the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, and the Town of West Roxbury, and the Town of Dedham, and the Boston and Providence Railroad Company, were then and there represented by their officers and agents, and said Commissioners, at Dedham, on the 23rd day of September last, and thence to the 10th day of December last, and said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, before said Commissioners, as at and to be seen, presented to the laying out of the turnpike road, lying within the limits of the City of Roxbury and Towns of West Roxbury and Dedham, or any part thereof as a common highway, and to alterations therein, and to relinquish their franchise therein, and said Commissioners having then heard all persons and corporations interested, and in said County, on the 12th day of December last, by adjournment of the September meeting, then and there proceeding, adjudge that public convenience and necessity require that the whole of said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike road should be laid out as a common highway, and alterations should be made therein, and that the part of highway prayed for by said petitioners, which extends from the terminus of said Turnpike in the City of Roxbury, over said Turnpike to its terminus in the Town of Dedham, should be laid out as a common highway, and alterations be made therein, and that in these respects the prayer of said petitioners should be granted, and upon the adjournment aforesaid, it was thereupon ordered, that the Commissioners would meet at the City Hall, in the City of Roxbury, on the 16th day of February, 1857, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and thence proceed to lay out and locate said Turnpike road as a common highway, and establish the highway prayed for between the termini designated in the adjunction, and make after the adjunction aforesaid, and take such action in relation to said adjunction as they were authorized to do.

And that an attested copy of said adjunction, with this order thereon, be served upon the Clerk of the City of Roxbury, and the Towns of West Roxbury and Dedham, and upon the President or Clerk of the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, and of the Boston and Providence Railroad Company, and upon Rev. Patrick G. Brien, of the City of Roxbury, thirty days at least before the time appointed for said day of meeting; and also that a like copy be published three weeks successively in the Norfolk County Journal, Dedham Gazette and the Quincy Patriot, and in newspapers printed in Roxbury, Dedham and West Roxbury, for the last fourteen days at least before said day of meeting; and that like copies be posted up in two or more public places in said Towns of West Roxbury, Dedham, and City of Roxbury, fourteen days at least before said day of meeting, that all persons and corporations interested may then and there appear and be heard if they see fit.

EZRA W. SAMPSON, Clerk.
To the Honorable County Commissioners of Norfolk County.

RECEIVED that common convenience and necessity require that a public highway should be laid out in Brookline in said County from Heath Street, near the end of Hammond Street, in a southerly direction to Lexington Street, near the house of William R. Lawrence.

Wherefore we respectfully petition your Honors after due proceedings had to lay out a highway between Heath Street and Lexington Street as above described.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
NORFOLK, SS.

At a meeting of the County Commissioners for said County held at Dedham, within and for said County of Norfolk, on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1857, on the Petition aforesaid, ordered that the County Commissioners meet at the dwelling house of M. W. Shadle, in Brookline, in said County, on the 10th day of June next, at 9 o'clock, A. M., and thence proceed to view the route described in said petition and hear and act thereon.

And that an attested copy of said Petition with this order thereon, be served upon the Clerk of the Town of Brookline, thirty days at least before the time appointed for said day of meeting, and also that a like copy be published three weeks successively in the Norfolk County Journal and Quincy Patriot newspapers printed in Roxbury and Dedham, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time appointed for said day of meeting, that all persons and corporations interested may then and there appear and be heard if they see fit.

And said meeting was duly had and held at the time and place specified in said order, and was then and there adjourned by the Commissioners, to be held at their meeting at Dedham, on the 15th day of February, 1857, and at said meeting the petition aforesaid, by J. M. Keith, Esq., their Attorney, did present their petition, representing that of and concerning the laying out of a highway from the Town of Dedham to the line of the City of Boston, over the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike, and through a part of Williams Street, in the City of Roxbury, said petitioners desired a rehearing on so much of said petition as relates to that portion of way asked for between Taft's Tavern, so called, and Forest Hills Street, and also so much of the way asked for as lies between the Post Office in the City of Roxbury, and the line of the City of Boston, and requesting that an order of notice to parties interested be issued for such rehearing, at a time convenient to the Commissioners, and at said meeting it was thereupon ordered upon said last-mentioned petition, that the Commissioners would meet at the City Hall, in the City of Roxbury, on the first day of April, 1857, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and thence proceed to view the route described in said petition, and hear and act thereon, (and in case said Commissioners shall so determine) then and there to proceed to rehear the same, and take such action concerning the adjunction or modification of the original adjunction as shall be judged proper, and upon said last-mentioned petition notice having been given to all persons and corporations interested, the Commissioners, (a Special Commissioner acting instead of B. S. Farrington, of the City of Roxbury) met at the time and place specified in said last-mentioned order, and viewed the route and premises, and the petitioners, and Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, the City of Roxbury, and the Town of West Roxbury, and the Boston and Providence Railroad Company, were then and there represented by their officers and agents, and said Commissioners, at Dedham, on the 23rd day of September last, and thence to the 10th day of December last, and said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, before said Commissioners, as at and to be seen, presented to the laying out of the turnpike road, lying within the limits of the City of Roxbury and Towns of West Roxbury and Dedham, or any part thereof as a common highway, and to alterations therein, and to relinquish their franchise therein, and said Commissioners then and there heard all persons and corporations interested, and do adjudge that public convenience and necessity require that the whole of said Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike road should be laid out as a common highway, and alterations should be made therein, and that the highway prayed for which extends from the terminus of said Turnpike, near the Phoenix House, in the Town of Dedham, over said Turnpike, through the Town of West Roxbury, and to the northerly terminus of said Turnpike in the City of Roxbury, should be laid out, and thence passing over and across highways in said City, and widening the following ways in said City, to wit: widening Winslow Street, so called; widening also a portion of Washington Street in said City, between Dudley and Williams Street; widening also Williams Street in said City, and altering and establishing the grade thereof; and the public convenience and necessity also require the laying out and establishing of a highway from said Williams Street, in extension thereof to a point at the boundary line between the Counties of Suffolk and Norfolk, opposite the County of Suffolk, and Norfolk, and near to the southerly end of Shawmut Avenue, in the City of Boston, and do adjudge, in modification of said former adjunction, that the public convenience and necessity require the laying out of the Turnpike, and alterations therein, as embraced in said former adjunction, and also the laying out and widening of ways aforesaid, in extension thereof as aforesaid, to the boundary line of the County of Suffolk, near the Southerly end of Shawmut Avenue, as aforesaid.

By the Commissioners,
NATHANIEL F. SAFFORD,
Chairman.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
NORFOLK, SS.

On the Adjunction aforesaid, Ordered, that the Commissioners meet at the City Hall in the City of Roxbury, and County, on SATURDAY, the twentieth day of June next, at ten o'clock, A. M., and thence proceed to lay out and locate said Turnpike and roads as a common highway, and establish the highway prayed for, and take such action in relation to said adjunction as by law they may be authorized to do.

And that an attested copy of said Adjunction, with this order thereon, be served upon the Clerk of the City of Roxbury, and the Towns of West Roxbury and Dedham, and upon the President or Clerk of the Norfolk and Bristol Turnpike Corporation, and of the Boston and Providence Railroad Company, and upon Rev. THE FOURTEENTH OF JUNE is the day set apart by certain theorizing speculators of the destructive consequences likely to result to our planet by the return of the great comet of 1836. We merely allude to the fact for the purpose of bringing it before the notice of those who have old accounts to settle.

 Messrs Sanderson & Lanergan, of Boston, Pyrotechnists of world-wide reputation, will, at the approaching anniversary of our national independence, make exhibition of Fire Works of new and beautiful designs, never before seen in this country. For particulars see advertisement in this day's paper.

start and tremble when they tell you that the little form, which is flesh of your flesh and bone of your bone, lies, motionless, dead, in the grand, lofty parlor, with the delicate limbs wrapped in soft linen; or frozen as it was under the outlines of a familiar face. Then ! Ah ! then let not the fount of tears be unsealed. And weep not, even if thou hast such an unnecessary remembrance as a heart which beats

Pure Potash

IN TEN CANS.

B. T. BABBITT,

65 & 70 Washington Street, N. Y.,

And 35 India Street, Boston.

THE Proprietor of this POTASH has for many years been the possessor of having some of the standard for the strength of POTASH.

The adulteration has become so general, that it has, notwithstanding its valuable properties, gone nearly out of use. The Proprietor has taken the responsibility of subscribing his name to every package, and warrants the strength to be genuine, and when used always producing the same results.

Potash many times is adulterated with salt, which is destructive in making soap; and the Ladies say they did not have good lard, &c. One other reason, the Potash has gone out of use, is, it is so impalpable, it handles, being put in wooden cases, and becoming a liquid in many cases, and very troublesome to the retailers.

Now the Proprietor first obtains pure Potashes, always being the same strength, and producing the same results; and will warrant it in all cases, and directions are followed, to produce the same effect in making soap, and all other purposes for which Potash is used, with full directions for making the best of Soap, Hard, or Fancy Soap. It is made with little trouble; the key is all prepared in five or ten minutes.

1 lb. Potash warranted to cut 5 lbs. of grease into good soap.

12 lbs. will make one barrel of beautiful soft soap.

Directions for making soft soap.

Directions for making hard soap.

Directions for making Lard and Butter.

Directions for cleaning cotton waste that has been used for making machinery of all kinds.

Directions for using this Potash in place of Soda.

Directions for sticking India-rubber soles on Shoes.

BEST SALERATUS,

Prepared entirely different from other Saleratus. All the deleterious matter extracted in such a manner as to produce Bread, Biscuits, and all kinds of Cake, without containing a particle of saleratus when the bread or cake is baked; thereby producing wholesome results. Every particle of Saleratus is removed by gas and passes through the bread or biscuit without leaving any residue; and the bread or biscuit is as good as when made from Saleratus. When you purchase one paper you should take the old paper with you, and be very particular and get the next exactly like the first, (name and picture, twisted Lead-line, with a glass encircling water on the top, as you see in the bill.)

Full directions for making Bread with Sour Milk and Cream Tartar, and all kinds of Pastry, also for making Soda Water; also, directions for making Soda Water, will accompany each package.

the gluttony of man, who, sending this sober citizen of the sea from his native bed, carries him unresisting to busy cities and the home of crowds. If a handsome, well-shaped, and well-flavored oyster, he is introduced to the palaces of the rich and noble, like a wit, like a philosopher, or a poet, to give additional relish to their sumptuous feasts; if a sturdy, thick-backed, strong-tasted individual, fate consigns him to the capacious tub of the street fishmonger, from whence, dosed with strong black pepper and pungent vinegar, embalmed partly after the Egyptian king, he is transferred to the hungry stomach of a costermonger, or becomes the luxurious repast of a successful pick-pocket.—Westminster Review.

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

Saturday, June 6th, 1857.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Our friends who have been so considerate in anticipating our wants, by furnishing us so liberally with facts connected with the life and death of Rev. Mr. Lunt, will please accept our thanks.—one of these articles, from the pen of a gifted fellow townsman, who was on terms of intimacy with the deceased, will appear next week.

THE DEATH OF REV. WILLIAM PARSONS LUNT.—It becomes our painful duty to announce the death of Rev. W. P. Lunt, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town. Dr. Lunt left home last December, on a tour to some of the memorable spots in sacred history, on his way to Jerusalem. While in the desert he was taken ill, which seemed to be a severe attack of rheumatism; it was with some difficulty that he could reach Akabah. Here his disorder increased in severity and assumed a more distinct febrile type, with delirium; opotes were administered and while in this unconscious state, death closed the sad scene. It is a melancholy consolation to his friends to know that his last hours were soothed by the kindness and attention of two English gentlemen—one of them a clergyman, with whom he had been sometime traveling, and they, and one of his own countrymen, who was at Akabah, performed the last sacred office to his remains. The body will not be brought home; he was buried in the desert, enclosed in the mattress on which he died, and a few rough stones mark his lone grave.

No useless cilia enclosed his breast; Nor in sheet, nor in shroud we found him.
"We carried not a line, and we raised not a stone, But we left him as he lay in glory."
Dr. Lunt was son of Mr. Henry Lunt, formerly a prominent merchant of Boston; he was born at Newburyport, April 24, 1805; graduated at Harvard, in 1823. He then took up the study of law in the office of C. P. Curtis, Esq. of Boston; after remaining there about a year, the law not meeting his views, he abandoned it, and began his theological pursuits. Commenced the ministry at (N. Y.) and was pastor over the Broadway Unitarian Church, now under the charge of Dr. Os-good. Dr. L. was installed as pastor of the First Congregational Church in this town June 30, 1835. The services at his installation were conducted as follows: viz: Introductory prayer and selections from the Scriptures, were by Rev. Mr. Whitney, of West Roxbury; Sermon by Rev. Mr. Frothingham, of the First Church, Boston; Prayer of Installation by Rev. Peter Whitney, of Quincy; Charge by Rev. Dr. Parkman, of Boston; Right hand of Fellowship by Rev. Mr. Cunningham, of Dorchester; Address to the Society by Rev. Mr. Gannett, of Boston, and concluding prayer, by Rev. Mr. Huntout of Milton.

To-morrow, the parish will assemble in their respective place of worship to pay their last respects to their worthy and devoted pastor with appropriate services. What a change; twenty-two years ago, this very Sunday, in the same pulpit, at the same hour, June 7, 1835, he preached his first sermon, after installation. With what power and eloquence he appealed to the aged middle-aged and youth of his congregation on the subject of death and the immortal soul, the effects of which, many of the older members of the parish can bear testimony to. Dr. L., as a preacher, writer, scholar and poet, was well known and highly esteemed. His pulpit writings will be remembered as of singular beauty and strength. Many of them have been published, and will be held as sacred mementoes by those who have been fortunate enough to have preserved them. His eulogy on the late John Quincy Adams has seldom been equalled. In the death of Dr. Lunt, the church has lost a firm, affectionate and endearing friend. Christianity an eloquent and independent advocate, and the town a valuable citizen.

The church has been tastefully draped with black, and it is requested that all who attend will, so far as convenient, dress in conformity with this requisition. The bells of all the Societies in town will be tolled one hour commencing at 6 o'clock, A. M.

The weather for the last week was pleasant beyond description.

EXTENSIVE CONFLAGRATION IN EAST BRIDGEWATER.—The house, stables and other out-buildings attached to the estate owned by J. C. Hudson, and kept by him as a house of entertainment, was on Thursday afternoon last destroyed by fire. The furniture was principally removed with but little loss. Also, the dwelling house and out-buildings adjoining, owned and occupied by Mr. Bean, were entirely consumed, together with a barn on the estate of Judge Mitchell. There was some insurance on the property of Mr. Hudson, but what amount we are unable to say. The circus of Sands, Nathans & Co., were quartered at this house—but sustained no injury. The origin of the fire is not ascertained. Three men were known to be in the barn at the time it took fire, and it is thought that it might have caught there their carelessness. As they have not been seen since fears are entertained that they perished in the flames. The destruction of property at this fire must have been from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars.

THE NIAGARA ENGINE COMPANY made quite a successful trial of their new engine on Monday last. Every anticipation appeared to be fully realized. It is a beautiful machine, and much superior in power and simplicity to the old one. In the hands of the present efficient Company, it will prove a powerful competitor for the honors of the department. The Messrs. Hunnemanns of Boston, are the manufacturers; who have earned an enviable reputation by their success in building the fire engine. Good judges pronounce it a perfect model.

BALLOONS. We were witness to a scene a few days since which should serve as a caution to our young ladies, who venture abroad in windy weather, dressed in the extreme of the present fashion. A fashionable belle, of a neighboring town, whose head had been turned by the hoop epidemic, while promenading the public thoroughfare of the place, in attempting to cross an avenue, was overtaken by an unruly gust of wind, which reversed the order of her garments, leaving her in a very awkward and unenviable position. Her attitude was unlike that of a Venus, but not unlike an umbrella turned inside out. The transition in this case from the sublime to the ridiculous, was so strikingly illustrated, that our risibilities were at once excited, and we were obliged to yield to their influence.

NEW STORE. Mr. Stetson's West India Goods and General Finding Store, recently opened in Johnson's building, is finely located, with a rich stock of goods, at moderate prices, which we have no doubt will be found a great accommodation to our citizens in that neighborhood. The proprietor has our best wishes. See advertisement in another column.

BUILDING LOTS. The building lots to be sold at public auction on Wednesday next, offers rare opportunities to those desirous of securing eligible building lots, beautifully and romantically situated, in the centre of the town, and within but three minutes walk of the depot. We coincide in opinion, as set forth in the advertisement, that they are not surpassed by any similar situations in the vicinity of Boston.

SANDS, NATHANS & CO.'S Circus recollect make their grand entre with their six unrivalled Elephants this day. So engrossed has been the public mind on subjects purely political, during the past year, that we have had but few recreations of this kind for some time past. Our citizens now feel as if they required a holiday—a respite from the monotonous and drizzling cares of the hour—a change of scenes in fact—and with appetites thus sharpened by long fasting, we have no doubt the Company will meet with a warm and hearty reception.

A CHANCE FOR A BARGAIN. C. Gill & Co. have received one lot of superior quality Mole skin Hats, late style; which were bought low, and will be sold at a proportionally reduced price. Now is your chance.

NORFOLK DISTRICT MEDICAL SOCIETY.—Dr. Appleton Howe, Weymouth, President; Dr. Ebenezer Stone, Walpole, Vice President; Dr. Edward Jarvis, Dorchester, Secretary; Dr. Danforth P. Wight, Dedham, Treasurer; Dr. Lemuel Dickerman, Foxborough, Librarian.

ERRATA.—The article on taxation which appeared in our paper of last week, third line from the top read, "ninety-six cents on the hundred, instead of 'nine'—quite a difference.

A NEW DRESS FOR THE GRANITE ENGINE. The Granite Engine, which has been in the hands of our friend Hall, for some weeks past, has sprung as it were, under the magic touch of his brush, into a new existence—a most neat and beautiful thing. The devices upon the sides—a sea scene and the capture of Andre, are happily conceived, and executed in a life like manner. The gilding and other ornaments are richly and tastefully laid on, and, taken in all its parts, does great credit to the artist.

For the Patriot.

The Legislature of 1857

Mr. Editor:—This august assembly was prorogued last Saturday, to July the 14th, when they will come together again in extra session, for the purpose of performing work necessary to be done that the Legislature of 1858 may be chosen under the new amendments to the Constitution. This will lengthen in all probability the present Legislature beyond that of 1856, which was the longest ever held in the State. As it is composed of politicians of so many conflicting sentiments, and as each are to have a hand in dictating the State for their own especial benefit, hence it must necessarily be long and boisterous.

A more dilatory Legislature than the last never was before held in the State. To make this statement clear and correct, we will, if you please, refer to their official proceedings. The last Legislature passed 306 Acts, Resolves 107,—total, 403; while in 1855, whose session was seven days less, they passed 489 Acts, Resolves, 89,—total, 578. These facts are sufficient proof of their peculiar industry without further comments.

A more avaricious and voracious set of commentators upon the public treasury never assembled in one body before. After having lengthened out their session to an unnecessary period, and wasting five weeks time upon unconstitutional acts and resolves which the Governor justly vetoed, and others which were defeated by non-agreement of the two houses, as the Kansas Resolves, Judge Loring's case, the attempt to repeal the Jury Law, and make extra appropriations for the Hoosac Tunnel, Northampton Hospital, and choosing a Military Commander. I say after all this waste of time they had the effrontery to vote that their pay role should be made up, including the first day of June, when their labours ceased on the 30th of May, the day of adjournment. Why not have voted themselves pay to the 14th of July, or until the next Legislature was chosen? The five weeks thrown away on unconstitutional acts, cost the State twelve hundred dollars per day; making for the whole period of five weeks the enormous sum of thirty-six thousand dollars squandered for nothing. No wonder the public complain of heavy taxation, when they have as much as they can do to keep soul and body together at the present exorbitant prices they have to give for all consumable articles, without having to pay by taxation a large portion of their hard earnings for unjust and unnecessary expenditure of the public monies, and filling the pockets of indolent politicians.

Money was the only subject they could agree upon; and upon this, they were remarkably united. For all the increase of Bank capital reported by the committee was accepted, amounting to $2,955,000, the evil effects of which the public will realize before many years and the Banks hardly know what to do with it, now they have got it.

We think the community ought to investigate the subject of legislation more thoroughly, and be prepared to send proper persons to enact laws for them, and not to be carried away by the excitement of elections, and vote for whoever the wire-pullers nominate; until this abuse is rectified we shall continue to have mismanagement and bad laws. We want men of enlarged minds and experience for statesmen, not men who ride into Boston, walk up to the State House, and into the Legislative halls and make their obeisance to the Speaker or his chair, immaterial which, and then go off down town and attend to their personal business affairs, or who can vote for a bill, one day and the next against it, and in this manner consume time for their own aggrandizement, or political effect.

Lines.

Written on the death of Mr. Bryant B. Newcomb and his daughter, Miss Caroline Newcomb.

Death came with stern relentless hand,
And called two loved ones home;
Leaving a stricken family,
In grief and woe to mourn.

Husband and father first was called
To travel to that land
From whence no traveler e'er returns
To join our earthly band.

A widowed mother sits and weeps,
Because her husband's gone—
The partner of her joys and griefs,
Sleeps in the silent tomb.

But ere one month had fled
Since that dear husband died,
A daughter much beloved was called
To join him in the skies.

They now have met again,
In that bright world above,
Where partings are unknown,
And all is peace and love.

And together they will repose
Within the silent tomb
They have left us for a bright home,
Where flowers forever bloom.

They died as the Spring was closing,
When everything looked gay;
The flowers were then just blooming;
T'was the sweet month of May.

It is a pleasant time to die,
When flowers are in bloom;
For it makes the pathway pleasant
To the cold, dreary tomb.

But we must look above,
For lasting joys and bliss;
Where else can rest be found
In such an hour as this.

Farewell, dear ones, farewell,
Till we all meet again
In that blest home above,
Where our dear Saviour reigns.

Deaths.
In this town on the 2d inst., Mrs. Mary A. Kimble, wife of Mr. William G. Kimball, aged 41 years and 3 months.

The Misnomers.

Miss Brown is exceedingly fair,
Miss White is as red as a berry,
Miss Black has a grey head of hair,
Miss Graves is a flirt very merry;
Miss Lightbody weighs sixteen stone,
Miss Rich can scarce muster a guinea,
Miss Hare wears a wig and has none,
And Miss Solomon is a sad nunny.

Miss Midway is a terrible scold,
Miss Dove's ever coarse and contrary,
Miss Young is now grown very old,
And Miss Heavside is light as a fairy,
Miss Short is at least five feet ten,
Miss Noble's of humble extraction;
Miss Leve has a hatred towards men,
While Miss Still is forever in action.

Miss Green is a regular BLUE,
Miss Scarlet looks pale as a lily,
Miss Violet ne'er blinks from our view,
And Miss Wiseman thinks all the mensly,
Miss Goodchild's a naughty young elf,
Miss Lion's from terror a fool,
Miss Moe's not at all like MYSELF,
Miss Carpenter no one can rule.

Miss Sadler ne'er mounted a horse,
While Miss Groom from the stable will run,
Miss Kilmore can't look on a corse,
Miss Amwell ne'er levelled a gun;
Miss Greadhead has no brains at all,
Miss Heartwell is ever complaining,
Miss Dance ne'er has been at a ball,
Over hearts Miss Fairweather likes reigning!

Miss Wright she is constantly wrong,
Miss Singer ne'er warbled a song,
And, alas, poor Miss Cash has no money;
Miss Bateman would give all she's worth
To purchase a man to her liking,
Miss Merry is shocked at all mirth,
Miss Foker the men don't find striking.

Miss Bliss does with sorrow overflow,
Miss Hope in despair seeks the tomb;
Miss Joy still anticipates woe,
And Miss Charity's never "at home,"
Miss Hamlet resides in a cave,
The nerves of Miss Standish are shaken,
Miss Prettiman's beau is not pretty,
Miss Faithful her love has forsaken.

Miss Porter despises all flesh,
Miss Seales they'll make wait I am thinking,
Miss Weekly is apt to be worth,
Miss Lolly to meanness is sinking;
Miss Seymour's as blind as a bat,
Miss Last at a party is first;
Miss Brindle dislikes a striped cat,
And Miss Waters has always a thirst.

Miss Knight is ever changed into Day,
Miss Day wants to marry a Knight,
Miss Prudence has just run away,
And Miss Steady assisted her flight;
But success to the fair—one and all,
No misapprehensions be making;
Though wrong the dear sex to MISCAST,
There's no harm, I should hope, in MISS-TAKING.

Wait a Little Longer.

There's a good time coming, boys,
A good time coming,
When printers shall be paid their dues,
Their children have new frocks and shoes,
In the good time coming;
The devil's pitance shall be paid,
His pantalons sewed stronger,
A brain new hat shall crown his head—
Wait a little longer.

There's a good time coming, boys,
A good time coming,
Subscription lists shall swell in size,
Proportion to the enterprise,
In the good time coming;
And every farmer in the land
Shall feel his mind grow stronger,
Patronizing country prints—
Wait a little longer.

There's a good time coming, boys,
A good time coming,
When an editor can pay his debts,
(Which now too often he forgets),
In the good time coming;
He'll settle off his old accounts,
To make his credit stronger,
With half dimes in his job for change—
Wait a little longer.

Anecdotes.

A poor emaciated Irishman, having called a physician to a "bachelor" house, spread a large mustard plaster and clapped it on the poor fellow's breast. Pat with a tearful eye, looking down upon it, said—
"Doctor, Doctor, dear, it strikes me that it's a deal of mustard for so little mate!"

A dandy lawyer remarked that the weather was so extensively hot, that when he put his head into a basin it fairly boiled.
Then, sir, replied a dirty looking Hoosier, you have a calves head soup at very little expense.

Jimmy, are your folks all well?
Yes, ma'am, all but Sally Ann.
Why, what's the matter with her?
O, nothin' particular—only she had the hoopin'-cough once, and she hint got over it. The cough hint of anny account now, but she has the hoop desperate.

A lad who had lately gone to service, having had salad served up every day for a week, ran away, because, said he, they made me eat grass in the summer, and I was afraid they'd make me eat hay in the winter, and so I wu off.

My wife tells the truth three times a day, remark a jocosely old fellow, at the same time casting a very mischievous glance at her.
Before rising in the morning, she says—O dear, I must get up, but I don't want to.
After breakfast she adds—Well, I suppose I must go to work, but I don't want to.
When she goes to bed, says—There, I've been fussing all day, and haven't done anything.

Joseph, are you a philanthropist? said a gentleman to a colored gentleman. Lors, yes, massa! I lubes everybody; I has an affection for the whole human race, all mankind in particular.

The effect, in liberalizing and enlarging the mind of the young, of this weekly commerce with the world, will be apparent to any one who will ponder it. Once, a liberal education could only be completed by a foreign travel. The sons of only the wealthy could indulge in this costly benefit. But now, the poor man's son can learn as much at home, as a hundred years ago, a gentleman could learn by journeying the world over. For while there are some advantages in going into the world, it is the poor man's privilege to have the world come to see him. The newspaper is the great collector, a great traveler, a great lecturer. It is the common people's Encyclopedia—the library, the college.

Funeral Services of Dr. Wm P. Lunt

On Sunday last, the church and society of which Dr. Lunt has had the pastoral care for the past twenty-two years, together with many of the members of other societies in town, and citizens generally, with friends and acquaintance from abroad, united in composing a large and sad audience to pay the last solemn and mournful tribute to the memory of the gifted and beloved departed.

The dark and gloomy rainy morning seemed in keeping with the feelings of our community while the tolling of the bells added more solemnity to the occasion. Notwithstanding the rain, at the usual hour of morning service "Adams Temple" was filled to overflowing, with a "mourning people," and among the audience we recognized some of the inmates of the "Silo's Sing Harbor," who came to join their tears and regrets for the loss of one whom they had learned to love and admire.

On entering the church the sombre drapery seemed to cast over the audience a deeper gloom, or rather it was a fit emblem of the depth of feeling already in the hearts of the people, which the touching and beautiful voluntary on the organ by Mr. Silas Allen, softened and subdued, yet increased until it was almost insupportable, and when the Rev. Dr. Frothingham rose and in fixed them to join in prayer, all must have felt the relief. Appropriate selections from the scriptures were read and followed by a chant by the excellent Quartette, under the direction of Mr. Wm. Nash, whose singing on this occasion, as well as during the ordinary Sunday services at this church, has added so much to the interest and given so much expression to the feelings of the worshippers as to elicit general commendation. The "long prayer" was made by the venerable Dr. Kendall, of Plymouth, who, though advanced in years, is yet vigorous and active, thus shaming many younger preachers now-a-days who seem to think it a merit to be prosy and lifeless in the pulpit. But even the exercises thus far were insufficient to satisfy all the sorrow in that afflicted assembly, and it was not until Rev. Chandler Robbins rose, with a conscious majesty, yet evidently laboring under great strength of grief, which it was hard to suppress, and gave expression to his own convictions of the worth, the truth and the purity of the character of the departed, of his eloquence, of all his many excellent qualities as a man, a preacher and citizen, with a just discrimination that showed he did not rise to flatter and praise in a manner that often renders eulogies disgusting, but that it was, as it should be, for himself who knew the "gone before" so well, much as for the people to whom and for whom he was speaking, an honest tribute that all felt that "from the abundance of the heart the mouth has spoken" and the satisfaction and peace that always follows the outward expression of grief, came upon them and for a while they were comforted. And when the choir again rose and chanted that beautiful hymn whose refrain continually returning was of the place and the joy where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest; the stillness of the grave fell upon that large assembly and, as the last strains died away not one percent dared to break the impressive silence, but waited for the closing benediction, when they rose up and left the place with the conviction that it had indeed "been good" for them to be there.

LECTURE ON TEMPERANCE.—Mrs. F. D. Norris, would respectfully announce to the citizens of Quincy, that she will lecture on the evils of Intemperance, in the Town Hall, on Sunday evening, at 5 1/2 o'clock. Mrs. Norris comes to us well recommended, and we hope that our citizens will appreciate her motives, by substantially filling the Hall.

FRESH GOODS. Purchasers should not fail to call at C. Packard's Store, as he has just received a fresh supply of choice and fashionable articles adopted for the season, and he sells them at the lowest prices and buyers should not fail of giving him a call.

THE COMET.—We would remind our readers that the great fiery monster, which threatens the destruction of the world, will be down upon us "like a thousand of brick," to-morrow (Sunday, June 14, 1857). Are you all prepared for the eventful day? Have you said your prayers morning and evening? Finally, have you paid your honest debts, and can walk forth on Sunday morning with a clear conscience to meet His Majesty, and say that you owe no man "a dollar?" All these things are very essential to your future welfare, and if you have not accomplished them, let no time be lost as this is the last day of grace. We would respectfully suggest, under this state of affairs, the propriety of all of our delinquent subscribers and all others who are in arrears to us, of calling and settle as soon as convenient, and our wish is, the chances will be ten to one in your favor.

We publish to-day a correct list of some of the principle officers of the Norfolk District Medical Society, having been led into an error last week, by copying from the Norfolk County Journal, supposing our worthy friend the doctor, one of the editors, was all right on this point of diagnosis.

Dr. Henry Burdett, Roxbury, President; Dr. Ebenezer Stone, Walpole, Vice President; Dr. Edward Jarvis, Dorchester, Secretary; Dr. Danforth Wright, Dedham, Treasurer; Dr. Hosa Harshorn, Dedham, Librarian.

SANDS, NATHAN & Co's, Circus, gave two of their performances in this town, on Saturday last. The canvass was well filled on both occasions.

DR. EZRA PARMENTER, has been appointed Special Examiner of Drugs and Medicines for the port of Boston, and has entered upon the duties of his office. Dr. PARMENTER is a modern, unassuming gentleman, but eminently well qualified for the position. The appointment is alike creditable to the administration and the recipient. Dr. P. is a son of the Hon. WM. PARMENTER of Cambridge, who represented the people of his District in Congress, for a series of years, and filled the part of Naval Officer for four years, having been appointed by President Polk.

DORCHESTER RAILROAD EXCHANGE.—This recently established Exchange, at the terminus of the above horse railroad, No. 20 Broad street, Boston, is under the charge of Jenkins & Emerson, two accomplished gentlemen, and whose every object seems to be to administer to the wants of their host of customers. Jenkins, of "bear memory," we have long favorably known, but "Col" Emerson is a host of himself, and alone has a multitude of friends, but the two combined, defy all comparison, and their hospitality collectively tried elicit exclaims which others might justly envy. Give them a call.

When a true genius appears, there will soon follow a sickly swarm of imitators. Beware of these men who call themselves "the only Indian Physician," "native Indians," "the true Indian Doctor," &c., &c. The Indian Medical Institute, at No. 21 Bromfield Street, Boston, issues the "Indian Arcana," a paper edited by Rev. Geo. C. Bancroft. Send for a free sample copy, and from it learn the whole truth as touching the Indian system of Medicine.

FLORENCE HOUSE, BOSTON. This favorite place, on the corner of Kneeland and South Streets, just as you leave the Old Colony Depot, has recently passed into the hands of the brothers, James B. and Horace Libby. This hotel has been renovated and placed in "apple-pie order," where meals or a "cut" can be procured on the European order, at all hours, and served in the well known style of Severance, who has conducted successfully eating houses in Lindall and Kingston Streets, near the United States Hotel. Severance has few equals, and all who desire a good meal or a "hearty plate" should give him a call. The Messrs. Libby's, proprietors, are gentlemen who will see that the Florence House ranks with the best places of entertainment in Boston.

THE WORLD TO BE DESTROYED.—The Great Fiery Monster, which, from telegraphic accounts, is to make its appearance on Sunday, the 13th inst., has, from all records, concluded to change its striking point from New York, to the State House, in Boston. Are you all ready for the fatal blow? Think of it for a moment—have you provided yourselves with the necessary conveniences for a journey to the most High? If not, call on J. W. Lombard, Quincy Patriot Building, who has on hand a large assortment of useful clothing, both thick and thin, which he offers at the lowest cash prices. All those who wish to make a respectable appearance on this important occasion, will do well to call and see friend Lombard.

THE CONCERT given by Messrs. F. A. Noble and M. G. Gilpatrick, at the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening last, was a happy to say, well attended.

For the Patriot.

Rev. William Parsons Lunt.

In addition to what was so well written in your last week's paper, we would add, that we well knew Mr. Lunt in the halcyon days of his early youth. He "was always a good boy," and how much that little sentence conveys in meaning, of virtue and loveliness! Dr. Lunt received his preparatory education for college at that quiet and rural retreat, Milton Academy. All around there, looks the same now as in 1820, except the trees of the lawn have grown a little larger, and the Academy building a little more faded. Among his school mates now living, were Rev. Samuel B. Babcock, of Dedham; Hon. Edmund P. Tilton, of Dorchester; Henderson Inches, Esq., of Boston and others. Mr. Lunt was a diligent student, obedient to the rules of the school and easy to learn. His favorite study was mathematics; yet none excelled him in his thoroughness of the Greek and Latin languages.

One of his declamatory exercises on leaving the Academy for Cambridge, at the early age of 15 years, was delivered in Latin, well spoken and excited much admiration. He entered college as one of the "best fitted" in his class, and to the no small gratification we remember, of his now venerable preceptor, Mr. Wm. Reed, of Easton, Mass. How well he stood during the four years he spent at the University, is almost a matter of history with that ancient institution. He graduated in honor with a class of 55; about 40 of whom, we notice by the triennial catalogue, are living. Among his classmates were Rev. Asahel Bigelow, Martin Gay, M. D., Judge Halyburton, of Virginia, Hon. D. P. King, Geo. Peabody, Thomas W. Dorr, John J. Clarke, of Roxbury, Rev. Geo. Ripley and others who have since occupied honorable positions in society. We have already said Dr. Lunt left his alma mater with high honors, and as a scholar and divine has taken a respectable rank in literature. All that knew him, are aware that he possessed a remarkable logical and well disciplined mind, was a linguist and one of the most accomplished and chaste writers, more particularly on themes connected with his profession of any in our country; and he has contributed not a little by the beauty and power of many of his productions, to elevate American literature. His well stored mind, rich in the germs of knowledge to overflowing, was the result of deep and untiring study of a quarter of a century.

He embraced a profession most congenial to his tastes; and he lived and died a faithful minister of the Messiah. In 1850 he received degree of D. D. from Harvard College, June, 1851, he was installed as pastor of the First Congregational Society in this town, continuing with his people in love and uninterrupted harmony twenty years. As the term of his ministry lengthened, the bond of affection, on the part of his society became more abiding. He possessed a kindly heart, alive to every generous affection; of great sensibility and tenderness. We sorrow that one in the meridian of life, in the golden days of his ministry, when the future before him, even of this earthly pilgrimage, was so resplendent in days and deeds of usefulness, has passed away so unexpected. But like one of the apostles of old, for him to die was gain.

For the Patriot.

Economy vs. Meanness.

Our Selectmen, we think, in their last attempt at retrenchment, border on meanness. At the last annual March meeting, the town appropriated two thousand dollars to furnish the Niagara Company with a new engine. The order was passed to the hands of the Messrs. Hennemans, of Boston, and accepted. The machine being in a good state of forwardness, the Foreman of the Niagara, who naturally felt an emulous pride and interest in its completion, called on the Messrs. H's, and observing the beggarly manner in which the ornaments were being laid on, suggested the propriety to the Selectmen, of adding a little more paint on each side of the tub—and other parts of the body. This request was complied with, and the machine was finished. For this extra labor, fifteen dollars was charged—the whole cost amounting to one thousand dollars. At the settlement of the bill the Selectmen refused to admit the charge; alleging as their reason, that it did not originate with their authorized body, and therefore they were not responsible for it—and through their influence the bill was forwarded to the Niagara Company, who, although conscious of the unfairness and unwarrantable extortion of the proceeding, promptly cancelled it. An act we venture to say, unprecedented in any other town in the State; and contrary to the wishes of ninety-nine out of every hundred of our citizens. For they appreciate too highly the meritorious services of our firemen. They know too well that their hard and laborious duty is rendered without pay. That health, and sometimes life, fall a sacrifice to their arduous calling. The town had appropriated liberally, and the inference is plain enough, that they meant to deal liberally with the company—that no such act of extortion would for a moment receive their sanction.

Why the Selectmen, who have been so munificent in their favors with other companies, (the patting of the Granite cost one hundred and fifty dollars, whereas the Niagara in all cost but one hundred and five,) should at this particular moment, in regard to this machine, have fitful visitations of economy, is a problem, which has led them to doubt the justice and impartiality of their administration. For it is evidently demonstrable, that they have in this case acted on their own responsibility, and not in conformity to the expressed will of their constituents.

Another fact worthy of mention of this honorable body is their attempt to renovate an old dilapidated horse carriage, whose race is nearly run, with "putty and" paint, as a useful and serviceable article for the company's use.

A query here arises, which has been thrust upon us, our Foreman, in his official capacity, should deem it his duty to visit said carriage, and hint the propriety to the Selectmen of filling up some crevice with an extra outlay of "putty" whether said "putty" would be "putted" against him, and the company be visited, for his presumption, by a demand to settle the account.

Seriously, such straining in certain cases at gnats, and in others swallowing camels, as has been evinced lately in many of the acts of the present board of Selectmen, is far from being conducive to the department, and militates much against their fitness for the office which they attempt to fill.

MEDICATED INHALATION for the treatment and speedy cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma,
Catarrh, and all Chronic Diseases of the Throat and Lungs,
AT THE

Boston Lung Institute

No. 69 1-2 Summer st.

MEDICATED INHALATION WILL cure Consumption—Why? Because the remedy is applied directly to the seat of the disease. The medicine being prepared in the form of vapor, is conveyed in the air we breathe, to the most minute air cells in the lungs. Its chemical composition possesses the power of dissolving and rendering easily expectorated, the secretion in the air-cells, and by being brought directly upon the disease, establishes a new condition of the mucous membrane, immediately relieving the lungs from the matter collected there, and the vapor being composed of healing gums and balsams, the weak air cells are stimulated and strengthened,
the ulcers and cavities heal, and the patient rapidly passes from a state of disease to health.

Trials of its wondrous efficacy, will be given on calling at the BOSTON LUNG INSTITUTE,
No. 69 1-2 Summer street.

Consumptives who apply personally may confidently rely that their disease will be detected with unerring certainty, and treated with a successful result.

Persons residing at a distance, and unable to visit the Institute, by sending a minute description of the case in writing, can have suitable remedies with full directions sent them.

and the

INDIAN MEDICAL INSTITUTE.

No. 36 Bromfield street, Boston.

was established to supply the public with genuine Indian Remedies for all diseases.

Dr. Greene, Superintendent Physician, acquired a knowledge of the system by actual experience with the Indians, and understands their true system of medicine.

The public should not be deceived by advertisements from persons purporting to be "Indian Doctors." Invalids and all persons interested in the Indian system of medicine, should send get a copy of the

"INDIAN ARCANES."

A Newspaper published in the Institute, which will give a list of the principal Indian Remedies, their prices and uses, and a full exposition of the merits of the practice, and also of the imposture which is carried on by pretenders. A copy of the paper, edited by Geo. C. Bancroft, sent free of tery, a contagious disease—it has the peculiarity, however, of laying the foundation of other diseases, and should be checked in proper season. No medicine yet invented by man, does this so promptly, so safely, and so agreeably, as F.

A LETTER

TO THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY,

AND TO THOSE

Living in the towns near Boston,

FROM DR. PETER COLY.

A True Indian of the Penobscot Nation.

BROTHERS. What I am going to say to you is the truth. You do not know me, and may be you have never heard of me at all.
If I can cure you when you are sick, you will say, Who are you that tell us this? Now, listen, and you shall hear who I am, and what I can do.

My Indian name is Nicola. I belong to the Penobscot Tribe of Indians, and came from Bangor and Old Town, to Lowell first, and my people, and the Old Town people, and the Lowell people, all say I know medicine, and no better man offers to cure you. Listen—Old Doctor Lohr was also a great doctor; he died a year ago last May, in Old Town, amongst the Indians. I married his daughter.
My father carried on medicine before me, who was bred up to know the virtues of trees and their barks, plants and their roots, and many secrets that come down from my nation long time before the first white man set foot on the Penobscot. There are men here in Boston, who will tell you Doctor Coly saved their lives, and they will do anything for Doctor Coly. You will never find the first man or woman who will speak ill of him, for I am a man of truth. If I see a sick man, and think I cannot save him, I tell his friends so, and never give them hope, unless I think I can cure him—and when I say I can cure him, he gets well, for I seldom fail. My wife Sarah, Doctor Lohr's daughter, lives at Lowell, and we have four children, two boys and two girls. This is my family.

I cure Cancers, and Fevers, and Scrofula, and Piles, and all sickness belonging to this country and people, and never lost a single case of fever, where I had a call in season before it was too late. I have been from Bangor to Boston, and from Boston to Bangor, and to Nashua, N. H., in the same fashion, I went up the Merrimack river twenty years ago, and then through the canal to Boston.

My people know me to be a good friend. I can use the gun and the bow. This I can do as well as any best men of old, for I am expert in these things—and no tree, no plant, nor shrub of the forest, but I can name him, and describe to you. Sarah's father said he could teach me no more, and long before he died I was considered quite his equal by the Tribe.

When I first came to Lowell, fifteen cases came there, and our people settled there fishing and basket making. Plenty people know this. They know me, and will tell you I am an honest and truthful man. I have the settlement of Camden to show you who I am, and what I can do. They know I go to the woods with my axe and bow. Camden woods is mostly the place, and by the help of boys and girls, I get a lot of Roubi and Tummings, and bring a team and fetch them to be sorted and dried, and then bring it up. This is all true —and my skill, and reputation, and character will bear inspection in anything you can fetch up, and all who want my services, will call at my office, No. 5 West street, next door to Mr. Messers Street, at the corner of Washington Street.

N. B. Leave Boston for Lowell, every Friday, at 4 P. M., and return Monday noon.

DOCTOR PETER COLY.

CERTIFICATES.

To whom it may concern.

Camden, Me. August 22, 1846.

The undersigned, are pleased that it is in their power to express their entire confidence in the skill and integrity of Dr. Peter Coly—he having, for some eight or ten years, resided in this town, and we do not think it necessary to say that from a constant acquaintance with him and family, we have seen no cause to doubt his skill as a physician; we do most cheerfully recommend him as being one from whom invalids may confidently expect judicious treatment, and eventually relief. Dr.
Coly is we believe, in all respects, above reproach.

THOS. B. GROSE, Selection

T. H. CLEVELAND, of

WM. A. NORWOOD, Camden.

I have known Dr. Coly for years, and consider that I owe my life to his skill as a physician. When in Maine, I employed him in my family with perfect success. I can recommend him as a skillful and reliable man.

that country have lengthened the average of life several years. The same is true of mental science. He who has a better knowledge of those laws which enable a man at once to distinguish truth from error, can write a book which will save thousands from some popular mistake, or from years of laborious thought, enabling men to form just conclusions without delay—his empire is over the mind of men.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

Saturday, June 20th, 1857.

THE SEVENTEENTH OF JUNE — INAUGURATION OF THE WARREN MONUMENT.—Wednesday last was a holiday long to be remembered in Boston and Charlestown. The morning opened dark and cloudy with indications of rain, but as the day advanced the weather became more and more favorable. It is said that there has not been so large and so fine a display of military in Boston within the last twenty years. Many companies from abroad were present, especially National Guard from New York, which elicited universal admiration. There were also present large numbers of distinguished guests from other States—more than is usual on such an occasion. The day was ushered in by the ringing of bells and firing of cannon. At nine o'clock, the Independent Cadets left their armory, accompanied by the North Bridge-water Brass Band, marched from the State House to the Revere House, where they received the guests of the State Department, and escorted them to the State House—here the procession was formed, and at 12 o'clock moved through some of the principal streets on their route to Charlestown square. The procession was nearly an hour passing a given point, and arrived at Charlestown (old bridge) about one o'clock, where they were welcomed by a salute from the Charlestown Artillery.

The Escort. The escort consisted of the military, numbering thirty-three companies, under the command of Col. Rogers of Charlestown.

First Division. A police detachment headed this division, under the direction of Col. Chickering of Boston. The Lawrence Brass Band led off with sweet strains. The Committee of Arrangements followed; then came Mr. Warren, President of the Bunker Hill Association with its members.

The veterans of the war of 1812, came next, and the venerable gentlemen turned out in goodly array, occupying fifteen carriages.

Following the Veterans, came Mayor Sawyer of Charlestown, with the City government, in a dozen carriages; also a delegation from the Massachusetts Charitable Mercantile Association, and in their wake a barouche containing Mayor Rice of Boston.

The Roxbury City Government succeeded them, with Mayor Sleeper and the President of the Common Council. Also the Mayor of Baltimore, Judge Breese of Illinois, and other distinguished guests were in attendance.

In one carriage there rode an old veteran of ninety-four years, named Benjamin Smith, whose present residence is Shrewsbury, Mass. This venerable personage was in active service as a fitter in the third company of the Massachusetts regiment, during the Revolutionary struggle, which company was under command of General Heath. He states he was in several skirmishes, but no regular pitched battle. He was present at the last public celebration in this city of the Fourth of July. He took an active interest in the celebration to-day.

There was one more ancient gentleman, named Francis Grey, from Springfield, claiming to be 77 1/2 years old, dressed in regimentals. Some of the veterans of 1812 said he was a humbug—a sort of Pratt or Melhuish. He claims that the epaulettes he sports were once the property of Gen. Washington and a sword he bears was the one used by Gen. Warren at the battle of Bunker Hill, which venerable relic was loaned him by its owner, Mr. Inches, of Springfield. His story is hardly credible, and Grey is probably a man of demented intellect. In view of his assumptions, however, the usual courtesies were extended him, and he rode in the procession.

Second Division. The Maroon Order composed this division. They turned out in large numbers, with regalia and banners of the richest materials, painted or wrought with Masonic emblems which strangely puzzled the uninitiated.

Third Division. This division was rather sparsely represented. It was preceded by the Bunker Hill Association of New York, Warren Association of Massachusetts, Webster Literary Association, &c., with various devices and inscriptions upon their banners.

Charlestown Square and other prominent places through which the procession had to pass were richly and profusely decorated with flags and other emblems, which added much to the beauty and interest of the occasion.

Inauguration Ceremony. The inauguration ceremony took place in a pavilion three hundred feet long and one hundred feet wide, capable of accommodating seven thousand persons. The statue occupied the eastern side of the pavilion. Over it was a tri-colored canopy, and around it a drapery of flags.

At ten minutes before three o'clock the procession reached the Pavilion, the band playing Hail Columbia.

At this stage of the proceedings, it was announced that the National Guard of New York had been ordered home on special duty, which somewhat disturbed the order of arrangements.

At precisely four o'clock, the band playing appropriate music, the statue was uncovered, as if by magic, the drapery rising in festoons, and stood revealed in all its majesty and beauty, standing out in bold relief against a background of black cloth. The vast audience paid an audible tribute of admiration to the noble representation of the first revolutionary martyr.

Hon. Edward Everett was now introduced to the audience, and proceeded to deliver the statue to the Bunker Hill Monument Association, on behalf of the subscribers, in a speech which was marked by the beauty and force which characterize his style. Mr. Everett was listened to with rapt attention by those within the sound of his voice. During his speech Mr. Everett was frequently applauded at some fine passages or allusion to a great man.

At the conclusion of Mr. Everett's address, which occupied thirty-five minutes in the delivery, Hon. George Washington Warren, President of the Monument Association, replied to the presentation speech of Mr. Everett.

At seven o'clock, a grand levee, in honor of the occasion was held at the City Hall Charlestown, where the Boston delegation and other distinguished guests sat down to a bountiful collation, provided by the munificence of the city fathers.

In the evening fire works were burnt freely, and music at different points lent enchantment to the scene. Thus ended one of the most gorgeous military and civic displays—long to be remembered—one in which the day was never before honored.

TO CORRESPONDENTS. A number of articles are in type which will appear in our next.

THE HANCOCK LIGHT GUARD, ever true and ever honorable, under the command of their popular leader, celebrated yesterday the third anniversary of the company, by a public parade and other demonstrations. They mustered about fifty members rank and file, and made a fine martial appearance. They marched about fifty members rank and file, and made a fine martial appearance. They marched about fifty members rank and file, and made a fine martial appearance.

The morning opened very unpropitious, with the prospect of a rainy day; but as it advanced, the weather became more favorable. The Company assembled at an early hour, and after marching through some of the principal streets, to the inspiring music, of those unrivalled performers, the Weymouth Brass Band, who, on this occasion, appeared with their rich and silver-toned instruments, proceeded to the residence of Col. Packard, where a bountiful repast awaited them. They were received by the Col. with a true soldier's welcome. After discussing to their satisfaction the merits of the viands, the Company took up the line of march for the Point, there to exercise their skill at target firing. Many fine shots were made, which would do credit to older veterans. The festivities of the day were closed by a dinner at the Hancock House; to which we venture to say, from the known reputation of "same host" in such matters, that ample justice was done. At the board the best of feeling prevailed; sentiments were elicited, toasts given, and at an early hour the Company rose, well satisfied with the reception extended to them, and after going through a review, retired to their head quarters for dismissal. May their shadow never be less, and at their next anniversary, find their prospects equally flattering.

CLAM CROWDER. The proprietor of the Granite Saloon will regale his friends on one of those delectable chowders, this afternoon and evening, which has earned him a world-renowned reputation. Hand in your orders early gentlemen.

AKABA. This place is an Arabian fortified village, on the east side of the Gulf of Akaba, (Sinus Ailantides), this gulf is an inlet forming the east horn of the Red Sea, after its bifurcation. Average breadth 12 miles. It has lofty and precipitous shores, and is unfitted for navigation, in consequence of violent north winds and numerous reefs. The above town has an Egyptian garrison, but now no ports. In ancient times this was one of two celebrated ports by which Solomon traded with Ophir and the remote East. To the west of the Sinus Ailantides was the Sinus Hippiotis, so called from the Egyptian city Hippotis, and now the Gulf of Suez. In the peninsula between these two gulfs and towards its southern extremity, we have Mounts Horeb and Sinai. The former of these mountains is at the northern end of a ridge called by the older geographers, Montes Moyses, or the Black Mountains, and its southern end is Sinai, now Jebel Musa, Moses' Mount.

For the Patriot.

Accident, with loss of a Valuable Horse.

On Monday morning last, two teams owned by Messrs. Brackett and Newcomb—one heavily loaded with stone, the other with lumber, met on a road leading from Canal street to Brackett's wharf, at a point barely wide enough for the passage of a single wagon, and which, unfortunately, was very uneven. The team of Mr. Brackett, in attempting to pass the other, had to leave the road, upon quite an uneven surface, and the lumber being high and top heavy, capsized, killing one of Mr. Newcomb's horses outright, literally crushing him to the ground and slightly injuring some others. It is fortunate that the accident was not more serious. No blame can be attached to any one, except the superintendents of the public roads, for their negligence in leaving open a thoroughfare, unsafe for travel, without giving the necessary warning. This highway was laid out by a few of our enterprising citizens as a convenience which they saw the business portion of our community required, with the expectation that the town would take it and improve it for the public accommodation. But as yet no action has been had in the matter. A few hundred dollars which is lavishly thrown away upon sidewalks, etc., to ornament and benefit property of the upper ten, would be ample to put the road in complete repair and thereby open a safe and convenient avenue, which would be duly appreciated by our stone merchants, and all others who have business to transact in that thriving portion of our town.

GRANT.

STATE NOMINATIONS.—At a Convention of the Free Soil wing of the American party of Massachusetts, held the present week the following State nominations were made, viz:

Hon. N. P. Banks for Governor almost unanimously, and the ticket completed as follows: Lieutenant Governor, Eliphalet L. R. Rogers; Secretary of State, A. T. Rogers; of Worcester; Attorney General, John H. Clifford, of New Bedford; Treasurer, Moses Tenney.

We have been unavoidably compelled to omit several editorial notices, and also several advertisements this week, in consequence of the "great rush" upon our columns. They will all appear next week.

Forty-one Days Without Eating.—We learn that Mr. William Lodrop, who is stopping at the Spiritualists Hospital, in this town, commenced eating again on Tuesday last; having abstained from partaking of any nourishment, (except a little cold water), beside what he derived from taking hold of his wife's hand while she was eating, for forty-one days! He has been able to go about, during this time, with nearly the usual sprightliness, as when he partook of his hearty meals.

When Mrs. Kidder first introduced to the public, her now world-renowned Dysentery Cordial, it went out forth heralded by newspaper pulls—nor by Certificates from those that had never used it—neither with imposing articles signed by our physicians. It was simply a Pamphlet, with simple directions, that every child could understand, treating the disease under each head, the Cordial was alike adapted to such as Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, either with Adults, or Children, (also old Chronic Diarrhoea). To say that it at once gained favor led the public answer—often curing cases that had baffled the skill of our best physicians. Since that time, from its own intrinsic worth, it has introduced itself into every City and Village in the Union, and now the voyager will find in the Chinese Territory, in the East Indies, and in the Cities that border our Southern Coast, Mrs. Kidder's Dysentery Cordial ranks with the best and most approved Medicines of the day.—American Patriot.

Please read the card of Parker, White & Gannett, which may be found in another column, and if you are in want of anything in their line, give them a call.

THE WEATHER for the last few days has been very unseasonable and uncomfortable—cold, damp and foggy; just such weather as people of high nervous temperaments or hypocondriac tendencies, affects with the most agonizing forebodings; imagining the worst dire calamities which are likely to befall them—that their mortal career has become a burden to themselves and others, and oftentimes take measures to hasten the event, either by the cord, bodkin, or a jump into the river. They are poor philosophers, impulsive and impatient under their feelings—cannot wait the return when all will be again sunshine. Our meteorological friends have furnished no explanation, why in the middle of June we should be visited by the cold blasts of November. It cannot be attributed to the influence of the comet, for that august body did not make its appearance, according to reliable sources, as was officially announced. Our ice dealers, however, need not despair, their warm anticipations of a rich harvest will be more than realized, we think, before this end the close of the dog days.

To Those Who Want Farms.

A FIRM WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERY MAN. THE Ridgway Farm Company has made arrangements by which all who desire to settle or purchase a home can do so.

The Farms consist of the best limestone soil of the most superior quality for farming, in a rapidly improving place, and which an extensive immigration is now pouring in. The property is located in Elk County, Pennsylvania, in the midst of a thriving population of some 10,000. The climate is perfectly healthy, and the terrible plague of the west fever is unknown. It also has an abundance of the best quality of Coal and Iron. The price to buy it out is from $8 to $20 per acre, payable by instalments, to be located at the time of purchasing, or a share of 25 acres entitling to locate the same for $2000. Discount for every sum of $100 $1 per month. Discount for every sum of $1000 $1 per month. Discount for every sum of $1000 $1 per month. Discount for every sum of $1000 $1 per month.

In considering the advantages of emigrating to this locality the following are presented:—First—The soil is a rich limestone, capable of raising heavy crops, owing to its present great prosperity, wheat has attained its present great prosperity, wheat has attained its present great prosperity, wheat has attained its present great prosperity.

Second—It is the centre of the great North West Coal Basin, and is destined to become one of the greatest business places in the State. It will supply the great Lake market, (according to population and travel the greatest in the Union.) It has five workable veins of the best Bituminous Coal, amounting in the aggregate to over 22 feet, which makes 22,000 tons of coal under each acre. This will make the land of incalculable value.

The eminent state geologist, Dr. Charles T. Jackson, of Boston, has made a geological survey of the land, analyzed the coal, the iron ore and the limestone. This report together with maps will be furnished to inquirers.

Fourth—Three railroads are laid out thro' the land, and the Sanbury and Erie R.R. will give us a market for our coal to the lakes—it came from Erie to Philadelphia. A large part of this road has been finished, and is now in running order. A heavy force is now working from Erie towards our land in the western direction, the means for the completion of which has been raised in the State of Pennsylvania. The Allegheny Valley Railroad connects us with New York, Boston and Pittsburgh. The Venango Road connects us with the West.

There are already good turnpike Roads running through the property, and other roads have been opened to accommodate the emigration and settlement which has already taken place.

There are no opportunity equal to it now offered to the man who wants to provide himself a home in an easy way, and make a settlement where he can live in prosperity and independence in a climate PERFECTLY HEALTHY.

No case of the fever ever having been known to occur in this settlement. It is not like going to the backwoods of the West, among perhaps intolerant people, where there is no society, churches, or schools, where the price of land is high, and where the emigrant, after being used to the most healthy climate in the world, has to endure sickness and pain, and perhaps ruin his health and that of his family. But here is a thriving settlement having three towns, containing churches, schools, hotels, stores, saw mills, grist mills, and everything desired. There is a cash market at hand. The lumber trade last year amounted to over two hundred million feet of lumber. In a short time, owing to the coal, it will become still more valuable, as a number of iron works and manufacturing will soon be started extensively at Warren. Even for those who do not wish to go there, the payments are such that they can easily buy a farm to save their rising families from want in the future, or to gain a competence by the rise which will take place in the value of the lands. By an outlay scarcely missed, a substantial provision can be made.

Persons should make early application. Apply or write to E. J. Jeffries, Secretary, No. 143 Walnut Street, below Fifth, Philadelphia. Letters carefully answered giving full information. Shares of tracts of land can be bought or secured by letter enclosing the first instalment of five dollars, when the subscriber will be furnished with books, maps, &c. Warrantee Deeds given. Persons can also purchase from our Agents.

Route from Philadelphia to Tyrone on the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, and thence by Stage to the land. This is the best hotel accommodation is afforded. Enquire for E. C. Scholtz, Esq., the Agent for the property at St. Mary's. Quincy June 20 3m

Poetry.

For the Patriot.
Why must I Live

Why must I live to weep?
To strive for daily bread,
When all my loved ones sleep
Among the dreamless dead?
Why must I still remain
To cumber Freedom's soil,
And weekly plead, in vain,
For liberty to toil?
In youth's unclouded morn
Life's dearest joys I knew;
But brightness, meteor-born,
With meteor swiftness flew.
Hope's star, with mellow beam,
Gilded each prospect fair,
With ignis fatuus gleam,
To guide me to despair.

In wealth's dear, glittering toys
Once was it mine to share;
But of its boasted joys
I can but say—they were.
I found earth's wealth a dream—
A vision of the night—
A bubble on the stream—
A flitting ray of light.

I've felt the glowing thrill
That Friendship's touch imparts;
I know the deadly chill
That creeps o'er sunder'd hearts.
Friendship's a broken reed
On which we may not rest—
It ever fails, in time of need,
To cheer the tortur'd breast.

I've known the sweets of Love,
As holy, warm and pure,
As angels feel above—
As fitted to endure.
To find its home on earth
To Love was never given;
Rejoicing in a heavenly birth,
It seeks its home in Heaven.

I've known life's direst woes,
Its Poverty and Pain;
And 'til life's latest throes
Shall cease, they must remain.
Oh! Why then fondly cling
To such a world as this,
When naught but sorrow life can bring,
And all beyond is bliss?

Trust not the joys of earth—
Put not in man thy trust—
Thy misery but moves the mirth
Of unminded dust.
Shed no regretful tear
When earth's fond ties are riven;
Since death alone is certain here—
Hereafter, only Heaven.

For the Patriot.
TO "ADA."

BY J. ROBERT STEPHENS.

A vision fair, as Heaven's light,
Still floats before my eyes;
Of loveliness—so pure and bright,
A being of the skies.

It is not that broad brow so fair,
Nor yet those Auburn curls;
It is a spirit speaking there—
Like one from other world.

There is magic in thy bright smile;
There is music in thy voice
That would the weary heart beguile,
And make the soul rejoice.

O may thy spirit never know,
The colder dreams of earth
May the bitter pang of woe,
Be lost in rosy mirth.

Anecdotes.

Doctor, isn't there a disease called the shingles? asked a gentleman of his physician.

Yes, sir, to be sure, was the reply.

Then I've got it, no mistake, said the patient, for the roof of my mouth is broken out in two or three places.

A servant girl in a country town, whose beauty formed a matter of general admiration and discussion, in passing a group of officers in the street heard one of them exclaim to his fellow.

By heaven, she is painted!

Yes, sir, and by Heaven only! she very quickly replied, turning round.

The officer acknowledged the force of the rebuke and apologized.

Will you keep an eye on my horse, my son, while I step in and get a drink?

Yes, sir.

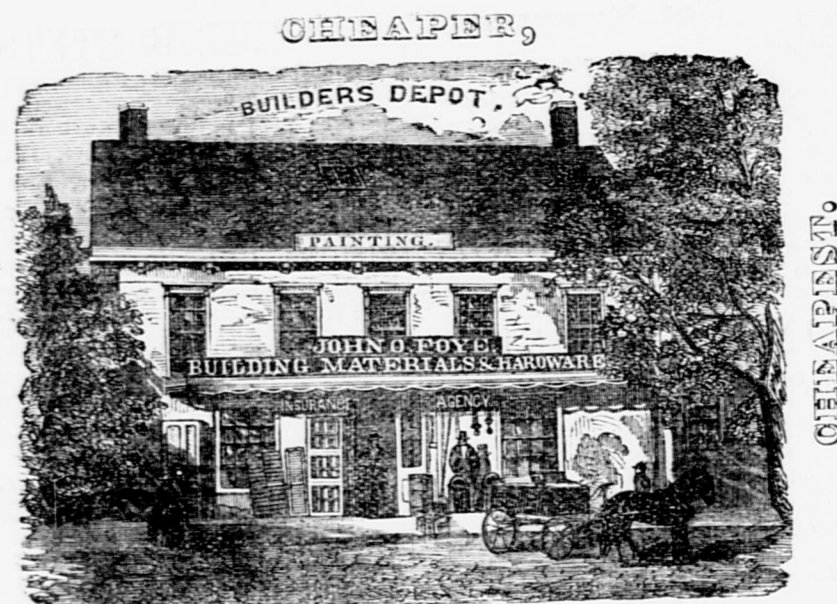

Stranger goes in, gets his drink, comes out and finds his horse missing.

Where is my horse, boy?

He run'd away, sir.

Didn't I tell you to take care of him, you young scoundrel?

No, sir, you told me to keep my eye on him, and I did, till he got clear out of sight.

Pure Potash

IN TIN CANS.
B. T. BABBITT,
68 & 70 Washington Street, N. Y.,
And 38 India Street, Boston.

THE Proprietor of this POTASH has for many years seen the necessity of having some reliable standard for the strength of POTASH. The adulteration has become so general, that it has, notwithstanding its valuable properties, gone nearly out of use. The Proprietor has taken the responsibility of subscribing his name to every package, and warrants the strength to be uniform, and when used always producing the same results. Potash many times is adulterated with salt, which is destructive in making soap; and the Ladies say they did not have good lye, &c. One other reason that POTASH has gone out of use, is, it is so unpleasant to handle, being put in wooden casks, and becoming a liquid in many cases, and very troublesome to the retailers.

Now the Proprietor first obtains pure Potashes, always being the same strength, and producing the same results; and will warrant it in all cases, if the directions are followed, to produce double the effect in making soap, and all other purposes for which Potash is used, with full directions for making the best of Soft, Hard, or Fancy Soaps. It is made with little trouble; the lye is all prepared in five or ten minutes.

1 lb. Potash warranted to cut 5 lbs. of grease into good soap.
12 lbs. will make one barrel of beautiful soft soap.

Directions for making soft soap.
Directions for making hard soap.
Directions for Laundries and Hotels.
Directions for clearing cotton waste that has been used for cleaning machinery of all kinds.
Directions for using this Potash in place of Soda.
Directions for sticking India-rubber soles on Shoes.
All the above directions accompany the cans.

B. T. BABBITT'S

BEST SALEBRATUS,

IS prepared entirely different from other saleratus. All the deleterious matter extracted in such a manner as to produce Bread, Biscuit, and all kinds of Cakes, without containing a particle of saleratus which the bread is baked; thereby producing wholesome results. Every particle of Saleratus is turned to Gas and passes through the bread or biscuit while baking, consequently nothing remains but Common Salt, Water and Flour. You will readily perceive by the taste of this Saleratus that it is entirely different from other Saleratus. When you purchase one paper you should take the old paper with you, and be very particular and get the next exactly like the first, (name and picture, twisted, Lost-Ired, with a glass of effervescing water on the top, as you see in the bill.)
Full directions for making Bread with Sour Milk and Cream Tartar, and all kinds of Pastry; also for making Soda Water; also, directions for making Seidlitz Powders, will accompany each package.

SCROFULAR REMEDY.

THIS Purely Vegetable Preparation is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, and simple in its action, causing neither vomiting or purging. It acts directly upon the primary cause of disease—regulates the Bowels, removes all vitiated secre-

discontinued until another is made.

It is high time tax payers took this matter in hand and put suitable persons in office who have some respect for the prosperity and welfare of the town and its citizens. Not those who just before a town meeting, are about preaching their disinterestedness, that they do not desire office, and would not receive it on any account; but on the day of election use every artifice which they think will avail them to be re-elected. Out with such hypocrites! let all such deceivers meet their just reward. We see the public press has been censuring municipal officers in other places for using their office in monopolizing trade for their special benefit. How has it been in this town? For further information we would refer the citizens to the Auditor's Report.

"BORN TO NO MASTER, OF NO SECT ARE WE."

To ADVERTISERS. As our best regular publishing day comes on one of the greatest and most glorious holidays of these United States—a day on which every true-hearted American will do his utmost to celebrate our National Independence—we wish our friends to forward their Notices, Advertisements, etc. on or before Thursday, if they wish them to appear in our next issue, as we shall put our paper to press on Friday.

TARGET EXERCISE. The Hancock Light Guards, at their late anniversary, as we have before mentioned, made some excellent shots, at their target drill, which left their mark. Peter W. Newcomb, Esq., the worthy Postmaster at the Point, was the successful competitor, piercing the "Bull's Eye," and receiving the first prize, of three dollars;—Francis Venzie, was second, and Frederick Southern third. They were all excellent shots, and told well.

RETRO-CESSION. We understand that in consequence of difficulty in the Congregational Evangelical Society of this town, they have given back their meeting house to the original grantors and surrendered their interest in it; it is now the property of individuals.

BARBER-SHOP. Friend Ryerson, opposite, who came so near being tarred upon the tail of the comet by the explosion of a spirit lamp, takes this method of informing his friends that his shop will be closed on the 4th until the 6th of July; when he hopes to be able, with an unwavering hand to resume his professional duties.

ICE CREAMS. The season for these cool and delicious delicacies, it appears, by the notices which we have received, is now upon us. Mrs. Joseph T. French, on Washington Street, whose fashionable resort during the past year was so liberally patronized, opens this evening. We predict, judging from the past, that a rich harvest is in store for her.

The Misses Townsends, also, corner of Hancock and Sea Streets, have taken the field, and circulated among their numerous friends cards of invitation, requesting the favor of a visit at their central and pleasant retreat, to test the merits of their cream. See their advertisement in another column.

CLARK CHURCH. We intended on this occasion to put forth a full extraordinary— for we had all the material furnished us by a little incident which happened last week. As it is, we shall content ourselves with merely advising our friends of the good cheer that awaits them at the Granite Saloon, this afternoon and evening.

Rev. William Parsons Lunt, D. D.
FIRST CONGREGATIONALIST SOCIETY,
Quincy, June 22d, 1857.

At a meeting of the First Congregational Society in Quincy, called to consider and adopt such measures as the decease of their late pastor, Rev. Dr. Lunt required, was held, June 22.

Josiah Brigham, Esq., was chosen Moderator.

Voted, To choose a Committee of three to prepare Resolutions for the consideration of the meeting.

Hon. C. F. Adams, Dr. E. Woodward and Mr. Edward Turner were chosen, who subsequently reported the following Resolves, which were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, This Society has received with profound sorrow the intelligence of the decease of their pastor, the Rev. William Parsons Lunt, whilst far away from home, seeking an invigoration of his energies among scenes hallowed to the eye of Christian faith. A void has thus been on a sudden created by the act of Divine Providence, which they may be permitted to deplore, and for the first time during a period of more than a century they find themselves without a spiritual guide.

Resolved, That under this heavy bereavement, they cling to the recollection of the virtues of him whom they have lost; of his piety, which, measuring his own labors, were, when most successful, only by the standard of his aspirations to excellence, ever kept his spirit humbly before God; of his refined scholarship, which had attained a maturity that promised a continual development of usefulness for many years; of his religious faith, which made him a Christian, earnest, conscientious, firm; liberal towards his brethren holding other forms of belief, and yet resolute in maintaining his own.

Resolved, That this Society tender to the afflicted widow and the mourning family of the deceased, the expression of their heartfelt sympathy in the calamity which has come upon them, yet though grieving sore, it is not as without a consoling trust, from the memory of a life happily spent in the cultivation of those affections that most adorn and exalt the Christian; prompts an humble hope that their departed friend has but passed to his highest reward.

Voted, That the foregoing Resolutions be recorded in the Parish Records. A copy transmitted to the family of the deceased. And that they be published together with those adopted by the Church of the Messiah, New York city, in the Christian Enquirer, New York, Christian Register Boston, and Quincy Patriot, Quincy.

Voted, That this meeting be now dissolved. Attest, I. W. Munroe, Clerk.

CHURCH OF THE MESSIAH,
New York, June 7, 1857.

A meeting of the Second Congregational Union Church, worshipping in the Church of the Messiah, in New York City, was held on the 7th of June, after the morning service. The meeting was organized by the appointment of Mr. George W. Blunt as Chairman, upon the nomination of Mr. Jedediah Frye. The Secretary, Mr. W. H. Woodman being present.

Mr. Richard Warner stated that in the absence of the President of the Board of Trustees (Mr. Samuel J. Beale) he had been requested to prepare Resolutions for the occasion.

He then offered the following Preamble and Resolutions preface them with appropriate remarks:

Whereas, We have heard with deep sorrow of the death of the Rev. William Parsons Lunt, D. D., while on his journey in the East, travelling towards Jerusalem;

And whereas, Dr. Lunt was the first minister of the Second Unitarian Congregational Church of this city; and although during the twenty-four years since he resigned his charge here, the Society has very much changed, and there are but few now connected with it, who were worshippers while he preached; yet with a proper sense of the labors he performed in the early days of the Society, as well as for the deep regard we, as a Christian body felt for him as a man, and a minister, we have met this day to express the sentiments which we feel for our denomination in the removal of such a light from our pulpit; and within these walls consecrated by our faith; at this altar where our friend has administered, we have come to pay our tribute to his memory. Therefore it is

Resolved, That we regard this dispensation of God, as a most afflictive event to the churches of our faith; for in the departed were blended great powers of preaching; a simplicity of Christian life; a faithful adherence to duty, with a devotion to the cause in which he labored, that made him welcome at all times, in our pulpits, and honored in our homes.

Resolved, That this church has cause to remember his labors here, as the first pastor, when he brought, hither, his fresh youth, and the powers of a mind dedicated to the Gospel of Christ; that he labored zealously in an untired and a hard field; but he sowed good seed that has taken root, and grown up, and brought forth abundantly; and with gratitude to God, as a Society, we express our obligations for his services, and our affection for his name.

Resolved, That our heart-felt sympathy is extended to his widow and to his children, who have lost an affectionate husband and a kind father. To God, the all wise and good, we commend them for the consolation which can come from no other source, in this hour of their deep anguish.

Resolved, That as a sister church of that over which our departed friend was last settled as its pastor, we appreciate the great loss it has sustained in this event; and we trust that the lessons of wisdom and the doctrines of faith and love, to which its members have listened so long, must have taught them the value of him, who has been so soon called from his labors to his reward.

Resolved, That a copy of the proceedings of this meeting, and the Resolutions be forwarded by the Secretary, to the widow of the deceased, and also to the church in Quincy, Mass., over which Dr. Lunt was settled.

Mr. Joseph Tinkham seconded the resolutions referring to his connection with the church in Mercer street and to his acquaintance with Dr. Lunt, whose departure he sincerely regretted, for he had known him as his minister and as a friend.

Mr. William Bloodgood spoke to the Resolutions and of Dr. Lunt as a faithful worker in the cause here, when the labor was hard and the reward apparently small.

The Resolutions were unanimously adopted and the meeting adjourned.

G. W. BLUNT, Chairman.
W. H. WOODMAN, Secretary.

FRUITS, ETC. Reed & Forbush, at the corner of South Merchants Row and Chatham Street, Boston, wholesale and retail dealers in Fruit, Oranges, Lemons, etc., always have on hand one of the best assortments in their line to be found in the City, which they will sell at the very lowest prices. The senior member of the firm Mr. Reed, is in every way entitled to the appellation of an Alderman, (and we hope yet to see him one of the "City Fathers,") and together with his whole-souled partner, Mr. Forbush, deal liberally with their numerous customers, and none call without purchasing, and frequently renew their visits. This is the place to buy.

Obituary.

John Edson, Jr., son of John Edson, Esq., of Bridgewater, was born June 27, 1827, in the town of Braintree, Mass., and was baptized by the Rev. Benjamin C. Cutler, in Christ Church, Quincy, on the 30th of August, the same year. His early life was spent in Bridgewater, whither his family removed, and where he received the rudiments of education. He was one year under the care and instruction of the Rev. E. M. P. Wells, who then kept a school for boys in South Boston. He fitted for college under the tuition of the Rev. Newton E. Marble, an experienced and accomplished teacher, then residing in Bridgewater. At the age of seventeen, he entered Trinity College, Hartford, Ct. He remained there one year, and was then removed to Columbia College, N. Y., where he spent the second year of his collegiate life.

In 1847, he was then removed to Harvard College, Cambridge, where he was graduated in the class of 1848, at the age of twenty-one. During his residence in Cambridge, he was confirmed in Boston by the Rt. Rev. Doct. Eastburn, Bishop of Mass.

After he received his degree at Harvard, he turned his attention to engineering, and spent one year in Troy, N. Y., in the Rensselaer Institution. While at school he became acquainted with Frank Wills, Esq., then of the city of New York, who, thinking him possessed of the taste and abilities requisite, advised him to turn his attention to the subject of architecture, and to adopt that profession. Mr. Wills was so well pleased with him that he received him into his office, where he remained between two and three years; and when he retired and opened an office for himself, Mr. Wills encouraged him and allowed a reference to himself in case any testimony to his ability was needed. His business gradually increased, and his reputation in his business had a slow but healthy and sure growth. He always gave entire satisfaction where he was employed.

He had designed and executed several churches and public buildings, and his character had become so established that he had the prospect of as much business as he could attend to. In the midst of hope and life, he was stricken with a malignant fever, which in four days' time deprived him of consciousness, and in four days of life. He died in the city of New York, on Wednesday, April 29, 1857, aged 29 years and 10 months.

His moral and intellectual powers were of a high order, and his conversation agreeable. His principles were strong, and his piety ardent. From his earliest childhood he had been "brought up to lead a godly and a Christian life." His boyhood was marked with purity of mind and benevolence, and he was never known to give a disrespectful answer to his parents. He manifested a becoming interest in his family, and seemed desirous to prosper in his business that he might be a benefit to them. It is remarkable that Mr. Frank Wills, his friend and teacher, departed this life in Montreal, a few days previous to his own death.

Marriages.

At Cambridge, June 4th, by Rev. Dr. Newell, Mr. Rufus Foster of Boston, to Anna E. Smith, of Cambridge.

We omitted last week, in publishing the above happy union, to acknowledge a generous portion of the bridal loaf. Our friends will pardon the neglect; and although we did not give expression, still our wishes were with them, that they might journey through life without the least possible event to mar their anticipated voyage of health, prosperity, and the blissful realities of a heaven on earth.

In South Boston, on the 21st inst., by Rev. W. W. Dean, Mr. Francis L. Southern to Miss Frances M. Holt, both of this town.

Accompanying the above notice was an appropriate memorial from our friends of their kind remembrance. The feelings which prompted the act, we can assure them is duly reciprocated. If our wishes could avail anything, Heaven's choicest blessings would attend them through the journey of life—and numerous pledges of their affection, be added to the family circle, to enliven its pleasures and solace them in their declining years.

Deaths.

In this town, on the 20th inst., Edward Flynn, aged 2 years and 2 months.

On the 12th inst., Mr. Joseph French, aged 64 years.

On the 24th inst., Mrs. Caroline M., wife of Mr. Nathaniel Nightingale, aged 49 years and 9 months.

On the 24th inst., Mr. William P. Emerson, aged 86 years.

On the 26th inst., (at the Neck,) Mr. George W. Richards, son of the late Hon. Joseph Richards, aged 30 years.

In Milton, on the 19th inst., William, son of Mr. William and Mrs. Catherine Reed, aged 8 years.

Poetry.

Papa, What is a Newspaper?

Organs that gentlemen play, my boy,
To answer the taste of the day, my boy,
Whatever it be,
They hit the key,
And pipe in full concert away, my boy.
News from all countries and climes, my boy,
Advertisements, essays, and rhymes, my boy,
Mixed up with all sorts,
With (f) lyng reports
And published at regular times, my boy.
Articles able and wise my boy,
At least in the editor's eyes, my boy,
And logic so grand
That few understand
To what in the world it applies, my boy.
Statistics, reflections, reviews, my boy,
Little scraps to instruct and amuse, my boy,
And lengthy debate
Upon matter of state,
For wide-headed folks to peruse, my boy.
The fads as they were and are, my boy,
The quibbles and quirk of the bar, my boy,
And every week
A clever critique
On some rising theatrical star, my boy.
The age of Jupiter's moon, my boy,
The stealing of somebody's spouse, my boy,
The style of the crops,
The style of the fops,
And the wit of the public buffoons, my boy.
List of all physical ills, my boy,
Banished by somebody's pills, my boy,
Till you ask with surprise
Why any one dies,
Or what's the disorder that kills, my boy.
Who has got married to whom, my boy,
Who were cut off in their bloom, my boy,
Who has had birth
On this sorrow-stained earth,
And who tatters fast to the tomb, my boy.
The price of cattle and grain, my boy,
Directions to dig and drain, my boy,
But 'twould take me too long
To tell you in song
A quarter of all they contain, my boy.

Morning Thoughts.

The summer sun is shining
Upon a world so bright!
The dew upon each grassy blade,
The golden light, the depth of shade,
All seem as they were only made
To minister delight.
From giant trees, strong bunched,
And all their young leaves
From little birds that merrily sing,
From insects flitting on the wing,
Ay, from the very meadow things,
My spirit joy receives.
I think of angel voices
When the birds' songs I hear;
Of weary pilgrims on their brink,
Who, thirsting, have come down to drink;
Of that unfading stream I think
When earthly fountains I see.

Good in All Things.

Each block of marble in the mine
Conceals the Paphian Queen—
Apollo robed in light divine,
Or Pallas, the serene.
It only needs the lofty thought
To give the glorious birth,
And lo, by skillful fingers wrought,
They captivate the earth.
So in the hardest human heart
One little well appears,
A fountain in some hidden part
That brims with gentle tears.
It only needs the water touch
Of Love or Pity's hand,
And lo, the rock with water bursts,
And gushes o'er the land.

Anecdotes.

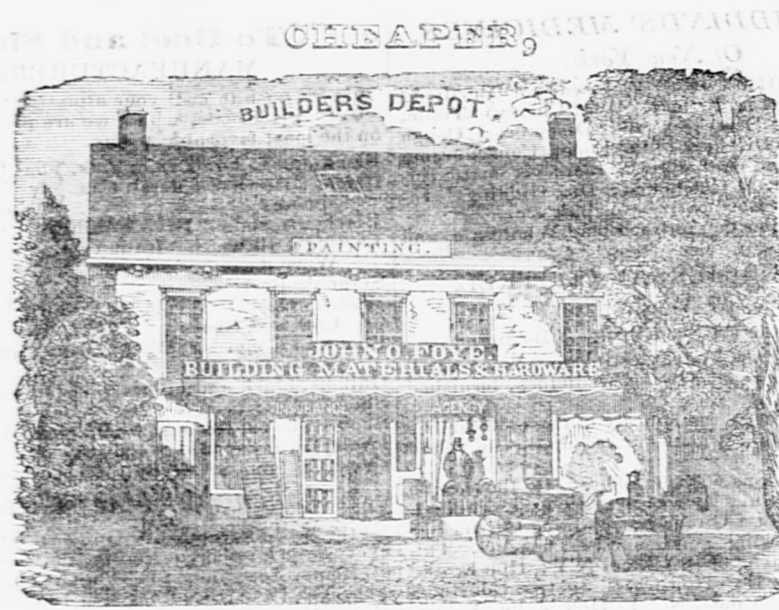

Two Scotchmen went to Ireland to make a tour, and to see the natives. One of them one drizzly day, but the other the price of their dinner, that the first Pat they found would be too much for them. A little fellow, with an old frock coat and a piece of a hat, was trying to plough with a pony under the shelter of a row of trees.
Pat, said our friend.
Yes, your honor, he replied.
If the devil was to come just now, which of us three would he take?
Sure he'd take me, yer honor!
But why, Pat?
Cause he's sure of your honors at any time!

You can do anything, if you have patience, said an old uncle, who had made a fortune, to a nephew who had nearly spent one. Water may be carried in a sieve, if you only wait.

How long? asked the petulant spendthrift who was impatient for the old man's obituary.
Till it freezes! was the cool reply.

When Foote was at Salt Hill, he dined at the Castle; and when Partridge produced the bill, which was rather exorbitant, Foote asked his name.
Partridge; an it please you? replied he.
Partridge! replied Foote, it should be a Woodcock, by the length of your bill.

A friend of ours addressed on Irishman, one slippery morning last winter, as follows:—
Good morning Patrick—quite slippery this morning.
Slippery! And be jabers, it is nothing else, your honor; upon my word, and I t'ing down three times, without getting up once!

WEYMOUTH LANDING, May, 16.

Pure Potash
IN TIN CANS.
B. T. BABBITT,
64 & 70 Washington Street, N. Y.,
And 34 India Street, Boston.

THE Proprietor of this POTASH has for many years seen the necessity of having some reliable standard for the strength of POTASH. This adulteration has become so general, that it has, notwithstanding its valuable properties, gone nearly out of use. The Proprietor has taken the responsibility of subsiding his name to every package, and warrants the strength to be uniform, and when used, will produce the same results. Potash many times is adulterated with salt, which is destructive in making soap; it makes the Larders say they did not have good lard, &c., &c. One other reason that Potash has gone out of use, is, it is so unpleasant to handle, being put in wooden casks, and becoming a liquid in many cases, and very troublesome to the retailer. Now the Proprietor first obtains pure Potashes, always being the same strength, and producing the same results; and will warrant it in all cases, if the directions are followed, to produce double the effect in making soap, and all other purposes for which Potash is used, with full directions for making the best of Soft, Hard, or Fancy Soaps. It is made with little trouble; the key is all prepared in five or ten minutes.

1 lb. Potash warranted to cut 5 lbs. of grease and good soap.
12 lbs. will make one barrel of beautiful soft soap.
Directions for making soft soap.
Directions for making hard soap.
Directions for Laundering and Dyeing.
Directions for cleaning cotton waste that has been used for cleaning machinery of all kinds.
Directions for using this Potash in place of Soda.
Directions for sticking India-rubber soles on Shoes.
All the above directions accompany the cans.

is prepared entirely different from other saleratus. All the deleterious matter extracted in such a manner as to produce Biscuit, Biscuit, and all kinds of Cakes, without containing a particle of saleratus when the bread or cake is baked, thereby producing wholesome results. Every particle of Saleratus is turned to Gas and passes through the bread or biscuit while baking, consequently nothing remains but Common Salt, Water and Flour. You will readily perceive by the taste of this Saleratus that it is entirely different from other Saleratus. When you purchase one paper you should take the old paper with you, and be very particular and get the next exactly like the first, (name and picture, twisted, Lead-bread, with a glass of clear water on the top as you see in the bill.) Full directions for making Bread with Sour Milk and Cream Tartar, and all kinds of Pastry; also for making Soda Water; also, directions for making Scintilla Powders, will accompany each package. B. T. BABBITT, 65 and 70 Washington Street, N. Y., and 34 India Street, Boston.

Courtin' in the Country.

BY MRS. SERA SMITH.

German are honest men—SHAESPEAR.
It was a bright summer afternoon we galloped into the tidy, brick village. Grey. Without any knowledge of our we certainly put ourselves upon our paces, and most approved equestrian stunts, as we dashed down the principal's—indeed in the excitement of our spirits indulged in an exhibition of vanity, people in a trio, but at which we should, of us, have blushed singly, for we exhaled glances, which each interpreted in his as meaning—
Fine looking cavaliers we—such not seen every day.
Unluckily for us, it may have been by, a great habitual meeting was held the village at the time, and every hotel, inn, or boarding house was full to overflowing; full of men with solemn looks, with the affairs of the times—men with vulgar words, or piercing eloquence, upon subject of turnpike or no turnpike; men long speeches in their pockets, ready extemporized—men who had on their day best, even combed their carrot hair and now moved merrily in stiff white lars, and new cowhide shoes. What we to those?
At first, we glanced at our modish hments with exultation, but, as file after these sturdy farmers came by, a bus sense of effeminacy crept over us; and trim boots and finisless tailor work, ridiculous, and reminded us of men and the tailor. Besides we were a pitiful mind and one must have some grand truth to tain him well in truth's position; beside were hungry as panthers, which is of apt to impart a sneaking aspect.

Now remember that, Cox; a hungry man does not, as you women imagine, spiritual—she only looks dull.
Wisely said, good cousin, we will pence with that, but go on.
Well, after being baffled half a d times, I fear we beginning to look a less erly. Then we bethought ourselves of farm-houses in the neighborhood, and st again in tolerable style.

There was one with an avenue of trees which we rode, and I knocked with my upon the door. It was opened by a girl an arch look, as much as to say, you expect such a pretty girl, did you? more did we, and we were all ourselves stantly.

Of course, Frank; but what next? Why, she could take only one. Here a dilemma; but the neighbors would take one. But then such a pretty house—which should stay? We declared should decide. She laughed and shook curls, and tapped her small foot upon floor, and her ribbons fluttered in the w and altogether made as pretty a picture one could wish to see.

We looked interesting—I apprehen our best looks were on; we slightly im ed our position in the saddle—Richard off his cap on account of the heat, but remember his fine hair! William sm but then his teeth! I was grave and serene.
Frank, Frank.
True, upon my word, cousin. The beauty glanced from one to the other, la ing and blushing, and refusing to say length she pitched upon your cousin. Fe Now, cousin spare your invention, know, Frank, I credit only half what you telling, and I will not believe the story i
